MISSING JUNE ROBLES REPORTED FOUND

U. S. Presses Case Against Mellon

Today

60,000 Chances.
Old-Fashioned Good News.
Bootlegging Humans.
Elephant in Chicken-Yard.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

SIXTY THOUSAND human beings went to see the derby run in Kentucky, roared, cheered, enjoyed themselves. That means sixty thousand chances for somebody else to get ahead in the world. The turtle won his race while the hare was asleep. Many "dull, plodding," young men have won their race while "bright boys" were at the race track.

SOME, TOO old-fashioned perhaps, will welcome a suggestion from Washington that the President plans to let the country "run itself" for awhile, and take "a rest cure" after Congress adjourns.

The old-fashioned recall that the country has run itself for some time, ever since 1776; in fact, during that time, we have had our worries, strikes, panics, troubles of various kinds, but we have also had PROGRESS.

NEW YORK has changed from a small town near the Battery to the greatest city in the world.

Chicago has risen from a mud-flat, Los Angeles from a strip of sand mixed with boulders and dry rivers. San Francisco has risen with the magnificent golden gate as a front door and across the bay the great city of Oakland.

All the way from Seattle to Miami, from the northeastern tip of Maine to San Diego, the United States, "running itself," had done, on the whole, very well.

It might do better, it could and it should do better, perhaps, but it has done pretty well. Above all, it has not established any permanent classes of poor and rich, nothing like the Asiatic caste system, or any government against which the masses fear to protest.

THE ASTORS had nothing when George Washington was the richest man in the country; the Astors, in the regular course of nature, will have nothing when somebody as yet unborn will come from some farm to be the country's richest man.

Everything should be tried, and everything is being tried, heaven knows. Letting the country run itself again is one of the things that might be tried advantageously for a while, not dropping any of the new good ideas, of course.

IT MAY INTEREST the government to learn that bootlegging by airplane, bringing alcoholic drinks from British West Indian islands to Florida and other states, while fairly profitable in itself, is mainly a smoke screen for bootlegging "drugs and illegal immigrants."

The liquor pilot who does not supply his own plane gets twenty dollars for a two-and-a-half hour round trip. He brings in 20 bags of liquor, 240 bottles each trip, and makes an average of about sixty dollars a day.

If he supplies his own plane and gas, he gets a hundred dollars for a round trip.

WHEN ONE pilot brings drugs, he flies low over a field indicated in advance, drops a small package and flies on. When he brings "bootleg immigrants" that pay two hundred and fifty dollars each for Europeans, one thousand dollars for each Chinese, he lands as soon as possible, transfers his "cargo" to another plane, which lands them in the center of some other state, far from any coastguard or customs house, where the "individual" can lose himself in the crowd. Many fugitives from Germany are now gathered on British West Indian islands, waiting for bootleg transportation, only a hard heart would have them turned back.

THE BIG DIRIGIBLE Macon is off with the war fliers "secretly." Mr. H. Bond Bliss, Colonel F. B. Shutts' young editorial genius, says it is like sending an elephant "secretly" into a chicken yard.

To send a dirigible flying as regular part of an air fleet in war would be to invite destruction. The big silver ship, invisible at a short distance, should be kept apart used to attack cities, with heavy loads of bombs and poison gas, vomiting out small, swift planes from its interior to reconnoitre, attack and destroy, as the horrible hag at the gate of Milton's hell sent out her nowling brood.

As well send a milk cow into a dog fight as send a dirigible among regular fighting planes. One well-aimed explosive shell and no more dirigible.

IN SAPULPA, Oklahoma, the father of eight children tried to poison them all, his wife and himself, but lacked money to buy enough strychnine. They all took the poison, only three children died. When caught, the father, who had only five cents, asked the police to shoot him, saying:

"You don't know what it means to have children so young you can't explain things to them when they ask for food."

There are some depths, apparently, that good intentions have not reached.

GRAND JURY HEARING OPENS

Banker No Different From 'John Doe,' Dumbauld Says

The government unlimbered its big guns today against Andrew W. Mellon as a federal grand jury began a probe of his income tax affairs.

William B. Beeson, bank clerk, of Uniontown, was named foreman of the grand jury to consider charges that the former Secretary of the Treasury and onetime Ambassador to Great Britain underpaid his 1931 income tax.

Judge R. M. Gibson, in charging the grand jury, made no reference to the Mellon case or any other matter to come before it.

TWO JURORS DEAD

He explained that the jurors' duty was to "deteruine who was to be brought to trial," to protect the nation's interests and likewise "individuals from any undue prosecution."

A rollcall of the 23jurors summoned revealed that two, Harvey Frampton, a farmer, of Clarion, and W. G. Shillito, retired, of Burgettstown, had died since they were subpenaed.

To return an indictment 12 of the 21 grand jurors must agree. At least 16 must be present when any indictment is recommended.

After being sworn in the grand jury, includingg an author, lumber dealer, a cashier, a farmer, three laborers and others from varied walks of life, went to a small jury room on the fifth floor of the Federal Building.

DOZEN WITNESSES

A large quantity of bank records and income tax documents were taken before the inquisitors.

A dozen witnesses, income tax experts, were on hand. The first called was Howard McGuire, in charge of income tax activities in the office of Internal Revenue Collector David L. Lawrence for the Western Pennsylvania district. He was before the grand jury only a few minutes.

McGuire was followed by Donald A. Banks, special agent of the Internal Revenue Bureau, working out of the office of W. P. Mays, internal revenue agent for this district.

U. S. SEIZES INSULL AT SEA

Fallen Utilities Czar Speeded to Chicago To 'Face Music'

Insull's 'Prison Train' Here 3 Hours Tonight

CHICAGO, May 7.—(INS.)—The train speeding Samuel Insull back to the scene of his triumphs and heartbreaks, left Princeton Junction, N. J., at 10 o'clock daylight saving time this morning.

Pennsylvania railroad officials here said the Insull train will lay over in Pittsburgh for three and one half hours tonight.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 7.—(AP.)—After two years of exile, Samuel Insull, the fallen utilities czar, was brought back to America today "to make the most important fight of my life."

He would seek not only freedom, the aged prisoner said, but complete vindication. He declared:

"I made mistakes—but they were honest mistakes. They were errors in judgement, but not dishonest manipulations."

These "errors in judgement referred to his activities as head of a far-flung utilities empire, the collapse of which resulted in charges of embezzlement, larceny, use of mails to defraud and violation of the bankruptcy act being sought against him.

TAKEN FROM SHIP

Swiftly and carefully government officials executed Insull's transfer from the steamer Exilona to a Chicago-bound train.

A Coast Guard cutter met the steamship out at sea and Insull was bundled aboard and taken to Fort Hancock, N. J.

There a motorcade waited and speeded him to Princeton Junction, N. J.

In the custody of Burton Y. Berry, a secretary of the American Legation at Istanbul, who brought Insull back from Europe, and in the company of his son, Samuel Insull, Jr., the prisoner was placed on a Pennsylvania train due in Chicago at 9:15 (Pittsburgh time) tomorrow morning.

At Philadelphia, Insull's car was dropped in the yards before the other cars were taken into the Broad Street Station trainshed. On orders from Department of Justice agents aboard, the car was kept locked. The one-time utilities magnate sat within talking to his son, and the agents denied requests that he emerge and pose for photographers.

$150,000 BAIL READY

As they waited on the station platform at Princeton Junction, Insull's son discussed the possibility of furnishing bail for his father at his arraignment in Chicago. The younger Insull said that if the amount was under

Health of Insull Improved at Sea

NEW YORK, May 7.—(INS.)—Samuel Insull's health is not precarious, Dr. James L. Bray, ship's surgeon of the steamer Exilona on which Insull returned from Turkey, said on arrival today. He explained:

"I was not called on to diagnose Mr. Insull's condition, but from observation I would say that the trip back improved his general condition. At the outset he appeared tired and worn, but throughout the trip he rested comfortably."

Insull, Jr., Crams On Biography of Buccaneer

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull, Jr., had a book in his hand as he boarded the tug to go down New York Bay to meet his father. He was asked:

"What are you reading?"

"Oh, I don't know. I always take a book with me and when I left the room I picked up the first one handy."

"What is it?"

Insull looked at the title, smiled, and said:

"It's hardly what you would think. It's the life of Sir Henry Morgan, the buccaneer."

13TH VOTE CASE GOES TO TRIAL

When Federal Court convened today for the May term, 65 residents of the Third Ward were in the corridor waiting to be called as government witnesses in the trial for three election officials of the Third District of that ward, who will go on trial before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker on charges of altering and falsifying ballots cast at the general election in November, 1932.

The defendants are Joseph Forte, judge; Frank Audia and August J. Manfreda, inspectors. Michael J. Swide, clerk of the election board, also indicted, died last Thanksgiving. It will be the thirteenth trial of members of election boards and others. Fifty-four men and women were convicted at November and special February terms of court.

A panel of 125 petit jurors reported this morning for two weeks' jury service. Another election vote trial of five members of the election board of the Second District, Second Ward, is scheduled to start Tuesday. The defendants are Thomas O'Malley, judge; John Barosky and Earl Longo, inspectors, and Floyd Kawka and Stanley Carlowski, clerks.

'Hal Fine,' Jean Says, But She'll Sue For Divorce

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—Jean Harlow, platinum blonde film star, has separated from her third husband, Hal Rosson, screen photographer, she announced today.

Miss Harlow moved into the home of her mother and stepfather, while Rosson took quarters at the Hollywood Athletic Club.

Ironically, the separation occurred only a few hours after Miss Harlow had acted as bridesmaid for Carmelita Geraghty, actress, who married Carey Wilson, picture writer, yesterday.

'HAL FINE MAN'

Miss Harlow said she would seek a divorce soon and would allege incompatibility. A few moments before, she had admitted:

"It's true that Hal and I have separated. I shall seek a divorce. It's the only way out for both of us. I feel other people have made mistakes, and it's wrong for us to live together when we are obviously uncongenial. Hal can probably find some other woman who will make him happier than I have done.

"I have always felt it sounds so silly when a husband and wife make up their minds to seek a divorce and they announce that now they will be better friends than ever and will probably see more of each other.

"Our marriage is finished. There will be no reconciliation, nor will we see each other every day. I will say, however, that Hal is a fine man. I regret more than I can say that our marriage has been such a failure. I won't say it's Hal's fault any more than my fault. We simply were not meant for each other.

For the third successive week, council this afternoon by a vote of 5 to 3 refused consent to the removal of Charles A. Finley as chairman of the Traction Conference Board.

The action blocked Mayor McNair's attempt to appoint William P. Witherow to the job.

Councilman P. J. McArdle offered the resolution refusing consent to Finley's removal.

Three Democrats, Walter R. Demmler, Thomas J. Gallagher and John M. Huston, supported the Mayor's stand. The fourth Democrat, John J. Kane, was absent.

Wife Foils Suicide Of Jobless Tailor

David Cohen, 45, unemployed tailor of 15 Reed street, attempted to end his life by hanging himself to a chandelier in his home this afternoon, according to a police report.

His wife, Mrs. Erva Cohen, cut him down and he was rushed to the Mercy Hospital, where it was said he will recover. A charge of disorderly conduct was placed against him.

KIDNAPERS CAPTURED, FAMILY HEARS

U.S. Agents Trap Gang In Mexico, Tucson Dispatches Say

International News Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 7.—Unconfirmed reports were received here today from Mexico that a squad of United States Department of Justice agents had captured the kidnapers of June Robles in the State of Sonora, just south of the international border.

At the same time it was reported that the missing heiress had been found in Phoenix, Ariz., due to the confession of the kidnapers.

There was no immediate confirmation of this report, either here or in Phoenix. Members of the family were silent, as were officials, although there was indication of feverish activity in official circles "under cover."

The Sheriff's office at Phoenix denied any knowledge of the report that June was found there, or that any search was being made for her.

All officers here were noncommittal, although one admitted "information was expected in a few hours from Mexico."

POSSE STANDS BY

Officials at the Sheriff's office were reluctant to discuss the report.

It was reported here that if the capture of the kidnaper or kidnapers has been effected, the posse will take the prisoner direct to the Arizona State Prison at Florence for safe keeping.

The capture of the kidnapers was said to have been made at Santa Cruz.

A posse of from 20 to 25 American officers, in the company of Mexican federal government officers, were reported to have left for Santa Cruz early this morning.

CONFESSION REPORTED

From Nogales, Sonora, the city police wagon was said to have been sent to Santa Cruz to bring back the arrested kidnapers.

Santa Cruz is about 25 miles below the Mexican border.

The posse, with its prisoner, is expected to return to Nogales and be brought across the border shortly.

The confession from the kidnaper of the 6-year-old heiress was reported to have been obtained shortly after midnight.

Under Sheriff Colby S. Farrar, of Tucson, and a squad of deputies were said to have left secretly for Nogales to contact the federal posse.

Aiding the American officers were the "rurales" of Sonora, the Mexican rural policemen.

Irish War Memorial Target for Bombers

ARMAGH, Northern Ireland, May 7.—(INS.)—This city was severely shaken today by the terrific explosion of a land mine set off by Irish Republican Army gunmen attempting to blow up a giant war memorial.

The blast was plotted and carried out as a reprisal for the Ulster government's refusal to permit the I. R. A. to erect a memorial to its fallen members who gave their lives in battles at Garrichmore, Tyrone County.

HOUGHTON, N. Y., May 7.—(AP.)—Dr. Willard Lavay Fancher, 46, dean of Houghton College, a co-educational school, hanged himself in his home today.

Convict Seeking Liberty Near Death for Science

CANON CITY, Col., May 7.—(AP.)—The death against which Colorado Convict No. 8217 gambled in cause of science was threatening to overtake him today.

He was seriously ill from the first of a series of injections of serums he volunteered to take in a "human test tube" experiment to determine if a new tuberculosis preventive developed at Denver is a success.

Dr. H. J. Corper, of the National Jewish Hospital at Denver, who has been experimenting with the serums for 15 years, said Mike Schmidt, 53, the sick convict, is seriously ill.

Another convict Carl Erickson, 62, also is taking the serums, was not made ill by the first injections, which were started Thursday.

The serums have been tested on animals but this is the first time they have been injected into human beings.

Both the prisoners, serving life terms, will be given commutations following the experiments, officials announced. Before they offered themselves for the experiments, the convicts were told the tests might cause their deaths.

Son of Pastor Spurned Her Kisses, Wife Says

Her husband, a minister's son, would not let her kiss him, Mrs. Dorothy Loehr, of 311 Woodside road, Wilkinsburg, testified today at a hearing on her divorce suit before Judge Thomas M. Marshall.

The husband, Paul C. Loehr, son of the Rev. C. J. Loehr, was "cold and indifferent and mistreated her," Mrs. Loehr testified. She said she left him March 20, 1930.

Mrs. Howard E. Kyle, a witness for Mrs. Loehr, testified that Loehr impressed her as being "a soulless man."

Her testimony that George P. Martin said he "wouldn't have married her if he hadn't been drunk" won a speedy divorce for Mrs. Ruth Martin, of 531 Oakwood street. The couple were married October 22, 1921, and lived together one day, she said.

FOURTH FRENCH DEFAULT ON WAR DEBTS HELD CERTAIN

HIGH OFFICIALS REPORT NO NEW PLANS

Situation More 'In Air' Than Ever, U. S. Aides Hear

PARIS, May 7.—(AP.)—The fourth French default on the war debts to the United States is considered certain by high officials who spoke privately of the question today.

These officials asserted that no negotiations in regard to the debts "directly or indirectly" have been in progress recently and added that the "situation is more confused than ever."

The French position on the debts, it was reiterated, remains the same as after the overthrow of the government of former Premier Edouard Herriott, who championed payment.

France intends ultimately to regularize the situation, an informant said, as indicated by the radio broadcast to America Saturday by Foreign Minister Louis Barthou. He said:

"It is the mission of our statesmen—just as it is the mission of yours—to apply all of their resources, devotion, intelligence, reason and heart to sweep away all obstacles and misunderstandings.

"We wish this and I know you wish it also."

The officials discussing the debts today, however, said the problem cannot even be considered until President Roosevelt in an expected message clarifies it.

Soviet-American Trade Balked by Default Ruling

MOSCOW, May 7.—(AP.)—A deadlock in Soviet-American trade moves loomed today as a result of Attorney General Cummings' ruling that Russia is a defaulter under the Johnson Act.

The ruling, shutting off American credit to Moscow, is bitterly resented here.

The Russian government contends that it cannot be held to have defaulted on the Kerensky debt because its intervention and counter-claims against America remain unsettled.

Understood Soviet economic negotiations already have been [illegible] to plan no purchases in America which can be made elsewhere.

Roosevelt to Negotiate With Finland on Debts

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(INS)—President Roosevelt plans to negotiate a debt settlement with Finland, Speaker Rainey of the House announced today.

Rainey said this settlement would serve as a "model" for any similar debt settlements that might be affected with other non-defaulting nations in the future.

Finland has met all debt payments due the United States thus far.

BRITISH PARING JAP IMPORTS

LONDON, May 7. — (AP.) — Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, told the House of Commons today that the British government is preparing to utilize import quotas as a weapon in the battle against increasing Japanese trade competition.

His statement came in a review of the British trade negotiations with the Japanese.

In the face of Japan's apparent unreadiness to reach a basis of understanding, Runciman said:

"The British government has come to the conclusion it would no longer be justified in postponing such action as is open with a view to safeguarding the trade of this country."

As a result, he said, he told the Japanese Ambassador May 3 "that in the circumstances the British government is obliged to resume the liberty to take such action as is deemed necessary to safeguard our commercial interests," with the assurance that it would be taken "in no unfriendly spirit."

ELLON TAX CASE OPENS

room were H. A. Phillips and M. Johnson, confidential employes of the Mellon National Bank; Carl Kolb, vice president, R. E. Lightbaum, bond department cashier, Union Trust Company.

Witnesses were questioned on behalf of the government by United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld and Attorney John A. Cann, the latter of counsel for Bureau of Internal Revenue. United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings ordered the investigation, according to Washington reports, as a resuult of failure to collect $1,319,080 tax and $659,540 penalty from Mellon for 1931.

MELLON BITTER

Mellon, bitter at the spectacle of having his affairs the subject of a grand jury action, assailed Cummings' move as an "extraordinary action," showing "utter disregard of statutory regulations and settled procedure," and declaring he was a victim of "villification and attempted terrorism."

Instead of underpaying, Mellon asserts he actually overpaid his 1931 income tax. He was not allowed opportunity to claim credits for $3,800,000 given to charitable, religious and educational purposes that year, he charges.

Dumbauld was silent on Mellon's verbal attack except to say that the former Secretary's case would be treated the same as a proceeding against "John Doe."

'GAS' FAMINE FOR CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, May 7.—(AP.)—Confronted for three weeks by the disconcerting possibility that all gasoline pumps in the city will be locked, with automobiles stranded due to a strike of 2,000 gasoline station attendants, motorists today waited apprehensively for midnight.

At midnight, the independent dealers are going to close until the strike is settled. That means that nearly every station in the county will be shut down. Emergency stations for physicians, city and county cars and for the sale of gasoline in urgent cases will be established.

Case Against Mellon Declared 'Trumped Up'

Terror Rule Charged To Farley, Cummings By Dickinson

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Postmaster General James A. Farley and Attorney General Homer S. Cummings were accused today by Senator Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa, of creating a "rule of terror" through income tax prosecutions to crush criticism of the Roosevelt administration.

Dickinson flayed them for initiating a federal grand jury proceeding against Andrew W. Mellon before allowing the United States Court of Tax Appeals to pass upon his case.

He called it a "trumped-up charge" against Mellon and declared no citizen would be safe against the administration's "tyranny" if the Farley-Cummings program prevailed. Dickinson declared:

"The latest instance is the attempt of Mr. Farley and Mr. Cummings to discredit and humiliate Andrew W. Mellon on a trumped-up income tax charge, without giving their intended victim the hearing lawfully due him under the income tax laws.

"My understanding of the Mellon case is that the treasury imposed an excess tax of $1,300,000 plus $659,000 in penalties, without giving him a hearing.

"Mr. Mellon has taken an appeal of this assessment to the United States Court of Appeals.

"Now, before the government has proven it has any right to collect this tax and indeed, very likely, without having any legal right to collect it, Mr. Farley and Mr. Cummings are seeking to indict Mr. Mellon in the Federal Court at Pittsburgh on some charge which they know perfectly well can never be sustained before a jury.

"The purpose of this malicious maneuveringg is not to collect taxes but to make political capital and to impose a rule of terror on all business men who are not in accord with the policies of the present administration.

"The attorney general, supposedly versed in law, utterly disregards it by informing the country from time to time of each step he is taking to bring the Mellon case before the Federal grand jury.

"It has been my understanding that such proceedings were secret, not to be tried in the public press, and that no information should be given out until an indictment is returned or ignored."

Dickinson said in this case the investigation was made in the newspapers before the grand jury ever heard of it, continuing:

"I hold no brief for Mr. Mellon. If he owes any taxes, he should be made pay them, but the decision as to whether he owes taxes should be made by the United States Court of Tax Appeals, established by law for that very purpose.

"My protest is against a system of tyranny, created by this administration. On the one side, we have prominent men villified because they oppose administration policies and on the other, we have a poor tailor sent to jail for trying to make a living under the NRA."

SILVER COURSE MAPPED BY PRESIDENT

Senate Bloc Hopes to Force Bargain With President

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt called in Secretary Morgenthau today for a luncheon conference on the silver problem preliminary to a meeting with congressional advocates to determine what, if any, legislation will be sanctioned at this session.

Uncommitted to any specific proposal, the President took up the whole subject, determined not to approve any program for mandatory legislation.

Two or three alternative proposals providing for presidential action in furthering his program for international silver rehabilitation are under consideration.

SILVERITES HOPEFUL

Morgenthau also was preparing to go over the new $417,000,000 revenue bill with the Chief Executive. Mr. Roosevelt probably will sign it as soon as it is returned by the director of the budget.

Meanwhile, a determined band of Senate silverites, expressing high hope of striking a bargain with the President, beat another path to the Chief Executive's desk today.

Willing to compromise, the silver men carried a four-pronged proposal, aimed at a 30-silver to 70-gold monetary backing. They were confident the President would approve part, if not all, of their plan, provided they agree to making the legislation permissive rather than mandatory.

All Congress awaited the outcome of this latest parley. It may hold the key to early adjournment.

PROVISIONS LISTED

Should an agreement result, the Senate might turn almost immediate attention to the silver question.

The showdown today was on a legislative project which, roughly, would provide:

A law declaring favor for the backing of 30 per cent of the nation's money with silver.

The nationalization of all except industrial silver, or giving the government control of all such metal at a market price not to exceed 50 cents an ounce.

A permissive purchase program for the gradual acquisition of all huge store of silver without boosting the price too sharply.

Possible approval of the Dies bill in permissive form, paying a bonus for silver received here from abroad in exchange for surplus agricultural products.

250 CHEMICAL MAKERS STRIKE

About 250 employes of the Selden Company, chemical manufacturers, near Bridgeville, were on strike today. The walkout followed refusal of company officials to recognize a union organized March 1, according to James Kirk, president of the union.

Pickets were posted at the plant today, also sheriff's deputies under Chief Deputy B. V. Coffey. The concern is a subsidiary of the American Cyanamid Company, of New York.

Dr. L. C. Daniels, assistant technical director of the plant issued this statement:

"We cannot operate on a closed shop. A chemical works has to be operated by technically trained people who know the processes. It can't be operated from the outside. It would be a hazard to property and life. "The only thing I can see is that we will either operate if we get enough men or shut down if we can't."

SENATE ACTS ON EXCHANGE CONTROL BILL

Final Approval Seen For Measure by Mid-Week

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP.)—The stock market control bill and its amendments to modify the securities act of 1933 were thrown open to Senate debate today, with final action predicted by Wednesday.

Only an outbreak of the silver question was seen by Senate leaders as likely to upset this program.

Administration leaders forecast the stock bill would be approved by an overwhelming vote in about its present form. The Senate draft differs somewhat from the measure approved in the House last week.

PREDICT MODIFICATION

They predicted approval likewise for the Fletcher amendment to modify the securities act, but conceded there might be a warm fight to still further amend that "sellers beware" law.

Republican opponents of the stock market bill planned to level their heaviest fire against its corporate provisions, which they contended would interfere with economic recovery and retard business activity.

The bill was assailed, and modification requested, in a statement last night by 28 industrialists. Signed by W. B. Bell, president of the American Cyanamid Company, as chairman, the statement said:

"While ostensibly this legislation is intended only to eliminate recognized speculative abuses from the security exchanges, actually more than 450,000 firms throughout the land with no Wall street connection would be brought under the strangling regulation of a federal bureau."

STOPS 'INSIDE FACTS'

One of the strictest requirements in the Senate bill would be that officers, directors and large stockholders of corporations listing securities on a registered stock exchange must report their holdings in its stock, and notify the commission monthly of any changes.

This is designed to prevent officers, directors and large stockholders from using inside information not available to the stockholders and the public generally for their own benefit.

SUMMER HEAT TO CONTINUE

Mid-summer heat continued to hold sway today with prospect of cooler weather tomorrow.

No relief, however, was in sight from the drought which is blighting early vegetation. Sprinkling must be resorted to to save young plants and shrubs, suffering from lack of rain, experts warned.

The low pressure belt which dampened the Kentucky Derby Saturday passed over this region so rapidly nothing happened, Observer W. S. Brotzman explained.

Instead of the predicted showers yesterday the sun's rays shot the mercury to 83, five degrees below the record of May 6. The unseasonable heat drove the populace to the parks and highways. Another scorcher was in store for today, the Weather Bureau indicated.

Boy Victim of First Drowning of Season

Albert Wunderlin, 18, of 2504 Mt. Troy road, Reserve Township, was drowned yesterday while swimming in Hardie's Lake, between Gibsonia and Wildwood, according to a Coroner's report. It was the season's first fatality resulting from swimming.

Weather Conditions

The disturbance Saturday over the Canadian Northwest developed upward over the Lakes during Saturday night and Sunday, and is now central off the Massachusetts coast, Boston, 29.54, having been attended by only light scattered showers in portions of the lower Lakes and New England, while the low Saturday over Missouri made but little eastward progress, and is now over the lower Mississippi Valley and West Gulf, with light showers from Arkansas southward to the Middle Gulf and eastward over Alabama and northern Georgia. Pressure continues high over the southeastern states, and high pressure overlies the upper Lakes, the middle and upper Mississippi Valley and plains this morning, with fair weather in these districts. It is somewhat cooler in portions of the Lake region, Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba, with little change elsewhere. Temperatures were 90 degrees or more yesterday in Southern Wisconsin, Northern Illinois, over Iowa, and portions of Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, Texas, North Carolina, Virginia and Eastern Pennsylvania.

River Conditions

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 1.6; Lock No. 7, Mon., 11.1; Pittsburgh, 10.6; Dam No. 4, 9.2; No. 6, 8.0; No. 10, 8.7; No. 12, 7.7. The dams are up.

FOULOIS SCORED IN PLANE DEAL

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP.)—A sub-committee of House investigators reported unanimously today that Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps, acted in "clear violation of existing law" in the proposed purchase of airplanes cotsing $7,500,000.

Coupled with the criticism of Foulois was a commendation of Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war.

No recommendation was made in this first formal report on the committee's probe into War Department expenditures since 1926. Future recommendations were promised.

The report recalled that late in 1933, the PWA set aside $7,500,000 for the purchase of Army airplanes. It asserted that Foulois had decided to buy the planes, without competition, from the Northrup Corporation, the Boeing Airplane Company and the Glenn L. Martin Company.

On Woodring's insistence, the plan for direct purchases was dropped and specifications drawn on which competitive bids were asked.

CIVILIANS FLY MAIL TONIGHT

CHICAGO, May 7.—(AP.)—Private air lines today made ready to resume flying the United States mails under government contract.

The first mail will be loaded aboard high speed air liners of the United Air Lines soon after midnight tonight and the first plane will take off with mail for the East at 1:30 a. m. A westbound plane will depart an hour later.

Notice of resumption of air mail service out of Pittsburgh has not been received here, according to an official at the County Airport.

PINCHOT GETS $6,000,000 FOR ROAD

Huge Plan Announced To Take Up Slack Of CWA Failure

HARRISBURG, May 7.—(AP.)—A $6,000,000 building program, to be started "without delay" was announced today by Gov. Pinchot.

The Governor said it is desired to provide work for as many men as possible to takeup some of the employment slack caused by the abolition of the Civil Works Administration.

He estimated that approximately 1,000 miles of highways, primarily cheap type "farm roads," will be constructed.

Money for the work will come from the motor fund, which contains $12,500,000 more now than a year ago. Pinchot said:

"Since the CWA was abolished against my vigorous protest and since the local works division has been obliged to cut down the number of workers it could employ in spite of the extra federal money I was able to get, this administration has been trying to find work on the roads to take up the slack.

"After much consideration, we finally succeeded in setting aside the money for a $6,000,000 program of road building."

The Governor said the so-called "Pinchot roads," which serve rural communities, cost between $7,500 and $8,000 a mile.

During the present administration about 12,000 miles of farm roads and 2,250 miles of more expensive highways have been built.

State Delays Rehiring Of RWD Men

The Relief Work Division program was practically at a standstill today as a committee of "white collar workers" prepared to appeal to President Roosevelt against alleged "bungling, mismanagement and discrimination."

A few hundred men are being continued on the RWD work here, but with one exception the projects are actually "outlawed," according to Philip H. Lantz, deputy RWD director.

Although they have $837,000 to spend for the work program, officials cannot re-employe the RWD workers because Harrisburg has not stated which projects should be resumed, Lantz said.

At a meeting yesterday, the white collar workers named a committee headed by Robert Bruce, of 815 Mifflin avenue, Wilkinsburg, to go to Harrisburg and Washington. Assurances have been received, they said, that President Roosevelt will grant them an audience Wednesday.

SENATE GROUP O. K.'S LOAN BILL

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP.)—A bill to create a $250,000,000 revolving fund in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for direct five-year loans to industry was approved today by the Senate Banking Committee.

Meanwhile, the House Banking Committee was told in a letter from Chairman Jones of the RFC that President Roosevelt still favored letting the corporation make direct loans to industry.

The new industrial loan bill was approved by the Senate committee without a record vote.

Senator Barkley (Dem.), of Kentucky, said he probably would offer it as an amendment to the Glass bill pending in the Senate, which would provide a $280,000,000 fund in the Federal Reserve Bank for similar loans.

The RFC bill, recommended by Jones, is more liberal in its loan terms than the Federal Reserve Board bill introduced by Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia.

MIDDLE-AGED FATHER ATTAINS RANK OF EAGLE SCOUT

Son Pins Medal on Parent Who Rivaled Boy's Achievement

Reversing the usual order of such things, a son of L. Herbert Smith, of 4265 Andover terrace, Oakland, pinned an Eagle band of Scout proficiency on his father's uniform.

Smith, an advertising man until the depression forced him out of business, joined his two Boy Scout sons in their activities two years ago. He was middle-aged and had never been a scout, but he set out to equal the feat of his oldest son, H. Rex Smith, in attaining the Eagle rank, the highest in the Scout world.

Smith's enthusiasm in scouting work has also resulted in his appointment as a deputy scout commissioner of his district. Praising the community fund, which finances scout activities here, Smith said:

"The life of a business is exciting with victories and defeats, but it doesn't compare with learning to build a fire without matches and tying 20 different kinds of knots."

Cannon Sounds Dry Fight Call, Blames Mellon

JACKSON, Miss., May 7.—(AP.)—Addressing a prohibition rally yesterday in Municipal Auditorium, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, urged a militant stand for re-enactment of national prohibition and blamed its breakdown principally upon lack of federal enforcement.

He said President Herbert Hoover on his inauguration day "made the statement that he stood for national prohibiton and would enforce it. That gave us hope. He added:

"But that same day the President sent the name of Andrew W. Mellon to the Senate for Secretary of the Treasury. I said, then, the President will find some way to see to it that Mr. Mellon does not control this budget.'

"Mr. Mellon never believed in the Eighteenth Amendment, but he served as head of the prohibition department during its nearly 12 years, as enforcement officer.

"Had President Hoover gone before Congress and said, 'I am going to enforce this law' and had asked Congress for a hundred million dollars to enforce it with, he would have gotten it."

The bishop was warmly applauded as he offered a challenge to the wets of, "No surrender, no retreat and no compromise." The auditorium, with a seating capacity of around 3,000, was filled.

Brakeman Snatches Girl From Death on Trestle

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., May 7.—(AP.)—A hero in overalls who rescued an 8-year-old girl from the path of a train on a railroad trestle will be nominated for a Carnegie medal.

Representatives of the Denver Post who investigated the rescue announced today Milton C. Pressey, railroad brakeman, will receive a gold medal from the newspaper and his name will be sent to the Carnegie Foundation for consideration.

Pressey, riding on the front fender of a switch engine, saw the girl midway in the trestle in the path of the oncoming locomotive. He reached out, caught the girl under the arms and swept her aboard the locomotive.

The child, Ellen Broyles, of Colorado Springs, was unhurt except for a few scratches.

As Pressey placed her on the ground after the switch train was brought to a halt, she said:

"I guess I better run home to my mamma."

She started to dash toward her home a short distance away, then quickly returned to Pressey and said:

"Thank you very much."

The brakeman said:

"Shucks, I only did what any man would have done in my place."

TWO WOMEN DIE, 16 HURT AS BUS, TROLLEY COLLIDE

PITTSBURGHER INJURED IN OHIO CRASH

Tire Blowout Blamed By Coach Official; Probe Launched

FREMONT, O., May 7.—(AP.)—A head-on collision between a motor stage and an interurban car near here yesterday cost the lives of two of the bus passengers and the injury of 16 other persons.

The dead are:

SHANK, MRS. GRACELLA B., Trenton, N. J.

FREEMAN, MISS GLADYS, 23, North Bergen, N. J.

Those seriously injured are:

CORAK, JOHN, Braddock, Pa.

HUMPHREY, MRS. DOROTHY, Pittsburgh.

YEIGH, DAVID, 31, Euclid, O., driver of the bus.

The accident occurred at Clyde, O., eight miles east of here.

Witnesses said the stage was proceeding at a nominal rate of speed as a car of the Lake Shore Electric Railroad approached it from the east. The interurban tracks bisect the highway at this point.

E. C. Stotz, motorman of the interurban, said the bus was on its own side of the road until it was within 10 yards of the car. Then, he said, it suddenly swerved, shearing off its left side as it struck the interurban.

At Cleveland, P. K. Wadsworth, president of the bus company, said he presumed a tire on the bus blew out, throwing it out of control and into the path of the interurban. The left front tire was found flat after the collision.

An inquest will be held today.

County and state authorities gathered here today to examine the shattered remnants of the large cross-country bus of Great Eastern Stages, Inc.

Authorities, seeking the cause of the accident, were hampered by the fact that Yeigh, driver of the bus, remained unconscious in the hospital here.

Mrs. Humphrey, an expectant mother, was rushed to the Bellevue Memorial Hospital, near Cleveland, where she is expected to recover. The hospital reports her address as Pittsburgh. The Braddock man, Corak, of Corey avenue, will also recover, the doctors say.

BOY SHOT, RUM FEUD BLAMED

Police today blamed a feud of small-time bootleggers for the shooting of Bernard Masulo, 18, of 921 Bedford avenue, rear, who is in the Mercy Hospital in serious condition with bullet wounds in the abdomen and back.

Pete Lombardo, 42, of Webster avenue, reported by police to be a partner of Masulo in bootlegging activities, was hunted in connection with the shooting.

Police Lieut. Burt Renn said he learned Masulo and Lombardo hed been at odds because Lombardo "welched" on paying $200 to Masulo for "taking the rap" for a state liquor law violation.

Last night as Masulo was standing with his brother Ross, 21, in front of a restaurant at 72 Washington street, according to police, Lombardo drove up in a car and fired five shots at Bernard Masulo. Two of them took effect.

The machine then crashed into a telephone pole and, police say, Lombardo fled down Washington street.

Police later picked up Vincent Gumino, 20, of 1827 Cliff street, said to be the owner of the automobile. He was held as a material witness.

PAL OF MILLENS BLAMES 'SPELL'

International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., May 7.—Abe Faber, exhibiting his claim to insanity from the witness stand at his murder trial, today told of being spellbound by Murton Millen, his schoolmate and fellow defendant.

Faber frankly admitted a part in the Needham Trust Company robbery, in which two policemen were slain.

Faber, on trial with the Millen brothers, Murton and Irving, testified he did not think he was wrong in taking part in the Needham robbery and murder. William R. Scharton, defense counsel, asked:

"Don't you feel guilty now?"

"No."

"You know you were in the bank and yet you don't feel guilty"

"I have no feeling at all about the matter."

Millen Plea Denied By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today refused to interfere with the trial of Irving and Murton Millen and Abraham Faber in Dedham, Mass.

The high court acted in two petitions in the case, which has created intense feeling in New England. It also denied a motion to stay the trial in Dedham pending final decision in the habeas corpus proceeding.

WOODIN BURIED AT BERWICK

International News Service.

BERWICK, Pa., May 7.—William H. Woodin, the cheerful former Secretary of the Treasury, who piloted the nation through the great banking crisis, lay buried by his parents today.

Thousands stood with bowed heads as his body was laid to rest in the family mausoleum in the Pine Grove Cemetery here yesterday under a blazing sun.

His final resting place was but a few hundred yards from his birthplace and not much farther from the factory where he began his industrial career.

So great was the crowd of mourners that not a half of those who sought to view the body as it lay in state gained entrance to the First Presbyterian Church. Bespeaking the city's loss over Woodin's death, the Rev. Dr. Paul M. Harrison, who conducted the brief services, said:

"The world at large knew him as a genius in finance and industry, one to be trusted and honored by the President of his country, to meet with wisdom a national crisis. But the citizens of Berwick have ever looked upon him as one of their own to help them in every time of need."

Keenan Speeds By Air to Join Dillinger Hunt

CHICAGO, May 7.—(AP.)—The federal government sprang afresh into the John Dillinger hunt today, bent on a supreme effort to bring the desperate machine gunning outlaw to justice.

Joseph B. Keenan, the government's hard-hitting prosecutor of kidnapers and gangsters, arrived on the scene, hurrying by airplane from Philadelphia. Keenan said:

"Dillinger has had the breaks so far, but they are bound to go against him sooner or later."

A special "flying squad" of city detectives and agents of the State's Attorney's office joined the federal forces in pushing the search for the Dillinger lair.

Keenan planned to confer with Melvin Purvis, head of the local office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who is directing the government agents in their hunt for the elusive gunman. Keenan asserted, however, that his chief attention would be devoted to the case of Samuel Insull, former utilities head, and the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker.

Meanwhile the Dillinger "flying squad" headed by Serg. Frank Reynolds struck here and there in Chicago yesterday at suspected hideouts of Dillinger's band of mobsters.

The results, however, were nil.

GLAND GRAFTING MADE STRAUS 'ACT LIKE BOY'

Wife, 36, Says Broker, 81, Embarrassed Her After Operations

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Ferdinand Straus, wealthy 81-yeear-old insurance broker, was "so giddy and gay" after a monkey gland operation that he embarrassed his 36-year-old wife, she charges.

Mrs. Straus made the statement through her lawyer in reply to an affidavit filed by Straus alleging that she conspired with a sweetheart to marry him for his money. Straus filed his affidavit after his wife had sued him for $15,000 a year alimony and $10,000 counsel fees pending a separation suit.

'ACTED LIKE BOY OF 15'

Mrs. Straus' statement declared:

"The first monkey gland operation, performed by Dr. Adolph Steinart (thought to be a mistake for Steinach. Dr. Steinach is a famous Vienna gland specialist) in Vienna shortly before our marriage in 1928 was a success, but it made Straus so full of pep that he acted like a boy of 15. He was so giddy and gay it was embarrassing to me.

"The effect of the operation wore off about eight months later. Then he had a second operation, which was also successful, but while he was rejuvenated by that operation also, the stimulus was voided by a heart attack he suffered."

ALLEGES CONSPIRACY

Straus' affidavit quoted a letter from a man named Amide Pali, supposed to have introduced Straus to his wife. The letter, Straus claimed, was indication of a conspiracy between Pali and Mrs. Straus. The affidavit said:

"She married me for the sole purpose of obtaining and extorting from me as much money as she possibly could. This, I believe, was in pursuance to an alleged conspiracy with a paramour."

HEIRESS AGAIN BLAMES LIQUOR

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—(AP.)—Informed depositions were en route here that she had had only one drink of beer prior to her marriage to Frank Van Eiszner, Chicago socialite, Merry Farney Pickering Van Eiszner, patent medicine heiress, declared today:

"I don't care who says it or how many. I was under the influence of some liquid before I married Van Eiszner and I never lived with him as his wife.

"I never loved him, don't now and besides I was engaged to another man at the time."

She said her fiance at the time she wed Van Eiszner last November near Chicago was a South American.

Her petition to have the marriage annulled is to be heard here May 25. She filed the action shortly after coming here to launch a film career. Illness has prevented her starting screen work.

Stunt flying, races and parachute jumps, with many men and women pilots of the Pittsburgh district participating, thrilled thousands of air-minded Allegheny Countians at Bettis Field yesterday.

An extra thrill, not on the program, came when Donnie Marshall was injured as his parachute "wind-slipped" and hurled him to the ground. He escaped with a slight laceration.

Miss Helen MacCloskey, Pittsburgh aviatrix, and Jack Morris won the speed events. Mrs. Rae Trader and Stella Sullivan, well-known aviatrixes, participated. Bob Pyper, 17, youngest pilot in Western Pennsylvania, also participated.

Home of Wireless Visited by Marconi

BOLOGNA, Italy, May 7.—(AP.)—The inventor Guglielmo Marconi was visibly moved when he visited for the first time in nearly 30 years the villa where in 1896, as a young man of 22, he invented the wireless.

The villa, called "Grifone," is at Pompepio, eight miles from Bologna, where Marconi came to receive an honorary degree from the University of Bologna.

Romance Still Beckoning for Charlie Chaplin

By TED SMITS

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—Romance still beckons for Charlie Chaplin.

The start of his long projected and equally long delayed new picture remains still in the hazy future.

But the master of pantomine has been too busy squiring Paulette Goddard, the tall beauty he has chosen for his next leading lady, to go before the camera.

The two are seen frequently together, and, chaperoned by friends, have gone on long cruises up and down the California coast in Chaplin's yacht.

Rumors that they have, in fact, been married aboard the boat abound in Hollywood but they have been stoutly denied.

Chaplin has let it be known that not all his time during the past year has been spent playing court to Paulette. On the contrary, the great comedian has done something he has never done before—he has prepared a complete script for his next picture, which, like his last few efforts, will be "silent" in that there will be no talking. There will be "sound effects," however, and music, much of which Chaplin himself wrote or suggested. Chaplin told a friend:

"All my 'gags' are ready now. I can make my picture in six weeks."

The Chaplin studio has been renovated, cameras and equipment has been overhauled, Chaplin's private studio, where he watches his own work each day, has been completely remade—and what is more important, Paulette Goddard's dressing room has been completed.

TELL HEPBURN DIVORCE PLANS

Universal Service.

MEXICO CITY, May 7.—Katharine Hepburn, crimson-crested cinema star, will obtain an air-tight divorce decree from her husband, Ludlow Ogden Smith, in Merida, Yucatan, Mexico City legal experts predicted today.

A reputable lawyer said Miss Hepburn's action will set a precedent for legal precautions, and cited it as an interesting example of the principle of divorce by mutual consent, which is well recognized by Mexican jurisprudence.

Experts said the screen actress was wise in safeguarding her prospective decree by notifying her husband and giving him opportunity to be represented formally by counsel.

Miss Hepburn appeared before the Second Civil Court in Merida after having duly established residence at a hotel, a requisite under Mexican law frequently overlooked by ill-advised American divorce seekers.

There is still another precaution before her—certification of the signatures on her prospective decree by the American consul at Merida.

Girls and Orchestra Stranded by 'Chief'

JEAN HARLOW QUITS THIRD HUSBAND

Goes Home to Mother; Divorce Action To Follow

There is no other man or woman."

WAS SUPERBLY HAPPY

Her statement was in sharp contrast to the radiance of her honeymoon declaration last September when she and Rosson returned here by airplane from their marriage in Yuma, Ariz., and greeted newspaper men. She said then:

"I am superbly happy."

Miss Harlow's first husband was Charles F. McGrew II, Chicago socialite, whom she married when she was a co-ed at a young woman's finishing school in Illinois. They were divorced.

Her second husband, Paul Bern, movie executive, shot and killed himself in their palatial home here September 5, 1932, two months after they were married.

Where Miss Harlow will file suit for divorce she did not announce. Friends said that she had not yet determined where to seek the proposed decree.

ELOPE BY AIR

Miss Harlow and Rosson sped through the darkness in a romantic airplane elopement and were married at 4:30 o'clock in the morning at Yuma. Blase and generally well-informed Hollywood was amazed, not realizing that the studio friendship between the star and he "ace" cameraman had led to love.

The platinum blonde explained that she fell in love with Rosson while he was photographing her in romantic screen plays, and that they had decided to elope and get married overnight because both were busy with their film work. Several times previously they had planned marriage, Miss Harlow said. She had explained as she stepped from an airplane with her new husband:

"We had been friends for nearly two years. Several months ago our friendship became love. We decided last night to elope to Yuma by plane and get married, because we were both terribly busy with our film work."

But at the studios associates revealed the "inside story" of the romance between the star and her cameraman—a story of his love at first sight and how he never stopped trying to win the girl of his dreams until finally she said "yes."

Rosson today remained silent, preferring to let his beautiful wife do the talking and explain the reasons for their separation.

Harlow's Chauffeur Runs Amuck With Gun

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—Aftermath of a sensational midnight escapade near Los Angeles harbor, Clifton E. Davis, Negro chauffeur for Jean Harlow, platinum blonde film star, was in the County Jail today booked on suspicion of kidnaping, robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Piecing together the story from deputy sheriffs and from Davis, Authorities said that Davis had driven a wedding party to a yacht in Miss Harlow's car and was returning to Hollywood when he ran down his motorcycle escort, officer Arthur H. McBain, of Beverly Hills.

Davis halted and flagged down another automobile. Taking McBain's gun, the deputies reported, he forced Eli Goldson, a special Deputy Sheriff and Archie Phillips, who were in the second car, to help lift the injured McBain into the Harlow machine.

Suddenly, the officers said, Davis ran amuck with the gun, shouting and cursing everyone in the crowd that gathered. Officers said he struck Mrs. Evelyn Barnes, a bystander. Wilmington police overpowered and manacled Davis.

BENNETT WIRES WIFE 'LOVE'

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—Richard Bennett, veteran actor, has left Hollywood temporarily, but he still loves his wife, it was revealed today by her attorneys. One of Bennett's lawyers said:

"We have our scouts looking for him in Phoenix, Ariz. We haven't been able to get in touch with him for several days. Our only clue is a telegram."

The telegram addressed to Mrs. Bennett from Phoenix and signed "Dick" read:

"Darling, can't you find some place in your heart to adjudicate this cul de sac? I love you."

Mrs. Bennett's attorneys said the "cul de sac" referred to was her suit for separate maintenance in which she charged that Bennett was a man "of maniacal moods," once had stabbed her through the cheek with a nail file and had threatened to kill her.

Ship That Lost 4 Towed Into Harbor

VICTORIA, B. C., May 7.—(AP.)—Safe at last from the combined hazards of stormy seas and the clutching sands at the mouth of the Columbia River, the battered and wrecked Norwegian motorship Childar lay in Esquimalt Harbor today.

Her master, Capt. J. Mathiasen, and three of his men still were aboard the wrecked freighter. Three others were washed overboard and a fourth killed aboard ship when she grounded Thursday night.

GERMAN GROUP FOR SCHNADER, HITS PINCHOT

The regular Republican and Democratic statewide primary slates with the exception of one candidate, have been indorsed by the Allegheny County German-American Federation. Action was taken yesterday at which speakers said they would oppose Gov. Pinchot for the United States Senate because Mrs. Pinchot had appeared on the same platform with an anti-Hitler speaker.

Judge Frank M. Trexler, of the Superior Court, was indorsed both as a Republican and Democrat. John A. Gloekner, one of the speakers, told the audience it had a chance to "put one of our own boys in the Governor's chair now," and an indorsement was given Attorney General William A. Schnader for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

In addition to Senator Reed, M. Harvey Taylor for Secretary of Internal Affairs, and Senator Harry B. Scott, for Lieutenant Governor, the same ticket backed by the Mellon-Guffey-Vare Republican organization.

BACKS GUFFEY, EARLE

Among the Democrats indorsement was given George E. Earle, for Governor; Joseph F. Guffey, for United States Senate; Thomas Kennedy, for Lieutenant Governor, and Thomas A. Logue, for Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Quinn, on the Democratic ticket, were indorsed. Capt. D. C. Davies was indorsed on the Republican ticket in the Thirty-second District, and Marion McKay was indorsed on the Democratic ticket.

In the Thirty-fourth District, Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, who had previously received indorsements on both tickets, was given the Democratic indorsement only and Charles M. Christler was indorsed on the Republican slate.

The Children's Hospital, DeSota street, Oakland, will observe National Hospital Day by holding an "open house" Saturday.

Nurses and doctors plan to show the public how they care for their 125 children patients and how hundreds of other children, many of them tiny babies, receive medical care at clinics.

They hope the public will help the work with gifts. The need is great, they point out, since the parents of about 80 percent of the children aided cannot pay for their care.

For the hospital's benefit, 4,000 women throughout the Pittsburgh district will conduct the twenty-fourth annual Flower Day, Saturday, May 19.

A revolt against efforts of political bosses to dictate candidates and policies will result in the nomination of Thomas W. Phillips for Governor on the Republican ticket, Randolph W. Childs, Phillips' campaign manager, said: "If the Republican party is to regain and maintain the confidence of the people it must turn to new leaders—leaders who are of the highest integrity, who are humane, courageous and unbossed."

Green Proves Jinx Color For Carnegie Doctor

When Dr. S. P. Balcerzak, of Carnegie, looks at a green automobile, he sees red. This in spite of the fact that the doctor's vision is normal.

The explanation of the paradox can be given in three chapters, each dealing with green-colored cars which the doctor once owned.

The first was destroyed in a fire that swept his garage two days after his fire insurance policy expired. When the steering gear locked in the second it ran over a cliff and landed in a junk yard.

Number three was stolen. Recovered in a damaged condition by the police, it was repaired and 10 days later ended up in a collision and was completely wrecked.

Dr. Balcerzak has come through the catastrophes without a scratch. But he's taken his last ride in a green car.

SCHNADER AID IN QUIZ HERE REVEALED

"Distinguished, fair-minded and non-partisan service" in public life fit Attorney General William A. Schnader to be Governor, Attorney William R. Scott declared to an audience in a noonday meeting in Schnader headquarters. Schnader is one of the many candidates for Republican nomination.

Scott was a member of the executive committee of the original Citizens Committee which pushed the City Department of Supplies investigation. In speaking for Schnader he referred to this incident when he said:

"I had occasion to consult him on behalf of the Citizens Committee in their efforts to correct conditions in the city of Pittsburgh with a view to the appointment of a special deputy Attorney General to aid us.

"Although this became unnecessary, his willingness to cooperate and his fair-minded attitude in connection with the whole matter, even at a sacrifice of possible political advantage to himself by acting otherwise, is one instance of his complete subordination of political motives to what he felt to be the discharge of his official duty.

"He has drafted, or supervised the drafting of, as much important legislation as any attorney general within my recollection, and I think the bar and courts generally agree, has done it to the extreme satisfaction of all concerned and with a view to the protection of the public's interest.

"I believe he knows as much about the commonwealth's affairs and problems as any other man in it, and brings as competent a training and as fair-minded an attitude toward the many problems which it now faces as any man within it.

"While some of the other candidates by the appeal to various groups may have managed to keep themselves before the public more than Mr. Schnader, he, prior to the present time, has attempted nothing of the sort, but until the beginning of this campaign has devoted himself exclusively to the proper and efficient discharge of his official duties and the practice of his own profession with what little time remained from his public service."

The nomination of reactionary Democratic candidates will be fatal to the progress of the New Deal, City Controller S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, declared today.

Davis, campaigning for the Democratic nomination of Joseph F. Guffey for United States Senator and George H. Earle for Governor, said:

"The banking-utility interests are in a desperate conspiracy to obstruct President Roosevelt and his administration and to defeat the will of the people of Pennsylvania.

"Reactionary candidates must be repudiated no matter what political label they bear."

Guffey, Earle and the rest of their slate must be placed in office if the President's recovery policies are to be carried out, Wilson said. He continued:

"Philadelphia had its Vare, Pittsburgh has its Mellon. Your problem can be solved by destroying the Mellon machine in Pittsburgh."

Wilson will speak tonight in Wilkinsburg and tomorrow in McKeesport. Guffey and Earle come to Pittsburgh Thursday.

VOTERS LEAGUE FOR FERRANTE

Dr. Frank C. Ferrante, candidate for Congress in the Thirty-fourth District, has been notified of his indorsement by the Executive Committee of the Voters League of the Twelfth Legislative District.

Dr. Ferrante is proposing that war debts to debtor nations be cancelled by this country if the debtors purchase from industries here in the next decade products totaling the amounts of their debts.

This would generally better business conditions by pouring millions of dollars into this country, Ferrante said. He contended that Allegheny County would be one of the chief benefactors.

INSULL SPEEDED WEST TO FACE U. S. CHARGES

$150,000 they could furnish it, but that if it amounted to more than that they would "have to see about it."

On the Coast Guard cutter Hudson, to which Insull was transferred from the Exilona at Ambrose Lightship at 6:47 a. m., he issued the first statement discussing the charges against him in Chicago.

His opening remark in the statement was:

"I am here in America to make the most important fight of my life—not only for freedom, but for complete vindication."

FIRST STATEMENT

Before handing the statement to reporters, Insull told them:

"This is the first statement I've made on either side of the Atlantic in relation to my case. Anything else has been faked."

Arrangements for meeting the former utilities magnate were made by the State Department and were intended to be secret.

However, when the transfer was made one airplane and two seaplanes soared overhead. Two tugs and two yachts maneuvered about.

The Coast Guard cutter Hudson left the Battery, New York, at 10 p. m. yesterday, with newspapermen, State Department officials and young Insull aboard. It tied up at the public health station at Quarantine until 4 a. m. and then set out to meet Insull's ship.

DRAMATIC MEETING

As the cutter drew alongside the Exilona at the break of dawn, the gray-haired Insull could be seen for a moment on an upper deck. He disappeared almost immediately and somebody aboard the Hudson shouted to a sailor:

"Tell Insull his son is here."

The sailor disappeared and Insull came running on to the deck, shouting:

"Where is my son? Where is my son?"

Young Insull clambered up a ladder on to the Exilona, up another ladder and to the deck. His father shouted:

"Hello, boy!"

Both of them were visibly shaken. They embraced.

After the Insulls had breakfasted and a few pieces of baggage had been transferred, the aged prisoner was brought aboard the Hudson. Both the Hudson and the Exilona were rolling in a rough sea, and the ladder which connected them slid precariously from side to side.

Insull was assisted by sailors on the Exilona as he made his way down the ladder and was grabbed by sailors of the Hudson as soon as they could reach him. Others watched the scene with nervousness.

On the Hudson, Insull was besieged by photographers, who found him ready and willing to pose, but unwilling to let them run the show. He told one of them:

"Get away; I'll run this. This is my show and this is my mug. I've got a proprietary interest in it."

Insull and his son, along with other former officers of the Insull utilities companies are under federal indictment charging use of the mails to defraud and violation of the bankruptcy act. He is also under state indictment charged with larceny and embezzlement.

IRONIC WELCOME

The Goddess of Liberty, who smiles welcome to the humblest immigrant, held an ironic torch today for Insull, runaway Midas and patron of classic song, come home at last to face the music.

Once he came—a young Englishman then—to a New York full of hopes and dreams. He returned today a broken man of 74, his Midas touch gone and the maledictions of half a million investors ringing, like swelling dissonances, about his head.

The government of the United States provided a welcoming committee—officers who moved secretly to take him from the steamer Exilona and start him quickly overland to Chicago, where charges carrying long prison sentences have been placed against him.

The Exilona, aboard which Insull was delivered by the government of Turkey on demand of the United States, arrived off Sandy Hook during the night. She had proceeded slowly for several hours before that, so as not to reach quarantine ahead of the officers assigned to take the onetime king of utilities in charge.

Aboard the cutter carrying the government men was Insull's son who himself is under the indictment in connection with the collapse of the Insull utilities empire.

The government kept perfect secrecy of its plans. It had been feared that young Insull might be planning some legal strategy to snatch his father from his guards and seek to delay or perhaps prevent the transfer of the elder Insull to the jurisdiction of the Chicago courts.

One reason advanced for the government's procedure was to protect the aged man from any possible attempt to harm him. So many thousands of men and women lost their savings in Insull investments, it was pointed out, that the government feared some one among the number, unbalanced by personal loss, might constitute a threat to Insull's safety.

Insull arrived from his months of flight in custody of Burton Y. Berry, a secretary of the American legation at Istanbul, who has been Insull's keeper-guard on the Exilona's leisurely journey from Turkey. The utilities man's wife, who aided him in his fight against extradition in Greece, is expected to follow him to America within two or three months.

On his last night at sea Insull retired shortly before midnight, with a ship's officer on guard at his door and with Berry in the adjoining cabin.

When young Insull arrived at the barge office last night to board the government cutter he carried an overnight bag, a raincoat and a book. He said:

"I always pick up a book when starting a journey. Just any book that's handy."

The book he carried as he set out to meet his father was the life of Henry Morgan, the buccaneer.

The charges against Insull are numerous, all growing out of his operation of the many and far flung utilities concerns. Taking precedence over all chargegs will be that of the government, which alleges Insull used the mails to defraud.

The government hopes to bring Insull to trial by next fall or earlier. Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney general and the government's prosecutor of kidnapers, is in Chicago today in connection with the case.

Keenan said the government will ask that bond of $200,000 be set.

Insull's return to Chicago finds a sharp change in his former status as a leading citizen, utilities wizard and music patron. The skyscraper opera house he built to give Chicago one of the world's greatest auditoriums for the presentation of music drama no longer houses the famous opera company which he, more than any other, sponsored. Some of the great stars of the company's halcyon days saw their fortunes swept away in the Insull companies' debacle. Since the Insull largess has benn denied it, opera in the grand manner has waned in Chicago.

Insull Opens 'Greatest Fight of Life'

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—As Samuel Insull arrived in America today, he issued the following statement in his own defense:

I am back in America to make the most important fight of my life—not only for freedom but for complete vindication.

Two years ago, when I left this country, there were no charges against me.

When I left, the companies, which over a period of 40 years I had helped build, were in the process of reorganization. The terrific stresses of the depression and mistakes which I made in an honest effort to protect these companies and the investors in them, made the reorganization necessary.

Arbitrarily, I had been instructed to resign the head of these companies which I had built and which I had tried to protect.

I was told that I was no longer needed. Tired from the fruitless struggles to save the investments of thousands of men and women, discouraged in my attempts to save the investments of my friends and associates as well as everything I had, I got out.

I wanted to rest. I knew then that the work of reorganization by the new management of the companies from which I had been asked to resign would be hampered if I remained. Policies and administration plans were being altered to meet conditions I had not forseen. The new management was entitled to a free hand, unembarrassed by suggestions from me.

SAMUEL INSULL, SR.

No charges were brought against me until I had been away for three months. My return at that time would have further complicated the problems of the reorganization of the companies.

Charges against me grew out of my business operations. My trial, I felt prior to a reorganization and readjustment of the companies' troubles, would hinder this reconstruction. This to me, was far more important than my fate because it affected the investments of thousands of people.

Then, too, from my own point of view, I was confident that my trial would be simplified if all the facts about the companies were known first and their reconstruction were well under way before I was forced to face charges which had been placed against me.

I have erred, but my greatest error was in underestimating the effect of the financial panic on American securities and particularly on the companies I was working so hard to build. I worked with all my energies to save those companies. I made mistakes, but they were honest mistakes. They were errors in judgment, but not dishonest manipulation.

The whole story has not yet been told. You only know the charges of the prosecution. Not one word has been uttered in even feeble defense of me. And it must be obvious that there also is my side of the story.

When it is told in court, my judgment may be discredited, but certainly my honesty will be vindicated.

TWO WARRANTS ISSUED FOR INSULL

CHICAGO, May 7.—(AP.)—Federal Judge Phillip L. Sullivan today issued two bench warrants for the arrest of Samuel Insull, Sr. One charged using the mails to defraud and the other violation of the federal bankruptcy laws.

No bonds were set in thhe warrants, issued at the request of Leo J. Hassenauer, Acting United States District Attorney. The warrants were expected to be served on Insull when he arrives tomorrow.

BOND CONFERENCE

Before the warrants were issued Attorney Floyd E. Thompson, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme Court, conferred with Forrest A. Harness, Special Assistant United States Attorney General, in regard to the setting of bond for Insull and procedure in the case.

Insull, a prisoner, homeward bound to the city where he was for years an uncrowned king, faces a reception of an alleged criminal.

When he arrives he will be finger-printed, and then must give bail to keep out of jail.

The guards who are racing across the continent with him will surrender him to United States Marshal Laubenheimer, who will sign a receipt for the prisoner. Then Cook County is at liberty to serve warrants charging him with more offenses.

Four charge are against the deposed utility king, involving the juggling of many millions of dollars. The government will try him for defrauding investors by mail, in the sale of paper of the Corporation Securities, Inc., and with fraudulently removing assets of the same firm while it was insolvent.

150 YEARS IN PRISON

Cook County adds two charges of embezzlement. A total maximum punishment of 150 years in prison could be meted out. A few years could be a life sentence for the 74-year-old man.

If Insull is unable to make bond, he faces the prospect of spending time in jail. Special Assistant Attorney General Harness, who pursued Insull to Greece but could not get him, said the government, in view of its many troubles, would ask a high bond, possibly $100,000.

Seventeen other defendants, all in Chicago's financial blue book, will go on trial with Insull, Sr., on the mail fraud charges. Harness said the government would not consent to allowing Insull a separate trial, and would ask for early action in the matter.

HISTORY OF INSULL CASE

Associated Press.

The story of Samuel Insull's present difficulties begins April 15, 1932, when a receiver was named for the Insull-controlled Middlewest Utilities. It continues:

October 4—Indicted in Illinois for embezzlement.

October 5—Fled to Greece from Paris, where he had arrived June 22, after learning of indictment.

October 10—Arrested in Athens. Freed when Greece decided American-Grecian extradition pact invalid.

1933

October 31—Appeal Court in Athens held for Insull after United States sought him of federal indictment for bankruptcy laws violation.

December 5—Greek cabinet, fearing international complications, ordered Insull to leave before January 1, 1934. Pleas of illness won extensions.

1934

March 10.—Insull "definitely" ordered out by March 15.

March 14—Hair and mustache blacked, Insull walked through guards undetected and boarded the tramp freighter Maiotis.

March 16—Apprehended aboard Maiotis. Returned to Athens. Papers adjusted. Called March 17.

April 2—Jailed by Turkish authorities at Istanbul.

April 14—Sailed a prisoner aboard S. S. Exilona at Smyrna.

May 7—Arrived at New York.

Insull Gets Cautious In Seasickness Fear

NEW YORK, May 7.—(INS.)—Samuel Insull, whose 21-month exile took him into many strange ports and many strange climes, feared the trip aboard the cutter from the Exilona to shore today would make him seasick.

He made this confession when reporters asked him why he had skimped on his last breakfast aboard the freighter. He had only half an orange and a cup of coffee.

INSULL UPSET BY SON'S HUG

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull broke a phlegmatic silence when he met his son today.

The reunion took place after Samuel Insull, Jr., clambered aboard the Exilona from the Coast Guard cutter Hudson. Before that, the aged prisoner was seemingly indifferent to proceedings.

Father and son embraced. There were tears in the senior Insull's eyes as he turned to newspapermen who had accompanied him from abroad. His introduction was:

"Gentlemen, my brother—I mean my son."

After that, Insull seemed cheerful—almost jaunty.

Junior Birdmen Inaugurate Flight Squadron Plan Today; Members to Organize Own Units!

By J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Greetings, Junior Birdmen! Every boy and every girl likes to meet in groups, likes to be a leader and be combative and competitive in those sports which he or she enjoys most. And so it is with junior aviation, for after all, it is a sport. A sport for the youth of the country who are air-minded. And now the Junior Birdmen of America, which has organized to promote and encourage junior aviation and aeronautics in the United States under the sponsorship of Mr. William Randolph Hearst, is ready to give its members an opportunity to meet such groups, become real leaders and be combative and competitive in this new national sport. So, with today's column we inaugurate the Junior Birdmen flight squadron plan.

This plan will make use of the quality and characteristic found in every red-blooded American boy and girl—the quality we know as enthusiasm, the characteristic we know as loyalty. The Junior Birdmen flight squadron will foster closer friendship between members and their local wing commanders and lend itself admirably to inter-group competitions, such as model plane contests between squadrons; and an opportunity for boys and girls in schools, churches, communities and neighborhoods to group together under more personal direction for advanced instruction and guidance in their model building and aviation work.

Build Your Squadron Today

Every member of the Junior Birdmen has received with their membership wings, cards and letters, a leaflet explaining in detail just how they can build a flight squadron of their own. But for you countless number of young Americans who are probably still holding aloof from affiliating themselves with our organization until such time as you may know more about our plans and development—well, now is the time and here is the plan and development that will make you want to send in your application for membership at once.

Any boy or any girl who is a member of the Junior Birdmen of America may organize and build his or her own flight squaddon. Members may carry on their flight squadron program by themselves, without the assistance of an adult sponsor. But, it may be more advisable for you to have an adult who will take an interest in your membership and your work and help conduct the affairs of your unit. In your leaflet you will find that our plan includes flight squadron sponsors for those units who may wish to carry on in this way.

It is easy enough to form a unit of your own. All that you need do is obtain 19 members in addition to yourself, send in their names, addresses, ages and membership numbers, enclose 25 cents for your charter, officers bars and book of rules and regulations, and we do the rest. That's easy all right!

20 Members Required In Each Unit

Twenty members are necessary to start a flight squadron and that is why I stated above 19 in addition to yourself. Perhaps you don't know of 19 other boys and girls who are Junior Birdmen. Well, surely you can get that many friends in your neighborhood, school or church who will want to organize a unit. So, just send in their names, addresses and ages, together with 10 cents for each one who is not a member so that we can enroll them and send out their memberships. And don't forget to include an additional 25 cents to cover the cost of your flight squadron charter and other unit materials.

Let's see who will be the first to send in for their local charter. It certainly will be great to have your own unit of Junior Birdmen, conduct your own weekly meetings, hold your own contests and run your own trips and activities in addition to the many others that will be sponsored for you by your local wing and the national organization.

Your Flight Squadron Materials Are Here

Just about all of your flight squadron materials are on hand and by tomorrow or Wednesday I think we might start sending out the first charters.

The official Junior Birdmen flight squadon charter is something that you will be proud to frame and hang in your clubrooms or wherever you may meet. It is diploma size and printed on the finest or parchment paper in five colors—black for the general design, red, white and blue in our insignia shield and official seal ribbon. The wings of our insignia and the official seal of the Junior Birdmen are in gold. The design was especially drawn for the Junior Birdmen of America by one of the finest artists in the country and I know that when you see it, and we will publish a facsimile illustration in just a few days, you will all want to have one. But of course you must organize a flight squadron unit to get it.

The names of your 20 or more charter members will be written on the charter as well as the designated number by which your unit will thereafter be known. The charter is signed by George Hearst, our national commander, and your national director.

Get Your Officers' Bars

With each charter that goes out we will also include a special enameled bar bearing the inscription "commander" and another bearing the inscription "captain." These are for your unit's officers who will be voted upon at your first flight squadron meeting in accordance with the rules to be found in the official flight squadron book of rules and regulations which is also sent each boy or girl organizing a unit. These bars are attached to the members' wings by means of two rings which are sent you with the bars. That is what the two holes are for in the tail of youur pin. Just look at your wings now and you will see them. Probably you haven't even noticed them before. But they are there. And you can attach your first bar right now by building a squadron and having yourself elected to office of commander or captain—if it is the wish of the majority of your members, of course, to elect you to one of these offices.

The book of rules and regulations will give you in detail the complete instructions for adding new members, conducting your meetings, running your activities, collection of dues (which is optional), procedure for election of officers and naming of committees and other vital information.

Get busy now! The Junior Birdmen flight squadron plan offers you the finest of opportunities for boys and girls to become leaders and group themselves together for additional junior birdmen activity. Take advantage of this opportunity. Send for your official flight squadron recognition at once. Be one of the first in the country, to organize a unit in your neighborhood, community or city. Be one of the first to build a flight squadron in your school or church. Don't let some other member get ahead of you.

Read the leaflet sent you with your membership carefully and then drop your letter, with the names of your 20 members and 25 cents for flight squadron registration fee (to cover the cost of your unit materials, in the mail right away. It will be worth your while, for it will bring you added dividends of activities as a Junior Birdman or Junior Birdwoman.

Aviation Dictionary

Because of the inauguration of our flight squadron plan with today's column, and the details which I felt were necessary to repeat, we will have to omit today's list of air dictionery definitions. However, on Wednesday I will give you both list number seven and eight.

Here is some good news for the girls! Tomorrow's column will be devoted exclusively to our girl members, but of course you boys will find much of interest contained in this column too.

Happy Landings!

POINTING SHORT CUT ON MEALS TOMORROW

Won't all you housewives, Prudence Penny asks, be sure to place both your name and complete address on all recipes and requests sent in to her department? So often she cannot use a good recipe because the sender neglects to write her name or address on it.

Perhaps this is the reason that especially fine recipe of yours has not appeared in the prize list. In the future make sure before you mail your letter that your name and address are on each sheet of paper used, preferably at the top. Another thing you can do to help Miss Penny is to write on only one side of a piece of paper.

She is more than willing to answer all requests personally, or through her daily column, if only she knows to whom to address her replies.

Today, with her prize winners, Prudence Penny gives you a Tuesday menu, the third in her week's series. Clip it out right away, so you'll have it to take with you on your afternoon shopping trip.

PLANE CRASHES KILL 11 OVER WEEK-END

Associated Press.

Week-end airplane wrecks left a death list of 11.

A midnight flight at Houston, Tex., carried a woman and three men to their deaths. The bodies of Bob Glyn, 31, pilot; Miss Gladys Wood, 20; Fred Burnett, 23, and Leroy Grandy, 22, were found at dawn Sunday in the wreckage of a private plane a mile from the airport from which they had taken off at 11 p. m. Saturday.

Two women—Miss Elva Carr and Mrs. Lottie Wright—found the wreckage after a frantic all-night search. Alarmed when the plane carrying their friends did not come back, the two set out to find it. Miss Carr and Mrs. Wright had expected to go up when the plane returned to the airport where they waited.

A woman and two men died in flames at a Fulton, N. Y., airport when their plane fell 300 feet and caught fire. The victims were Leon W. Holly, of Fulton, owner and pilot of the plane; Miss Irene Clark, 20, of Oswego, N. Y., and John Parsons, 21, of Fairhaven, N. Y.

Lowell Markwith, 39, Newark flier, and George J. Kuntz, 24, a student pilot, were killed near New Market, N. J., when their ship nosedived into a marshy field after losing a wing in midair.

Mrs. Arthur Johnson, 18, was drowned in San Francisco Bay when the plane piloted by Harold Christman, 31, dropped into the water. Her husband and Christman were rescued by a launch.

W. A. George was injured fatally at Soda Springs, Idaho, in a take-off crash.

12 Youths Escape School, 3 Caught

LANCASTER, O., May 7.—(AP.)—The escape of 12 young prisoners from the Boys' Industrial School, six miles south of Lancaster, was disclosed by authorities today.

The 12 lads stole a key from a dormitory keeper's key ring last night. Three soon were captured.

Fans Give Robin Whole Section Of Seats

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 7.—(AP.)—Seats were scarce at the spring football game between Ben Franklin High School and Erie Academy, but one entire section was roped off and remained unoccupied.

A sign erected by the vacant section told the story:

A mother robin had built her nest there; there were several blue eggs in the nest; the robin probably wouldn't like to be disturbed by a lot of football fans.

And so the fans co-operated and the seats remained unoccupied.

TACKS HOLD UP FASCISTS

VIENNA, May 7.—(AP.)—A motorcycle squadron of Italian Fascists, returning to Italy after visiting Vienna and Budapest, encountered hostile highways today.

Austrian roads were so thickly strewn with tacks that the squadron was 12 hours late in arriving at Graz after repairing hundreds of punctures.

Reports circulated in Graz, that the Italians had to shoot their way through several towns, could not be verified.

4 Rare 'Dragons' Trapped in Indies

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 7.—(AP.)—Four Komodo "dragons," among the rarest creatures in captivity, are due here today aboard the S. S. Empress of Asia.

Giant lizzard-like creatures about nine feet long, they are credited with being descendents of the pre-historic monster, the tyrannosaurus rex. They were trapped on the isolated volcanic island of Komodo in the Dutch East Indies by two youthful American zoologists.

Lumber Yard Fire Loss Reaches $75,000

LATROBE, Pa., May 7.—Officials of the George E. Anderson & Sons' lumber yard, destroyed by fire late Saturday night, today estimated the loss at $75,000. Two firemen were injured and four overcome by smoke. Twelve carloads of lumber ready for shipment were destroyed. Firemen fought the fire until late Sunday afternoon.

MAIL VIOLATION CHARGE PROBED

Federal investigation of activities of large companies in sending mailable letters, orders and instructions between their own headquarters and their own branches by private messenger and truck, was opened yesterday with indications that the inquiry would be carried through the courts.

Practices of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Company in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia were under investigation by postoffice inspectors, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington, quoting Kilroy P. Aldrich, chief inspector.

Col. C. A. Brooks, of Pittsburgh, president of the company's central division, declared yesterday:

"The company, on advice of counsel, is convinced that it is not violating any of the postal laws and further, if prosecution is begun against it, based upon recent activities of postoffice inspectors in Pittsburgh, it intends to make vigorous defense thereto."

Millions of dollars are lost yearly through private distribution of mailable matter, the government has charged.

Doug, Jr., Making London Stage Debut

LONDON, May 7.—(INS.)—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., making his first stage appearance in England, was scheduled to open tonight in "The Winding Journey" in Manchester, co-starred with Miss Gertrude Lawrence, British actress to whom he has been reported engaged.

Gossip in theatrical and film circles has it that the couple intends to marry during the run of the play, the ecaxt date depending upon receipt of Fairbanks' final decree of divorce from Joan Crawford, Hollywood actress.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

DISCORD

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The silver choir in Congress still maintains a public appearance of harmony, but a phonetic ear can detect many sour notes.

The inside reason is the boys are spending so much time watching each other these days that they do not mind their music.

At heart these Silverites are all soloists.

Each thinks he knows as much or more than the leader, and each wants to sing his own song.

The result is bad silver music, but it is sweet to President Roosevelt's ears.

OFF-KEY

The sour undertones were first noticeable backstage several months ago when Senator Key Pittman was supposed to be the silver leader.

Pittman ranked high at the White House, in fact, too high to please the Silverites. They kept the matter to themselves but organized a movement designed to take the silver baton away from Pittman.

Senators Thomas and Wheeler then became the silver leaders unofficially and they still are. To keep peace in the choir, however, they went through the motions of choosing Senator King as the official leader. He was supposed to be a peacemaker.

The peace he brought was only temporary.

Within the last few days all the boys have been eyeing each other with suspicions again that there are some backsliders in their midst, who may be slipping into the White House by the side door.

FILIBUSTER

The boys are all Democrats, so they may not fall out openly. Yet the underlying situation is important because it illustrates the fact that no two people think exactly alike on the silver question, or even on inflation.

The recent threat of a silver filibuster was largely Huey Long's idea. Continuous and purposeless talking comes easy for Huey, but most of the others thought that method of fighting Mr. Roosevelt would be going a little too far. They could not see that it would acomplish anything, outside of giving Long an opportunity to speak indefinitely.

The filibuster threat was really a confession of weakness. If the boys had the votes, they would not be talking that way.

The wiser heads among them have realized for some time that they cannot get any more than Mr. Roosevelt intends to give them.

FUN

The White House apparently took delight in tipping off privately the identity of those on the lists of silver speculators.

The list contained so many dummy names that those who inspected them at the Senate could not identify most of the silver buyers. An underground channel from the executive mansion soon brought suggestions as to where certain names could be found and identified properly.

One slip occurred. In exuberance the tip was passed along that Frank Vanderlip, Jr., was on the list.

But his name could not be found that day. The tip came a day too soon. His name was on the list submitted to the Senate the following day.

DESERTION

The purpose behind the new Glass bill provision, allowing the Federal Reserve Board to build a building for itself, is to get it out of the Treasury Department.

Senator Glass has long been irked by the fact that the Treasury Department dominated the Federal Reserve. Some members of the board feel that way about it also, and will be glad to get off to themselves.

This is the only new government building which will not come out of the PWA grab bag. Glass has provided that the board levy upon member banks for the money to build.

TUGWELL

Prof. Tugwell's pals have an idea that Mr. Roosevelt put him on the spot by nominating him as assistant agriculture secretary at this time.

Mr. Roosevelt intended it as a compliment, but did not plan it to meet the current situation. Months ago, the job of assistant secretary was created in the Agriculture Department appropriation bill especially for Tugwell.

Tugwell's campaign to clear himself of radicalism charges by making speeches and writing magazine articles will not stop the field day planned by Republicans when his nomination comes up for Senate debate.

After that, the Senate will approve the nomination.

NOTES

What burns the conservative Senator Glass is that all these inflationary and silver schemes are tacked to his bills, so they really bear his name. Virtually all such scemes in the last year have been written into Glass bills over his protest from the floor of the Senate . . . Speaking of new buildings, the famed American Legion lobby has purchased a building of its own for $125,000 . . . At least someone is showing the proper respect for a Vice President. It is the Capitol police. Whenever Mr. Garner emerges from the Capitol in his car, the police run around the plaza stopping cars and clearing the way . . . Apparently Jesse Jones (RFC) is planning to branch out. He recently took down the map of the United States in his office and put up the map of the world.

PITTSBURGH'S ORIGINAL BARGAIN BASEMENT

Walter Winchell + ON BROADWAY +

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Winchell, Palace Theatre, Chicago: Mr. Steele of Prof. Moley's mag phoned. Like to borrow Red Gallagher's book on Dillinger for comment . . . Remember the poem by Boots Mallory called "Fool That I Am?" . . . Well, it's now a song, the theme as well as the title . . . The J. Kenneth Thorpes will split any moment . . . 'Here's a stupid thing. The movie critic for a mag observed that it was just as well that Lee Tracy didn't play Wallace Beery's role in "Vive Villa" because Beery's performance couldn't be better . . . It wasn't for Beery's part, at all—Tracy was to play Stuart Erwin's part of the reporter—such dopes! . . . Robbie Heimlich, Jr., phoned: Said he had a swell gag about Dillinger . . . But it escaped his mind.

Block and Sully are thrilled about their air job . . . Well, I told you it would happen any moment . . . the J. Kenneth Thorpes have done it! . . Jack Arthur was in. Says the ladder of success has no rung for contentment . . . Ain't it the truth, though? . . . Here's a nice to-doodle. About midnight the other Sunday there was a fire at 47th and 8th and a mother and child were saved by firemen just in time . . . She took her shivering baby into a nearby beanery (where nickels are necessary) to get out of the chilled weather, but an officious manager put them out! . . . However, a cop took them back in, much to the officious one's annoyance. Nice mans, wot?

Mrs. William G. Norton wishes it known that she won a civil separation from the Music Box Theatre official last June—because, she says, he is saying that he divorced her . . . The Kurt Neumanns, he's the Universal director, are 3-ing . . . Did you know that many of the early Ellington records were made under aliases? . . . Well, they were. So if you have a hot disc credited to Joe Turner's Memphis Men or Sonny Greer's Memphis Men or Harlem Music Masters — the Harlem Foot Warmers or the Jungle Band—it's still the Duke and his boys . . . Arthur Hopkins, of Syracuse (Doris Kenyon's ex) is now in England, paying court to Beatrice Lillie.

Full of Dillinger quips today, my fraand! . . . Phil Tyrell says Dillinger would fit in swell with the Broadway crowd—because he changes his cars and women every 100 miles! . . . When you return to town be sure and see the tiny baby bears in the Flea Circus spot near 52nd . . . They do the cutest things if you buy them a bottle of milk—for a dime . . . Bernie is a big hit in his first picture, I hear . . . They offered him Bryant 15000 to do another—he says he may take it if they only offer Endicott 12500 . . . I can't get over the irony of the guy who has the columnist role! . . . Veddy, veddy fuddy!

Mary Nolan, Ivan Bankoff and other former stars are barnstoming in New Jersey . . . "The Great Ziegfeld" will be filmed by Universal, after all the time and coin wasted on it . . . Lew Brown and Lew Alter may team to write a new musical . . . Mme. Villion (Catherine Black), who is the Agua Caliente fan dancer, will wed a Los Angeles hotel biggie . . . That rumor about Mr. Erhlich, of San Francisco, being Inez Norton's next groom is denied by him . . . One of the greatest matinee idols on the coast (not Gable) sends his town car daily for Rose Tyrell, the Albertina Rasch dancer . . . Joseph Schenck pulled the track at Caliente out of the red plus an $80,000 profit . . . Dave Hutton has received an offer to start a tabernacle as opposition to Aimee. If he's smart he won't.

PREACHER SLAIN BY BOY, 14

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., May 7.—(AP.)—The Rev. Charles McCrea, 53-year-old itinerant Methodist minister, was mortally wounded last night in his home at the Buckeye Mine colony near St. Clairsville.

Deputy Sheriff Earl Hinkle said Earl Dietrick, 14, son of the minister's housekeeper, admitted shooting the minister with a .22-caliber rifle to protect his mother.

Hinkle said McCrea had been drinking all day with two men from Hollidays Cove, W. Va. He said he was told McCrea began abusing Mrs. Dietric' and that the son, who had been shooting turtles in a nearby creek, heard the scuffle.

Two neighbors corroborated Dietrick's story. Hinkle said no charges were filed against the boy.

New 'St. Helena' Aimed for Trotzky

BORDEAUX, France, May 7.—(AP.)—The French government, despairing of getting another country to accept Leon Trotzky, is seeking a kind of St. Helena for him.

It was reported authorities had decided to send the Russian exile to the tiny island of Daix, opposite Rochefort-sur-mer. The island is less than three miles square and has a population of only 100.

Convicted Slayer Asks New Trial

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 7.—(AP.)—The County Court today heard the appeal of John Mozesz for a new trial.

The defendant was convicted of slaying Rose Balogh, 19, church organist, after a lovers' quarrel. He was sentenced to life imprisonment. At the trial in January, Mozesz contended the shooting was accidental.

'The Cinch' Story for Cagney

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 7.—Hello!! A newspaperman receives many thrills (that's why they never quit). The two greatest moments, pernaps, are when he first sees his name over a yarn and the other when he finally sells his firsta movie scenario.

Ben Templin, who has scraped up tiems for various pages from here to New York and back, got his second big "thrill" from Hal Wallis, the Warner production chief. Wallis bought Templin's story, "The Cinch," as a James Cagney flicker and hired the author to develop the screen treatment. Sam Bischoff will be the supervisor.

* * *

Max Hoffman, Jr., (the Boop-de-doop gal's hubby), telegrams it to say:

"Understand Clark Gable and Gilbert Roland will be in a flim called 'Hesitation Waltz.' Also just saw Mack Gordon on Broadway. He tipped his hat to a girl, and Dillinger dropped out!"

* * *

RKO-Radio execs may raise a surprised eyebrow (perhaps TWO startled eyebrows) when they read this: Harlon Owinns, millionaire textile man of England, has made a definite offer to Lou Brock, the producer of the sensational "Flying Down to Rio" and other films, to head his own cinema unit for British International Films, releasing through United Artists.

The plans are, if Brock accepts (his RKO contract ends in a few weeks), for him to use the old Universal Studios in New York, where he will have plenty of musical talent available. Owinns, if you don't know, is a financial chap behind many of England's movie ventures.

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood: Arthur Ungar looked UNUSUALLY SMART wearing two three-minute eggs in the Brown Derby . . . Morrie Cohan, Pasadena's pride-and-joy as a fistic promoter, has finally crashed the movie gates in a BEEG way. He'll have an important role, mind you, in the Mae West SINEMA . . . Boris (Baby-Frightener) Karloff and Edmund Lowe have both signed with Universal for two stellar productions each . . . Jack Shutta, Ethel's comical kid brother, is back in town to make movie faces . . . Dave Werner, Universal casting chief, is to SKIP around the country for several months in search of new screen talent. Rian James, recently signed associate producer, will aid in building up a stock company here . . . Edward Everett Horton will be in charge of the fun dept. for "The Gay Divorce," co-starring Fred (Watta Dancer!) Astaire and Ginger Rogers for RKO . . . Valerie Delorenzo, the red-headed Brown Derby (nice color scheme) waitress, is being tested for big-time movies.

Six years ago, M-G-M produced a picture called "Four Walls." John Gilbert was the star. Joan Crawford, doing her first dramatic work, played the feminine lead. Carmel Myers was the villainess. During the past six years, Joan is the only one to survive the fickleness of film fans.

M-G-M is planning to remake "Four Walls." Franchot Tone will be featured. Karen Morley will have Joan's old role, and Mae Clarke will be the meanie.

I wonder . . . who will survive six years from now?

* * *

Pithy Paragraphs of Picture People . . . Doris Warner (pardon, I meant Mrs. Mervyn Leroy) shows good judgment. "Men in White," the play in which she owns a third interest, won the Pulitzer Prize. Maybe Papa Warner will LISTEN when she picks plays in the future. This one kicked around for nearly five years before landing behind the footlights . . . Ad in local paper announces opening of nudist colonly. "$3.50 per person, including cover." Watta-you-mean "cover"? . . . Stu Erwin and his agent are MAKING FACES at each other in a row for commissions. They're taking it to court . . . Roger Pryor BOWED OUT of the stage cast of "Men in White" in order to finish his movie role with Mae West. William Carey replaced him.

* * *

Before bowing out of the RKO studio, where he had completed his last scene and contract, Richard Dix cracked:

"Movies are suffering from softening of the arteries!"

I don't want to presume too much, but I'll like to add: "And from the hard heads of supervisers!"

Moviland Meanderings . . . There's a big PLOT afoot (or perhaps a-horseback) for British International to release "The Return of Bulldog Drummond" at the same time United Artists puts "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back" on the market . . . "All Men Are Enemies" hit a new LOW at Loew's State this week . . . Jean Muir was having a SWELEGANT time chasing around with George Brent—until the columnists started commenting, and then little Georgie did a fade-out . . . Eddie Robinson's new flicker is now titled "The Man With Two Faces," which SHOULD please him. He's CUR-AZY about closeups, you know . . . Movie village wiseguys are laying bets that Gloria Swanson DOESN'T ever finish "Three Weeks" for M-G-M. She may start it, they chirp, but never complete it. We'll wait, if you don't mind.

Crosby Hinting He'll Quit

Bing Crosby has made the statement that when he finishes his present picture, "if I feel that musicals are slipping, I am going to quit the screen."

In Hollywood it is said that no other successful star has cared as little about film work as Bing. He doesn't think he is an actor and he seems to have no desire to become one.

The only two clippings Bing has saved are a notice in "College Humor," in which his name isn't even mentioned, and a review of the picture of another crooner, of whom the critic remarked:

"Mr. —— has a good voice, but he can't act as well as Bing Crosby, who can't act at all."

The other day on the set, Director Elliott Nugent tried to get Bing to do a bit of acting for "She Loves Me Not." The star was willing to try but warned:

"I don't know how from nothing. I just dropped off a load of pumpkins."

Irvin Cobb To Act

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, May 6.—So Irvin Cobb is going to be an actor!

Well, of all things. The gentleman who put Paducah on the map and made humor an art has agreed to star in a series of eight shorts with a Southern locale for Hal Roach. Cobb will author them and act in them. And he will start his first comedy in three weeks.

"How come," we asked Irvin, "that an eminent author and famous humorist will become a mere movie actor?"

"Well, it's thisa way," he said. "It's the senile ambition of a gentleman approaching his second childhood. I have done a lot of things in my life. I have been on the radio, I have been an author, a war correspondent, and I have tried to be a cartoonist. Now I have located a sucker who is willing to spend money on me."

Hal Roach was less humorous in his announcement. He says Irvin Cobb is the costliest adventure in the history of the Roach organization. After the Cobb tests proved satisfactory, Hal says he decided it was the best answer to exhibitors who said the shorts were so bad they had to have double features.

Moore Doll House To Be Toured

When Colleen Moore goes back to New York she will read three plays, one of which she has agreed to do next season on Broadway for Dwight Deere Wiman, co-producer of the hit, "She Loves Me Not." Colleen's visit to Hollywood has had mostly to do with completing her famous doll-house, which she'll eventually send on an exhibition tour for charity. She has had four workmen busy on the house. Willy Pogany has been doing tiny mosaic designs for the entrance hall.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

"Position Wanted, Male."

THE GIRL had round, wire eyes. They grew bigger and rounder as she listened to the boy. He was taking about himself, telling her about his exploits in the field of crime.

"Yes, sir," he said, "there aren't many bulls want to get mixed up with Flash Wilson. That's me—Flash Wilson. My right name is John, but they call me Flash on account of I'm so fast." He laughed modestly. "I'm kinda surprised you ain't never heard of me."

"Maybe I haven't been in the city long enough," the girl said timidly. "I only came here a few weeks ago. My name's Millie Bates. Gee, it's swell meeting somebody famous, Mr. Wilson. I guess maybe the folks back home would think it was all wrong, though. Haven't you ever thought of—of going straight?"

Flash nodded. "Lots of times," he told her. Only it was hard pulling out of the racket. The spirit was willing, but the Flash was weak.

"Perhaps if you met somebody you liked real well—You know, if you wanted to get married, you'd reform."

Millie drew designs on the table cloth with her knife.

"Yeh, maybe. Well, I gotta push along." Flash smiled mysteriously. "I got some business tonight."

Five minutes later, he was on the uptown subway. Fifteen minutes after that, he was entering a drug store. He went to the back of the store, took off his hat and coat, and donned a white cap and apron. Then he took his place behind the soda fountain.

All during the evening, while he was mixing sodas, Flash thought of Millie. He liked the kid. He wanted her to like him. That was why he had put on that song and dance for her. He hadn't wanted her to know that he was simply a soda jerker. Women, Flash told himself with all the wisdom of his twenty-one years, were impressed by big shots.

Later on, he'd tell her that he had quit the racket. Tell her that he was going straight for her sake. She'd believe then that he had taken this job as a grand gesture of sacrifice. That would go over big.

It might have worked out that way if Flash hadn't lost his job two weeks later. He was let out to make room for the boss's nephew, and the result was nothing short of disastrous. For he had spent the entire amount of his small savings in an effort to impress Millie with his familiarity with Broadway's night life.

They hadn't gone to the Casino in the park, of course, and they had managed to get along without the first row of the "Follies." The Flash had done the best he possibly could with a limited bankroll. They enjoyed themselves in several of the night clubs and they gave the Village a nice play. Suddenly the bankroll had disappeared. That, as usual, is the almost-conclusion of every story.

It was out of the question now to ask her to marry him. He couldn't do that while he was out of a job and nearly broke. And he couldn't explain things to Millie, either. He couldn't tell her that Flash Wilson, the terror of the underworld, was unable to get a job.

There were times when he wanted to. The night, for instance, when they stood in the doorway of her boarding house.

"Flash." Millie twisted her gloves in her hands. "'Member what we talked about that first day I met you? 'Member how you said maybe you'd reform if you met somebody you liked real well? Haven't you—haven't you ever thought of that since?"

"Yeah, once or twice," he responded casually. . . .

His fists were clenched tightly in his pockets as he went down the stairs. In another minute he would have grabbed her and kissed her. Asked her to marry him and confessed that he had been lying to her all along. That would have been great, he thought, grimly. She'd have a lot of use for him then, wouldn't she, when she found out that he was nothing but a cheap liar, a soda jerker out of a job?

He couldn't go on much longer seeing Millie and keeping up the act. He had to get a job soon. All day long he searched, walking until the soles of his shoes were thin. Standing in line at employment agencies. Begging people to hire him if only for a few dollars a week. And all with the same results. Nobody in the world, it seemed, needed a soda clerk.

He was able to see Millie only infrequently—and that was the toughest part of the ordeal. He couldn't invite the girl to walk around the park with him. Not Flash Wilson, the big shot racketeer.

When a full week passed without him seeing Millie he decided that he couldn't stand it any longer. He'd see her and explain. He'd tell her that he loved her—and if she loved him, she'd understand and wait.

And having decided that, Flash was almost happy . . .

He went back to his rooming house whistling. The whistle died when the landlady met him with a cold stare. She handed him a note.

"Came this morning," she explained tersely.

Flash ripped open the note. He spread out the sheet of paper and began to read. The note was from Millie.

"Flash, dear," it read, "I'm going back home. I never told you exactly where I lived, but it doesn't matter now. I guess you were never really serious about me because you wouldn't give up the racket you were in.

"My dad was in town this week. He told me that he was lonesome and that he wanted me to come home. There's nothing much left here for me now. So I'm going.

"I told dad about you—and about us. He would have been glad to give you a job, and maybe the two of us would have been very happy. But that's just a dream, I guess, because you and I live in different worlds.

"You're a big racketeer—and dad is only the owner of a drug store. The store is big, but you'd never be happy in a place that has nothing but counters and a big soda fountain. So there's no use of thinking about it.

"Goodby—and good luck."

Virginia Plantation Duplicated for Set in Movie Studio

'OPERATOR 13' HAS LARGEST SET EVER CONSTRUCTED IN MOVIE STUDIO . . . . . AT RIGHT, MARION DAVIES, GARY COOPER

Bit of Old South Made For Film Realism

What is probably the world's largest motion picture set was built by Cosmopolitan Productions at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, Culver City, California, for Marion Davies' new picture, "Operator 13," soon to be released and which is proclaimed as one of the outstanding productions for the year. The set is known as "The Meadow" and, with the old Southern mansion that faces it, it is an exact reproduction of a plantation home near Richmond, Va., where many of the exciting scenes of "Operator 13" took place while the Civil War raged.

The set was constructed on Hollywood's largest sound stage, known on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot as No. 15. It is 310 feet long, 135 feet wide and 40 feet high.

"The Meadow" was built up with hundreds of truckloads of earth upon which real meadow-grass was transplanted. The grass is studded with real wild flowers in bloom, which were also transplanted.

The huge tree in the foreground of the picture is artificial and was built in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer shop. It is reinforced with steel girders and steel mesh that forms the core of the tree and of each of the big limbs. The tree in the background of the picture, a giant in itself, is real and was transplanted on the stage. In addition there are more than 50 real small trees and bushes in full leaf which were transplanted.

The split-rail fence is genuine and ancient, and is 150 feet long. The back drop, showing cloud effects, is the same length. A covered well is built of stone, while the top was actually used to cover an old Southern drinking place.

Fronting on the left side of "The Meadow" is the entire rear section of the great plantation house, a replica of one of the famous Colonial mansions down to the smallest detail. This section of the mansion contains a veranda 50 feet long.

That the gigantic set might be photographed from every angle, the sound-camera equipment was mounted to a traveling crane.

The camera is recording a scene between Marion Davies, seated on the swing, who, as Gail Loveless, the Federal secret service operator, is visiting at the mansion as Anne Claibourne, a Southern debutante, and Gary Cooper, standing beside her, as Capt. Gaillard.

BANK TO OPEN IN 90 DAYS

The newly-organized Central National Bank of Pittsburgh, Penn avenue and Butler street, will open for business within the next 90 days, it was announced today by the sales committee.

The new bank is to have a capital stock of $200,000, a surplus of $40,000 and undivided profits of $10,000. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has agreed to purchase $100,000 of preferred stock providing $150,000 of the common stock is subscribed, according to Thomas McCaffrey, chairman of the sales committee.

McCaffrey said today that 1,600 of the 2,000 common shares have already been subscribed. Subscribers are paying $75 for each common share. Fifty dollars of this amount will be allocated to capital, $20 to surplus and $5 to undivided profits.

Negotiations have been made for the purchase of the quarters formerly occupied by the Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company.

Poor Shots Freed In Treaty Violations

DENVER.—(INS.)—The Federal Government dismissed charges of violating the migratory bird treaty with Canada against Harold Conner and Dr. John Swanson, of Holly, Col., because the two defendants were poor shots. They assertedly went hunting ducks after dark, shot twice, and missed both times.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Interesting Attacking Play

Crockford's Club, New York, is known as the Temple of Bridge not only because there the leaders of society meet for their rubber games but because in the experts' room the leading experts of America gather almost daily for some of the keenest battles ever staged in the mimic world of cards. Sometimes the bidding in the experts' room assumes unusual and rather bizarre forms and sometimes the contracts reached by these experts do not denote special expertness but rather individual idiosyncrasies. However, as a general rule, the play, both attacking and defensive, is of the highest order.

A very interesting hand, in which two experts, well known throughout the United States, had an opportunity for brilliant play was the deal below:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ J 10 5 2 ♡ Q J 7 3 ◇ Q 10 3 ♣ Q 7
♠ 4 3 ♡ 10 6 5 ◇ 9 8 7 2 ♣ J 6 5 4	West North East South	♠ A Q 9 8 6 ♡ 8 ◇ A J 5 ♣ A 10 9 2
	♠ K 7 ♡ A K 9 4 2 ◇ K 6 4 ♣ K 8 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	2 ♠
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Obviously East cannot bid further by himself although he has a very fine hand, but his holding suggest the strong probability of successful defense.

Michael T. Gottlieb, one of the winners of the team-of-four and pair championships of the United States Bridge Association, was seated East and Samuel Fry, Jr., likewise the winner of national championships, was seated South.

West opened the spade 4 in response to his partner's Overcall. A small spade was played from Dummy, and Mr. Gottlieb expertly played the eight. This is a much better play than the Ace. Mr. Fry won the trick with the King, then took three rounds of trumps, the last in his own hand, and returned a spade, playing the Ten from Dummy and establishing a major tenace for Mr. Gottlieb over Dummy's holding in spades. However, the situation created was not at all to Mr. Gottlieb's liking as now he could make no play that would not give to the Declarer the certainty of making his contract. To return a low club would be futile, as the Queen in Dummy would win, and the club return would establish the King and permit the discard of a losing diamond. The lead of a spade of course would permit a ruff in the closed hand and a later discard of a losing diamond upon the established spade. A diamond lead would also assure South of the success of his contract.

The situation is unusual when what is known as an end-play set-up occurs as early as the fifth trick and this with both defense and attack at the very best.

Tomorrow's Hand

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ Q ♡ K ◇ K 10 8 2 ♣ Q 10 9 8 7 4 3
♠ K J 4 3 ♡ 6 4 ◇ A Q 7 3 ♣ K 6 2	West North East South	♠ 9 7 6 5 ♡ A J 9 8 3 2 ◇ J 5 ♣ J
	♠ A 10 8 2 ♡ Q 10 7 5 ◇ 9 6 4 ♣ A 5

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Irish Leader to Seek Support Here

"Ireland and Its Independence from England" will be the subject of an address by Sean Murray, former commander of the Irish Republican army, in the Gladstone Junior High School tonight. He is touring the country uniting Irish people to further Ireland's fight against British rule.

PASTORS DIFFER ON ECONOMICS

Divergent opinions are held by ministers on the questions of war and peace and economic systems, Pittsburgh ministers were told today by the Rev. W. K. Anderson, of Johnstown.

Discussing the recently published questionnaire answered by 20,870 ministers, Dr. Anderson pointed out that they disagreed as much as 44 per cent on questions involving war and peace.

The average disagreement on the economic questions was 25.4 per cent.

Dr. Anderson said:

"Probably most of these 20,000 ministers were hit by bank failures, but the majority are still in favor of private banks.

"However, their answers to economic questions indicate a restlessness and a dissatisfaction with industrial systems as they were prior to 1929."

Today's meeting was called by the Council of Churches' commission on international matters.

Programs come and programs go, but Paul Gannon's "Songs at Eventide," heard over WJAS every evening except Sunday seem to go on forever. Accompanied by Ralph Federer, pianist, and David Levin, violinist, the veteran tenor gains popularity year after year.

So-And-So Trio WCAE Features

Notes About Radio Stars, Stations

By AIRCASTER

Probably the most deeply interested listener in America Saturday when Douglas Fairbanks was heard via WJAS from London at 3:30 p. m. was Mary Pickford . . .

Attentive listeners most likely heard, too, just what Mary was listening for. . .

Samuel Insull will say no word for the microphone when the ship carrying him arrives at New York today for very good reasons of state, although the radio chains will try to make it dramatic when their announcers board the ship.

* * *

Despite the fact that he is now stationed 12 miles nearer the South Pole than Little America, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will open the 1934 showing of the Chicago World's Fair.

In his polar observation shack he will tap out a radiograph message that will come via Little America and Buenos Aires to New York on the short waves and then go to Chicago by wire.

There the sound it produces will be made to operate a relay that will touch off a display of fireworks officially reopening the fair and at the same time spelling out a greeting from Byrd.

* * *

PRIZE FIGHT

The Max Baer-Primo Carnera heavy champ battle will be broadcast from the ringside June 14, and a rubber company will pay the bill, while the Paul Whiteman hour stands by.

* * *

The twentieth anniversary of President Wilson's signing of the Smith-Lever Act for federal aid for agriculture extension work is to be observed in a special Farm and Home program on KDKA-NBC tomorrow.

Former Representative A. F. Lever, co-author of the Act, is to speak.

* * *

Lois Bennett, star of those Tuesday night Vocalion programs, doesn't commute from job to week-end vacation, but from job to job.

Every Friday she goes home to Cape Cod, where she is the mistress of a quaint old house, a wife, and the mother of three children, and steps into her domestic role.

Then every Tuesday morning she hies in to New York City to be the stellar feature on her Tuesday night program, and the singing voice of Mary Lou over the Thursday night "Show Boat."

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Two important talks are billed tonight, the first at 7 with Senator David Reed and the second by Edward A. Shannon at 10:30.

Al Flora's band is back again with a quarter-hour of hit tunes at 6:15.

Worthwhile—Paul Gannon's songs at 6:45 and Eddie Peyton at 11:30.

U. P. Pastor to Speak At Prayer Service

The Rev. J. Hoy McElhinney, of the Union United Presbyterian Church, will speak at the evening Gospel service of the annual all day meeting for prayer and praise of the New Covenant Mission in the Mission Tabernacle, Pride street, tomorrow. A staff meeting will be held at 10 a. m., followed by a meeting of the board of directors at noon.

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Jenny Wren is glad that Uncle Sam is a kindly landlord. Last year, according to Mrs. C. O. Matison, Crafton, Mrs. Wren was a little bit worried about the postman. She was afraid that he might object if she built her nest in the rural delivery mail box. Well, to be truthful, some objections were raised, but Jenny was not dispossessed.

Mrs. Matison wondered if Jenny would return this spring, and if she did, would she have the effrontery to defy Uncle Sam by moving right into his premises again without permission? She not only came back but she moved right back into the same mail box.

The rumor is that on her way up from the South she stopped off to see James Farley and got it all fixed up.

The bee season is almost here again and straying swarms might locate on your bedroom window sill to your great annoyance. Alex Zehner, our city editor, and myself undertook the removal of swarms last year but in spite of all our advertised bravado in handling the bees neither one of us relish another season of bee mingling.

However if you are annoyed James R. Dalton and Ted Haver, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 228, Homestead, will answer your summons and remedy the buzzers at no cost to you.

William H. Isaac writes about wood ants and requests information as to their extermination. These wood ants perhaps are termites and no amount of amateur skill will rid anyone of these destroyers of property.

I am informed that Mellon Institute is making a study of termite habits. I have also heard that a new preparation has been discovered by scientists there to aid in the eradication of these organized insect invading armies.

Mr. Isaac, call Mellon Institute.

Have you seen the new streamlined trains? The scientists have finally figured out that a train that bores through the air, like a bullet, will go faster with less power than one that just shoves through the air like a flat box.

The big trouble with going fast is that it isn't very safe lots of times.

But statistics show that railroads are safest for travel.

Many people drive cars too fast. Many of our roads and streets were made when the fastest thing on wheels was a light buggy pulled by horses. It was easier to stop because it couldn't go more than a few miles an hour.

But now we have cars ripping along at 50, 60 or 70 miles an hour. At first we called it progress, and then we found out that more people are wounded in auto accidents every year than there were in the World War. And many are killed.

It seems to mean, fellows, that when you invent something new you have to think about everything that will happen to the world when you start using it.

Gunpowder, for instance, is very useful. It makes it easier to mine coal. We can blast our way through rock with it and do many useful things. But we can also use it to fight terrible wars.

So when you get a new idea, fellows, try to think what it means every way if you carry it out. Suppose you decide to have a picnic in the woods. The wise captain will figure out how much money to spend for the sandwiches and how to get his patrol to the picnic grounds and have permission to use them beforehand.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to bathe on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb imourities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

'REVIVED' DOG STRONGER

Universal Service.

BERKELEY, Cal., May 7.—Pending the finding of suitable quarters in which to continue his laboratory work, Dr. Robert Cornish and "Thirteen," the dog he "resurrected" on April 13, remained today in the old anatomy building on the Berkeley campus.

Cornish incurred the disfavor of University of California officials due to the publicity his experiment in bringing "Thirteen" to life received.

Meanwhile "Thirteen" astonishes the medical world by the slow but steady return to normalcy. Between whimpers "Thirteen" now chews dog biscuits, eats meat, laps water and is able to stand on two feet. And in a very few days Dr. Cornish believes the dog will be on all four feet, completely resurrected.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 7—To The Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

From all I can read in the papers dated from some foreign capitol, the ambition of their lives seem to be to get us and Japan into a war. Now if any nation on earth can give any excuse why we should fight Japan any more than they should, they ought to get a prize for thinking of it. Naturally everybody feels sorry for China, but there seems to be concerted plan among the others, to get us to feel so much sorrier for 'em than they do that we will do all the fighting for 'em. Besides we couldn't go to war with 'em now, for we just sent our fleet around on the east coast in case we should have trouble with Portugal, or Spain.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

PUBLIC ENEMIES

This is the first of a series of Safety Cartoons drawn by a CWA artist for the Better Traffic Committee as an educational aid in reducing the growing number of traffic accidents in Pittsburgh. The artist, Frank McFeaters, was one of 100 CWA workers assigned to the Traffic Committee and his art ability was an accidental discovery.

THE SNAKE DRIVER

More dangerous than the criminal with the gun is the reckless driver with the automobile.

His weapon takes three times as many lives as does the weapon of the gunman.

The 10,000 homicides in the United States last year compare with 30,000 autocides, or traffic deaths.

PROBE MAN'S DEATH FALL

County detectives today began an investigation into the death of Patrick J. Cunningham, 39, of 217 Third street, Carnegie.

Cunningham was found dead last night in the yard of his home by Carnegie police after he had fallen from his back porch to the ground, two feet below. An autopsy at the morgue revealed death was due to shock and acute alcoholism, according to a Coroner's report.

His wife, Mrs. Helen Cunningham, told police Cunningham had locked her down when she saw him climbing through a window he had broken in their home. They have been separated for a week.

Retail Coal Men Meet Tomorrow

Discharge Papers Found in Street

Ignatius Somoll, of 210 Elizabeth street, Mt. Oliver, has in his possession a certificate of honorable discharge from the Army which he found on Main street, Mt. Oliver.

The discharge was issued to Michael J. Foley, sergeant, Company D, 39th Infantry, 4th Division, and dated August 11, 1919.

Slovaks Indorse Mihm's Candidacy

Martin C. Mihm, candidate for State Senate in the Forty-second District, has announced his indorsement by Matthew Tucnik, supreme vice president of the National Slovak Union of Pennsylvania. Mihm is advocating unemployment insurance and revision of the state constitution.

Newman Players To Present Comedy

The Newman Players will present "Love in Livery" as the fifth play of their subscription series in the Cathedral High School auditorium, Craig street, tonight and tomorrow night. Madeline Skelly Foust, director of the group, and Michael Healy, Jr., will play the leading roles.

BOY HIT BY AUTO IN FRONT OF HOME DIES

East End Youth Hurt When Car Strikes Parked Machine

Albert Marmalito, 5, was killed last night when struck by an automobile in front of his home, 1632 Broadhead street.

The driver, who, police said, was Leonard Morris, 5542 Wilkins avenue, took the boy to the Pittsburgh Hospital. Morris was ordered to post bond pending an inquest.

John D. Sullivan, 60, of 302 Eighth avenue, Homestead, was injured yesterday when struck by an automobile in front of his home. The driver, Antonio Salvadore, of Market street, McKeesport, was arrested, police reported.

Place in History For Sam Insull, He Missed Fan Dancer

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Sam Insull is on the way back to Chicago for another century of progress.

We don't know that they have anything on Sam. We checked up the Great Lakes. And there's still five of them there.

Sam was captured by the Turkish South-east mounted police. Those boys always get their promoter.

Do you think Sam could get Dillinger? He got everybody else.

Well, the old boy will go down in history as the only Chicagoan who missed Sally Rand's fan dance.

There's nothing serious about the investigation. It was all in fun.

Touching Letter From Dickens to Wife Tells of Death of Their Daughter Dora

GADS HILL PLACE . . . . . HERE DICKENS RETIRED IN 1860, WHEN HIS HEALTH FAILED, TO PASS HIS LAST DAYS

News of Child's Passing Sent Author as He Spoke on Actors' Bravery in Working In Face of Death.

In yesterday's installment was recorded the closing chapter of the middle-age romance between Charles Dickens and Maria Beadnell Winter, the sweetheart of his youth. A touching letter Dickens wrote his wife on the death of their daughter Dora and a prayer he penned are presented herewith.

By H. H. HARPER

LOVE letters of Charles Dickens to Maria Beadnell, his boyhood sweetheart, have been presented in previous instalments—both the letters he wrote to her during his twenties and in later life, when he was married and the father of many children and when she was the wife of a middle-class English business man, and a mother.

After Dickens was jilted as a youth by Maria Beadnell he plunged feverishly into the making of his career, and within a few years became the most talked-of figure in English letters. Then he impulsively married Catherine Hogarth, the daughter of a newspaper friend. But their marriage, as has been shown in previous instalments, turned out ultimately to be an unhappy one and they were finally separated.

Herewith is published a touching letter from Dickens to his wife, telling of the death of their little child, Dora, together with a prayer he sent with it. This is one of the 136 letters from Dickens to his wife, which are now in the possession of the British Museum.

Dora was born on August 15, 1850. The following year Mrs. Dickens and the child were taken seriously ill. The mother was sent to Great Malvern for a change of air.

Dickens stayed with his wife at Malvern for a time, but on Monday, April 14, 1851, he came up to London to take the chair at the General Theatrical Fund Dinner.

His heart was heavy, for besides the illness of his wife and child, his father had been buried only nine days before. He changed at his house in Devonshire-terrace, and played with his little daughter for a while and left her quite well and happy.

In an eloquent speech he referred to the actors' difficult tasks, many "having to come from scenes of sickness, of suffering, aye, even death itself, to play their parts before us.

"Yet how otfen it is with all of us," he continued, "that in our several spheres we have to do violence to our feelings and to hide our hearts in carrying on this fight for life, if we would bravely discharge in it our duties and responsibilities."

Before the speech had been delivered a messenger had come from Devonshire-terrace to say that little Dora had died. John Forster, Dicken's great friend, was able to keep the sad news back from Dickens until after the speech had been concluded, and speaks of his own great anguish at hearing the words quoted above.

The next day, Dickens, heartbroken, wrote his wife a beautiful letter, delicately breaking the news to her. It is here given to the world for the first time:

Devonshire-terrace,
Tuesday morning,
15th April, 1851.

My dearest Kate,—

Now observe, you must read this letter very slowly and carefully. If you have hurried on thus far without quite understanding (apprehending some bad news), I rely on your turning back and reading again.

Little Dora, without being in the least pain, is suddenly stricken ill. There is nothing in her appearance but perfect rest—you would suppose her quietly asleep, but I am sure she is very ill, and I cannot encourage myself with much hope of her recovery. I do not (and why should I say I do to you, my dear?) I do not think her recovery at all likely.

I do not like to leave home, I can do no good here, but I think it right to stay. You will not like to be away, I know, and I cannot reconcile it to myself to keep you away. Forster, with his usual affection for us, comes down to bring you this letter, and to bring you home, but I cannot close it without putting the strongest entreaty and injunction upon you to come with perfect composure—to remember what I have often told you, that we never can expect to be exempt, as to our many children, from the afflictions of other parents, and that if—if when you come I should even have to say to you, "Our little baby is dead," you are to do your duty to the rest, and to show yourself worthy of the great trust you hold in them.

If you will only read this steadily I have a perfect confidence in your doing what is right.

Ever affectionately,
CHARLES DICKENS.

OH, LORD, our Heavenly Father, Almighty and Everlasting God, who in Thy inestimable goodness hast directed and preserved us during the past day, and brought us to another night surrounded by such great blessings and instances of Thy mercy, we beseech Thee to hear our heartfelt thanks for all the benefits which we enjoy, and our humble prayers that we may cheefully endeavour every day of our lives to be in some degree more worthy of their possession. Sanctify and improve to us good thought that has been presented to us in any form during this day.

DICKENS READING TO HIS DAUGHTERS AT GADS HILL

Forgive us the sins we have committed during its progress, and in our past lives all the wrong we have done, and all the negligence and ignorances of which we have been guilty, and enable us to find in any trials we have undergone, or sorrows we have known or have yet to experience, blessed instruction for our future happiness.

We humbly pray, Almighty Father, for our dear children, that Thou wilt vouchsafe to watch over and preserve them from all danger and evil, for ourselves that Thou wilt prolong our lives, health and energies for many years for their dear sakes, and for them and us that Thou wilt grant us cheerfulness of spirit, tranquility and content, that we may be honest and true in all our dealings, and gentle and merciful to the faults of others, remembering of how much gentleness and mercy we stand in need of ourselves, that we may earnestly try goodwill with our fellow-creatures, that we may worship Thee in every beautiful and wonderful thing Thou hast made, and sympathize with the whole world of Thy glorious creation.

Grant that in the contemplation of Thy wisdom and goodness, and in reverence for our Lord Jesus Christ, we may endeavour to do our duty in those stations of life to which it pleases Thee to call us, and be held together in a bond of affection and mutual love which no change or lapse of time can weaken, which shall sustain and teach us to do right in all reverses of good or evil, and which shall comfort and console us most when we most require support, by filling us in the hour of sickness and death with a firm reliance on Thee, and the assurance that through Thy great mercy we shall meet again in another and happy state of existence beyond the grave, where care and grief and parting are unknown, and where we shall be once again united to the dear friends lost to us on this earth.

Pardon, Gracious God, the imperfections of our prayers and thanks, and read them in our hearts rather than in these feeble and imperfect words. Hear our supplications in behalf of the poor, the sick, the destitute and the guilty, and grant Thy blessing on the diffusion of increased happiness and knowledge among the great mass of mankind, that they may not be tempted to the commission of crimes which in want and man's neglect it is hard to resist.

Bless and keep our dear children and those who are nearest and dearest to us, and by Thy help and our Saviour's teaching enable us to lay our heads on our pillows every night at peace with all the world, and may His grace and Thy love and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with us all evermore. Amen.

QUITS 'STUMP' FOR RUSH TRIP TO CAPITAL

Less Than 40 Names Needed to Force Vote On Payoff Bill

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Representative Charles N. Crosby (Dem.), of the Twenty-ninth Pennsylvania District, came by airplane from Erie today to sign the petition to hasten consideration of the McLeod bank depositors' payoff bill.

Interrupting a heated political campaign, Crosby remained in Washington only long enough to attend the opening session of the House, affixing his signature the moment the House chaplain concluded his prayer, and hastened by plane back to Meadville.

On the trip he was accompanied by Mrs. Crosby.

He said:

"I am glad to sign the petition and hope that the McLeod bill will reach the floor of the House and be acted upon promptly. My only reason for my flight to Washington was to affix my signature."

EXPLAINS INTEREST

Crosby did not sign the previous McLeod bill petition and was not present when a test vote was taken on the Beedy resolution. He explained his interest in bank payoff legislation, saying:

"The people in the Twenty-ninth District are vitally interested in this legislation, and with the organization of depositors' associations in Western Pennsylvania they are pressing their demands for action on this bill. I shall be glad for the people in Northwestern Pennsylvania that I came here by airplane to sign the petition."

M'LEOD HOPEFUL

Said Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, author of the 100 per cent payoff measure:

"This is an example of the intense interest of many members in seeking consideration of depositors' relief legislation in the House, and it augurs for success.

"We are certain to obtain a vote in the House on May 28, and the bill will pass if it comes to the floor."

Less than 40 names were needed to the petition to obtain a vote on the bill. The petition requires 145 signatures.

While the McLeod forces were carrying on their fight, the House Banking Committee was considering the compromise plan offered by Chairman Steagall (Dem.), of Alabama. His proposal would give the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation added authority to liquidate assets of closed banks and is understood to have the endorsement of Chairman Crowley, of the Deposit Corporation.

U. S. Obligated to Pay Depositors, Kelly Says

The McLeod bill, now pending before Congress, would restore $1,800,000,000 of frozen deposits in closed banks to active use as purchasing power, Congressman Clyde Kelly declared at a banquet of 200 Italian members of the McKinley Club and Sons of Italy in the McKinley Club, Rankin, last night.

Kelly, who is running for reelection in the Thirty-first District, also said that he was exerting his efforts to aid in securing the $30,000,000 Public Works Administration grant for Allegheny County. He said, in part:

"Enactment of the McLeod bill would help to bring recovery to thousands of communities which are now stagnated. In my estimation there is a real obligation resting upon the United States Government to protect those Americans who placed their money in these banks at the request of the government.

"The millions of American workers who remain unemployed must be put to work on constructive, wealth creating improvements. Paying out doles which mean no increased wealth will bankrupt this nation. There should be immediate recognition of the size and importance of this problem. The Civil Works Administration, Relief Works Division, the Emergency Homesteads, Public Works Administration, and all the emergency relief agencies should be coordinated into one national agency whose object should be to see that every man able and willing to work shall have a job at fair wages on work which creates wealth to pay all the cost. It can be done and it must be done if we are to emerge from this depression swamp.

"The line of division in America today is not between Republicans and Democrats. Votes in Congress are not cast on that basis. The real conflict is between the progressive minded and the Bourbon minded. On one side are those who know that new conditions teach new duties and that new measures are imperative in a new age. On the other are those who would hold fast to the old methods and old prejudices even though the nation falls."

FRANCO-NAZI FEUD SPURS ARMAMENT

GENEVA, May 7.—(AP.)—A scramble for increased arms strength has been given impetus, say observers of the world armament picture, by the Franco-German deadlock and Japan's Far Eastern policies.

Reports keep coming into Geneva from world capitals of added activity to increase military power.

The failure of France and Germany to reach an agreement on armaments has proved the major stumbling block to an accord on disarmament in Europe, while Japan's intentions in Eastern Asia have aroused anxiety among leaders in many lands.

A survey conducted in authoritative quarters has revealed that only two nations, Switzerland and Great Britain, show a decrease in army strength, and Britain, while she has a smaller army, has increased her sea and air forces.

Suspicions have thrived throughout Europe with the building up of armed forces. These suspicions and uneasiness are reflected in various spy scares, especially in France.

ARMAMENT BOOM

The survey on arms strength shows the following:

France—Increased her fighting force within the last three years by 65,000, though employing civilians to do work formerly assigned to soldiers.

Germany—Increased her 1934 Army and Navy budget from $268,000,000 to about $358,000,000 and her aviation budget from $28,000,000 to $84,000,000.

Russia—Increased her armies from 562,000 to 678,000 since 1932.

Japan—Increased land, naval and air forces by 100,000 to 456,000 since 1931.

Italy—Added 43,000 to her armed forces, chiefly through air and naval branch increases.

Poland—Raised her army from 280,000 to 341,000.

FRANCE'S DEFENSE

France's national defense program for 1934-35 is costing 13,500,000,000 francs—the largest since 1928. New armaments and fortifications are included in the Army, Navy and air budgets.

Belgium also is active, building forts along the entire German border.

Poland and Czecho-Slovakia are rearing defenses on the German frontier and Poland on the Russian side as well.

The United States is among the leaders in the building up of navies. Great Britain has built or authorized naval craft up to 94 per cent of treaty strength; Japan up to 98½ per cent.

MORE PLANES FOR JAPS

Many nations are looking to the air lanes in building up their defensive forces.

Japan, for example, is shown by available figures to have increased her military planes by 450 to 3,324. Most of her equipment has been purchased in Great Britain and in the United States.

France has made a slightly larger increase than Japan, while Russia, Great Britain, Poland, Italy and Czecho-Slovakia have been active in this respect.

LODGES IN AREA AIDING FIGHT ON LEAGUE

Several hundred additional petitions protesting against the entry of the United States into the League of Nations and World Court were being circulated today among more than 40,000 members of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics in this district.

Through the cooperation of Robert E. Lewis, vice president of the District Council, petitions were sent to the secretaries of every lodge in the district. Mr. Lewis has asked that the petitions be signed immediately and returned to the Sun-Telegraph in time to be shipped to Washington by May 16, when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will hold a hearing for opponents to the league.

The monster petition in Washington kept growing today as thousands of additional signatures were added to the already huge list. From all parts of the country Hearst newspapers, with the aid of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the auxiliaries of both groups, have already obtained more than 1,000,000 names of persons protesting against entry to the league and World Court.

There are still several hundred petitions in circulation in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania and they are to be sent into the Sun-Telegraph within the next few days. If you have not signed the petition there is still an opportunity to take part in this patriotic work. Sign the petition published in the Sun-Telegraph today. Get your neighbors and friends to add their signatures and then send it to the League Court editor, Sun-Telegraph.

If you wish to carry the patriotic work further, obtain one of the larger petitions by writing to the League Court editor and solicit the signatures of your coworkers and acquaintances. There is still time to get several thousand additional signatures before the Senate hearing May 16.

SCHEUCH ART SHOWS MANY TALENTS

By PENELOPE REDD

At the Gulf Gallery, Harry Scheuch has 25 oil and water color paintings to be exhibited through May 12. Scheuch, who is one of the younger artists of the town, has a many-faceted talent. He is possessed by a wealth of invention which makes both slight water color sketches or ambitious oil paintings highly personalized events. His positive designs based on figures in landscape such as "The Potato Pickers" would scale up successfully into vital decoration. "In the Mountains" and "Miner's Village" with man-made cubes, the humble spire of the hamlet's church, and the mountains personified into living forms, clearly declare that this young man has a measure of power beyond many of his colleagues.

Penelope Redd

The same power expressed with nervous intensity is found in his water color sketches. One of a miner returning from work with an eery coal tippl. and a tree in the background has calligraphic spontaneity. Another of a village church shows the picturesque stepped up to piquant pitch. The group of marketing subjects is adroit with never a trite stroke in them.

Scheuch has also an affinity for industrial subjects as "Aspinwall Dam" and "CWA Workers in the Cathedral of Learning." His career will be an interesting one to follow, if he be given any opportunity to develop his unquestioned aptitude for decorative painting.

PITT CAMPAIGN GETS NEW AIDE

The addition of Charles Lockhart as a vice chairman of the Citizens' Committee was announced today by Thomas Fitzgerald, chairman of that phase in the Cathedral of Learning campaign for $1,650,000.

Fitzgerald so far has nine vice chairmen—Lockhart, Dr. Benjamin G. Graham, Edwin P. Griffiths, R. H. McClintic, Henry Russell Miller, Wencel A. Neumann, G. A. Price, C. C. Sheppard and Burton J. Cassady. An organization of 300 men will comprise this division. Fitzgerald has called a meeting of his lieutenants for tomorrow in the Chamber of Commerce.

The women's phase of the appeal will be featured by a meeting in the Cathedral of Learning today. The guiding committee in charge comprises Mrs. A. E. Braun, Mrs. John G. Buchanan, Mrs. Maurice Falk, Miss Mabel L. Gillespie, Mrs. L. B. Hays, Miss Eleanor P. Kelly, Mrs. F. I. Merrick, Mrs. William S. Moorhead and Mrs. E. R. Weidlein.

Terhune Provoked At Menu of Dog Cafe

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—The announcement of the opening of a cafe for canines on the Champs Elysees in Paris provoked the indignation of Albert Payson Terhune today.

"Ridiculous," he termed the menu offered by the restaurant. Giving dogs rice, noodles and pudding—three of the dishes on the menu—the noted collie-breeder and author of dog stories called a violation of a "dog's natural rights."

Starches make dogs fat, he said, and cause asthma. The proper diet, according to Terhune, should be two meals a day, composed of the following: A vegetable such as carrots, spinach, string beans or asparagus, a good meat, a dry biscuit and broth.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

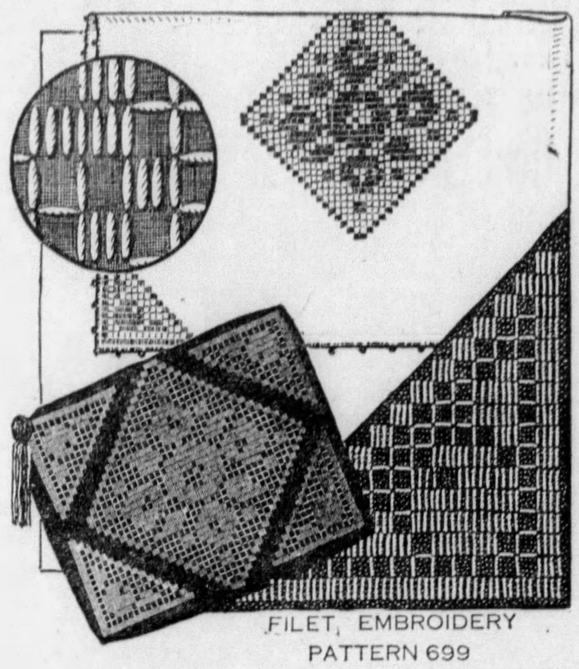
For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



FILET EMBROIDERY
PATTERN 699

If you like filet crochet, you will be very much taken with this effective embroidery that looks exactly like it and is entirely made of single stitch. The design has the effect of the filet made of twine and so popular now. The square is equally effective in the center of a cloth or pillow, while the triangular motifs form a handsome decoration on a variety of articles. The embroidery is the sort that is quickly done and is striking either in a light color on a dark background or in a dark color on a light one, as for instance light gold on black, brown or delft blue, and deep blue or rose on a cream white.

Pattern 699 comes to you with a transfer pattern of a 9-inch square and four 5¼-inch corners; material suggestions and requirements for a variety of articles and an illustration of the stitch.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

SCHOOL BEATING FEUD FATAL

CLINTON, W. Va., May 7.—(AP.)—A school teacher who whipped a pupil three years ago died yesterday of a fractured skull and the pupil was jailed after telling police that he struck the teacher.

A. C. McClung, 33-year-old schoolmaster at Meadow Creek grade school, fell against a curb yesterday in the business district and the injury he received is said by police to have caused his death.

His former pupil, Melvin H. Bennett, 19, said he had accosted McClung and accused the teacher of whipping him so severely that he bled.

McClung called him a liar, he said, and Bennett struck him, police quoted him as saying.

YOUTHFUL GANG ROBS 5 BOYS

Five East End boys were the victims of a quartet of youthful "holdup" artists in that district late yesterday.

In Highland Park, Charles Roth, 13, and Walter Walker, 11, both of Churchland street, were robbed of a $15 watch and a penknife by the four youths none over 16, who used strongarm methods, police said.

A half hour later, on the Larimer avenue bridge, the four boys, two of them negroes, accosted James Butler, 10, and his brother, Eddie, 13, of 6813 Lyric street, and John Kramer, 11, of 6811 Lyric street, took a ring valued at $11 and two baseball caps.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

One of society's young playwrights, pretty Rosemary Casey, who always reminds me of a Watteau painting, is to be honored in her home city. Her play "Love Is Not Important," a sophisticated comedy, will be presented at the Nixon Theater Friday and Saturday as the annual production of Carnegie Tech's campus week.

The first night of the play will be a benefit—for the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Rosemary is a daughter of the John F. Caseys, of Wallingford street, and a sister of Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr.

She's finding rehearsals of her play great fun—she attends them nearly every afternoon.

First Play Considered By Lee Shubert

"Love Is Not Important" is Rosemary's first play. It was staged experimentally about two years ago when Lee Shubert was considering it for his Broadway season.

Since "Love Is Not Important" was finished, the young author has continued her writing. She never had any special training in the writing of plays. And she began her first venture, "Love Is Not Important," by dashing off twenty-some pages of dialogue. Then she bethought herself of a plot, tossed aside her dialogue, began all over again, and the result's the play.

Her advisor in her writing has been B. Iden Payne, well-known producer of plays, both in England and America. And notably known in Pittsburgh for his work during his association with Carnegie Tech's Little Theater.

Tech Girls Will Appear In the Cast

I haven't read the play myself, but I've been told that it has a Noel Coward cleverness, and a bit of Oscar Wilde quality. The characters in this modern comedy, with the scene in New York, are not reflections of any of her friends, the writer insists.

Appearing in the play will be Polly Rowles, Rosemary Carver, Jane Francey, William Beal, George McCalmont, Rosalind Wikander and Carl Dozer, all students of the drama department of Carnegie Institute of Technology.

This Campus Week comedy is being presented by the Bacchanalian Dramatic Society of Tech with Chester Wallace as director.

Mrs. Todd Chairman Of Hospital Benefit

Mrs. Kirkland Wiley Todd, who has won so much fame as a playwright, will have another occupation next month—she and Mrs. Ernest N. Calhoun are chairmen of the benefit bridge-luncheon the Social Service Committee of the Presbyterian Hospital will give June 18 at Longue Vue Country Club.

Mrs. Richard D. Baker and Mrs. I. W. Danforth will be in charge of candy; Mrs. Robert E. Grove and Mrs. Ralph S. Leavenworth, of tables; Mrs. J. K. B. Hare, publicity; Mrs. Walter S. Church and Mrs. Russell T. Mitchell, prizes.

Ignoring the lure of spring members of the Ellis School Alumnae are to meet this afternoon to sew for the Children's Hospital. The hostess today is Betty Edmundson, Raleigh street, vice-president of the alumnae group.

Mrs. Joe C. Trees, assisted by the Women's Auxiliary of the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh, will entertain at a buffet supper at Treesdale Manor Tuesday for visiting delegates to the Boys' Club of America convention being held at the William Penn Hotel.

Marjory Belsches To Wed on June 2

Miss Marjory Brown Belsches, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Belsches, of Charleston, W. Va., has chosen June 2 as the date for her marriage to Leonard N. Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Fox, of Duffield street, East End. The ceremony will take place in the home of the bride-elect's parents. Mr. Fox attended Carnegie Tech.

MISS DOROTHY KELLER

Ruth Hollander, A. Jackson Married

At 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening in the Concordia Club, Miss Ruth Hollander became the bride of Alexander H. Jackson. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hollander, of Albemarle street, and the bridegroom is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Jackson, of Denniston avenue.

The ceremony took place before a background of cibotium ferns and blue hydrangeas with tall candelabra holding white tapers placed on either side. The Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, of New York, and the Rev. Dr. B. Benedict Glazer officiated.

A gown of old ivory satin made with a tight bodice and full skirt, long, tight sleeves terminating in points over the wrists, was worn by the bride, with a veil of rose point lace that has been in the family for several generations, which was arranged with a band of white satin and orange blossoms in her hair. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Lois Hollander, was maid of honor, and wore hydrangea blue chiffon and carried blue delphinium and Johanna Hill roses. Dr. Joseph M. Jackson was his son's best man.

The club was decorated with bowls of blue delphinium, yellow iris, snapdragons and roses, and the bride's table was centered with blue and yellow spring flowers and yellow tapers in crystal holders.

After a honeymoon at White Sulphur Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will live in Shady avenue.

Olive Seibert Is Married to N. L. White

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Seibert, of Sewickley, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Olive Seibert, to Norwood L. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. William White, of Coraopolis, which was solemnized in the Seibert home Saturday evening by the Rev. Joseph Hamilton, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church.

The bride's suit was of dark blue crepe and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Edith Keil, as maid of honor, wore a gray ensemble and carried spring flowers. Fred Churchill served as best man.

After a dinner in the Seibert home Mr. and Mrs. White left for New York and upon their return will be at home in Cochran street, Sewickley.

Sweet Briar May Queen Crowned

Miss Betty Thompson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Thompson, was one of the ladies-in-waiting for the May Queen's Court in the annual May Day festival, held Friday by students of Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va. Miss Lydia Goodwyn, of Richmond, Va., was crowned queen.

It was an Elizabethan May Day with the Queen and her Court in costumes of that period. Miss Thompson was in a gown of pink taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice, puffed sleeves and a billowing skirt, and she carried spring flowers.

Johanna Jackson, Emporium Man Married

A bride of Saturday afternoon was Miss Johanna Margaret Jackson, daughter of Mrs. Ida Geilfuss Jackson and the late Joseph A. Jackson, of Wilkins avenue. She married Ralph Edward Campbell, of Emporium, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Campbell, of Buffalo, N. Y., at 2:30 o'clock in St. Andrew's Lutheran Church with the Rev. Dr. H. P. Eckhardt officiating.

The bride chose white lace for her wedding gown which was made with a cape of white net and lace. Her hat was of white silk straw with a malline brim and her bouquet was of calla lilies.

Her sister, Miss Alberta A. Jackson, as maid of honor, wore blue lace with a matching hat and pink sandals. She carried spring flowers. Miss Wilma G. Jackson, as bridesmaid, wore pink lace with blue accessories and carried spring flowers. Serving as best man was Joseph A. Jackson, brother of the bride, and Paul Barlow was an usher.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left on a wedding trip and will be at home in Emporium.

City Women To Work for Cathedral

Women of the Pittsburgh district will take a leading part in the effort to complete the Cathedral of Learning.

A guiding committee has been formed, composed of Miss Mabel L. Gillespie, Mrs. A. E. Braun, Mrs. John G. Buchanan, Mrs. F. I. Merrick, Mrs. E. R. Weidlein, Miss Eleanor P. Kelly, Mrs. William S. Moorhead, Mrs. Maurice Falk and Mrs. L. B. Hays.

The women's group, which is being rapidly recruited, will be one of the five divisions in the appeal. To take advantage of the Federal money advanced for labor and materials a total of $1,650,000 is needed from the public, according to Homer D. Williams, general chairman.

Practically all of the meetings of the women will be held in the 42-story building.

Some kindly soul said to us t'other day, "I read your column all the time . . . but it's so hard for a fat woman to find anything cute and interesting like you mention."

And hence our mention just now of the grand and glorious cottons that we've found for those of you in "women's sizes." They aren't CUTE . . . thank fortune (there being much, too much so-called "cuteness" 'round in circulation anyway, in our estimation) . . . but they're smart . . . and cool . . . and washable . . . and wearable—and these are better characteristics than many armloads of cuteness.

Made by one of the best sportswear houses in the country . . . bright shades in swanky prints . . . with bits of lingerie for collars—like dotted Swiss, embroidered linen and organdie. Here's your chance, larger-sizers! Hop to it! $10.95.

Royalty to the fore again! That famous crowned head of Prince M— has thought up something new and wonderful for Mother's Day! Carnation sachets! And while of course he's had sachets before this . . . never CARNATION ones!

These are delightful (we know . . . because we have some tucked away amongst our underpinnings . . . in the drawer, in the drawer, silly!) and ah! the atmosphere it provides! And not too expensive either . . . of white satin, in sets of six—small size (about 2x4) at $4 and the large (about 3x5) for $6.

Also the well-known little crown bottles come filled with new carnation perfume . . . for but $2 (the clear glass crown) or $4 for the frosted colored glass one. Idea!

For they appear at $5 the dozen . . . and are DARLINGS! Each one of them with a black and white picture in the middle of their cream colored centers . . . the pictures being nice foolish ones like a prim and prissy creature leaning over a bar . . . or a billowing beauty tee-heeing to herself! We guarantee them to reawaken any slumbering sense of humor!

The tender-hearted, motherly girl, who wants to make MAN better, is with us. She has written to the Speak Up, Sister column.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I know a young man in whom I am deeply interested, and he likes me, too. Lately he has become addicted to drinking and smoking, and because he says he isn't having as good times as the other young men.

He has never done this before, and I do not believe he is enjoying himself . . . He has great possibilities, and his future life lies bright before him if he but watches his step. What can I do to break him of these bad habits?

S. H.

Miss Brunot

Dear S. H.: reformation is a peculiar emotion, and it strikes us in many different ways, and at various times in our lives. All eager, creative women are reformers at heart. And they often have to watch their own steps as well as those of the person they wish to place on the STRAIGHT and NARROW.

Louis Broomfield wrote a book which was widely read. It was called "A Good Woman." He did not paint this woman very attractively. For with her, reformation had become an obsession. She wanted people to be as she WISHED THEM, and not as God had made them. It was a lesson well given, and one to be digested by many.

On the other hand reformers have done their BIT. Savonarola burning books in his native city. Martin Luther traipsing through Europe, the Calvins preaching in England, Frances E. Willard in our own country, all blazed trails that have aided in the shaping of our civilization.

Yet it was a great Englishman who said, "things started in turmoil have to be done over again." The trouble is, S. H., if we go about trying to alter even those we love too arduously, we get into no end of trouble. And often defeat our own desires.

Try and help your friend all you can. But do not lecture. Do not be a wet blanket. Go with him to these places where he dissipates if you can, and keep an eye on him. But don't let him know you are doing so. Be sympathetic, tolerant and amiable, and the chances are he'll prance right back into harness and be the same purposeful young man he used to be.

MAY INJURE HIM

You see in your earnest desire to keep him where you think he ought to be, you might injure that very developing of his great possibilities. Some people have to see many sides of life before they are able to handle even the little life which is their own.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 16, and a boy whom I know I like very much. I am not very good-looking, but my friends say I have personality. Do you think a girl without looks, but who has personality, has a chance? I have many fellows who say I have wonderful personality. Should I continue inviting this young man into my house.

DI-ANN.

Surely, Di-Ann, there is no harm in asking your boy friend into your house. Personality is a great asset, for it lasts long after physical pulchritude has gone. It is of the soul rather than of the body, and often counteracts the charm of the other woman who only has LOOKS. Maybe you are better looking than you think. Good grooming and health go a long way toward giving a girl a certain prettiness.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 15 years of age and a sophomore in high school. I am very fond of a senior of 16. He has been to my house several times and at parties where I have been. He goes with another girl, but not steady. I have never had a real date with him. I am not so sure he even likes me. I would appreciate your telling me how to win him.

ANOTHER'S PROPERTY

Yours truly, OZZY.

Well, Ozzy, I am afraid I'm not going to be very warmly received by you in my answer, for I must say I think you too young to be setting about to win a masculine heart. Then, too, this fellow appears to be another girl's property. However, being pleasant, talkative when with him, and letting him see you are not indifferent by accepting a dance when he offers it, etc., these things will win him if such is to be.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 17, and do not go to dances or parties, because I do not enjoy them. This may seem odd, but it is the truth. I have had an argument with one of my girl friends. She and I go out together. This girl is going to take my other girl friend and introduce her to some boys, and go out in a foursome. Is she trying to make me jealous. I am still very young.

ESTELLE.

I wouldn't let this matter worry me very much, Estelle. Why be jealous of another girl's good time, when you admit you do not enjoy such a time yourself. Busy yourself with outdoor sports, and read good wholesome literature, and in time your viewpoint about being entertained may change.

Science Cannot Overcome Death's Summons, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

It seems to me in its efforts to conquer Death medical science is going too far. It will never succeed.

Once the vital spark of life is gone no power of man on earth can recall it. When they imagine they have succeeded, the quick has not yet become the dead. It had only become so faint that science could no longer detect it. They but fanned its last embers back to flame.

Some time ago a child was confined in one of the new lung machines. There came a day when the little one pleaded that the machine be stopped.

The hour had come!

The little soul wished for rest, peace and quiet in which to greet God's merciful messenger—the Angel of Death!

Lee Chow Fails in Attack on Nursery

At the rush of footsteps and the warning shout of "Look out, up there!" Lillian went into instant action, verbal and physical.

"Quick, Katie!" she said. "Rush her up to the nursery. I'll unlock the door."

She turned and sped along the upper corridor as Katie put her hands beneath my elbows and rushed with me up the stairs.

I hardly breathed in that headlong rush, for lending wings of terror to our feet was the sound of soft, padding footsteps that came swiftly behind us, and another sound, even more terrifying—that of hoarse, labored breathing.

No need to waste time in conjecture over the person making those terrifying sounds. In mysterious manner, Lee Chow must have escaped from the library, and must be searching the house—for whom? Dicky, the children or myself?

The padding footsteps and the labored breathing drew steadily, ruthlessly nearer. And then, just as I was almost at the end of my hope and my endurance, I heard the turning of a key, and Lillian swung the nursery door open with a whispered command:

"In here, quick!"

SAFE IN ROOM

Katie and I already had anticipated her mandate. We were through the door almost at the instant Lillian opened it. She turned the key and shot the bolt home just as our pursuer flung his body against it, with a force that shook it violently.

"Will it hold?" I whispered fearfully, as with one accord all three of us set our bodies against the inner side of the door.

"It won't have to," Lillian said, suddenly relaxing. "They have him! Listen!"

"All right, Chief!" Harry Underwood's voice said. "I have him tight for the minute, and I can hold him until Jim ties him up. We'll not risk his fooling us by a sham faint again."

"So that was the way he escaped them!" Lillian commented. "But if I know the chief and Harry, Lee Chow will play no more tricks."

A snarl like that of a feral animal baffled of its prey came through the door, and Harry Underwood's voice, with a note of compassion sounding clearly through its sternness, spoke quickly, commandingly.

"Stop it! Quiet! We don't want to hurt you."

Jim's voice struck in with an inflection of awe in it.

"He's fainted again! Or— is he dead?"

"I don't know, and I'm not gong to worry about it," Harry Underwood answered curtly.

TAKE NO CHANCE

"He's probably shamming again, we'll spike his little game this trip. Hurry up with that rope, Jim! That's right! Now a couple more coils before you put in your knots. Pinion his legs next. I'll attend to his arms, myself. Ah! I thought so! Did you see that, Chief?"

"That" evidently referred to some unexpected movement on Lee Chow's part, and my father's voice was quick in response.

"Yes, Harry, you were right. He is shamming. But thanks to you, his ruse will do him no good. When you have him safely tied up, what are you going to do with him?"

The inquiry was characteristic of my father. Never, unless it be absolutely necessary, does he arrogate a decision to himself.

"I had thought of Dicky's room, sir," Mr. Underwood said, with the deference every one accords my father.

"Splendid!" came the enthusiastic, approving answer. "It is the one I would choose above all others; and as Richard will not be back tonight, nobody will be disturbed. I confess, I want to keep this man a quiet prisoner until Hugh gets back to see him."

The voice of Lee Chow suddenly rose in a wailing chant.

"Hugh! Hugh! Come quickly, Hugh! Only you can help me!"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Pickles and Sugar

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1—At an informal dinner, also formal dinner, should a sugar spoon be placed in the bowl, or should the person use the spoon at his or her plate? If the individual spoon is used, what then in regard to a second cup of coffee?

2—Should pickles be taken from the dish with the fingers?

3—Should pickles be eaten in the fingers? R.

1—If there is on the table a bowl of sugar that isn't in cubes, there should be by it or in it a spoon to "service" it, either the regulation sugar spoon or a teaspoon. Indeed, it is a fundamental rule of good service that every serving-dish (and a sugar bowl is in that classification) should be accompanied by the serving piece or pieces most appropriate and convenient for it. We should never be forced to use the individual silver pieces at our place.

2—Here again, accompanying the dish of pickles, there should be a convenient service piece . . . either a pickle fork or spoon, or, if we haven't a "specialized" piece, another kind of small fork or a teaspoon.

3—If the pickles are the small pickles that are served as an accessory similar to radishes, celery, olives, then they usually are eaten in the fingers. But if they are served as an accessory to a course . . . such as large pieces or slices of pickles with the main course, then they should be eaten as the other food—accessories of that course are eaten with the knife and fork, or with the fork.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Acidosis Not the Same as Acidity

Many persons decide that their ailments and physical disabilities are due to acidity. "Acidity" has become a popular expression. The term covers a multitude of sins and is too often erroneously applied to disturbances that have more important causes.

Dr. Copeland

Acidity is frequently confused with "acidosis" and the words are often interchanged. Acidosis is a serious alteration within the human mechanism. It is often the forerunner of a dangerous state of health. Fortunately, it is not as common as most persons are inclined to believe.

Though there are few cases of acidosis there are many cases of acidity. What is acidity? Acidity or "hyperacidity," as it is sometimes called, is the result of an oversecretion of hydrochloric acid within the stomach.

Normally, certain glands located in the lining of the stomach secrete hydrochloric acid. This acid is essential to normal digestion. Lack of it leads to certain digestive disturbances.

Similarly, an excessive secretion of acid leads to an upset stomach and discomfort. The quantity of the secretion is influenced by faulty diet, improper eating habits, and by inflammation and infection of the digestive tract.

The victim of hyperacidity complains of gas, acid taste in the mouth, "bilious" attacks, indigestion and other distressing symptoms. The skin may become irritated, itch and show reddish blemishes. Irritating blisters often appear between the fingers and toes.

Bear in mind, that this disturbance can usually be traced to faulty diet and careless eating habits. Avoid all foods that distress you and lead to digestive disturbances. Chew your food slowly and carefully. Never bolt your food and make every effort to eat at regular hours.

I am often asked what foods prevent acidity. Certain foods, such as almonds, apples, milk, lemons, potatoes and cabbage, are known as "basic foods." These help to reduce the amount of acidity in the blood, but in themselves will not cure acidity.

Avoid all fried and greasy foods, salts, pepper, spices and condiments. Include plenty of fresh fruits, vegetables, cereals and milk in your menu. Drink six to eight glasses of water every day. Correct faulty elimination and obtain your daily share of fresh air, sunshine and exercise.

Answers to Health Queries

Sadye, Q.—I am troubled with excessive saliva in my mouth, especially at night, also feel nervous and tired a good part of the time. What would cause these symptoms and what should I do to correct the trouble?

A.—This is probably due to hyperacidity. Correct the diet and keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Don't avoid taffeta for it is exceedingly smart for everything. The suit of quilted taffeta has already made its debut, and hats and gloves of taffeta are seen everywhere. Wool frocks with taffeta ruchings are very smart.

Crossing the bar of fashion is cross-bar net of organdie. A lovely evening frock is of navy blue, cross-barred, sheer organdie done over a taffeta slip. Cartwheels of self-ruching mark the armholes and extend down to the waist. The back if very deep, while the neck is high in front.

Of course you like a white coat in the summer, but usually it is of white woolen for semi-sports wear. A new coat to go over dark frocks is of white ottomon silk. It comes with touches of blue or red.

It does not matter how many new materials are shown, satin still holds its own. A delightful new evening frock is of palest pink satin with a lustrous surface. The very deep cowl-black discloses bands of heavy gold lame, the gold fabric continuing in a bustle bow below the waist. The neck is high in front, and shirring marks the wide shoulder straps. The skirt is marked by intricate seaming.

Household Hints

Linseed oil mixed with a little turpentine will preserve leather upholstery.

Clotheslines rubbed over with a little beeswax will last for years. The beeswax should be warmed slightly before it is applied.

To prevent new pie dishes and pudding basins cracking through heat, stand them in a pan of cold water and bring to the boil. Leave in the water until cold.

To clean carpets, put one ounce of wormwood salts into a pail of warm water. Brush the carpet thoroughly with the mixture. Rub with a clean cloth and allow to dry.

THREE 'ROUND-THE-CLOCK FAVORITES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

RECENTLY A large audience of club women, who among them represented some of the best known organizations in the city of New York, took a vote of selection on the many models paraded before them at a spring fashion show. The three costumes sketched to the right are those which got the most votes, and they seem to offer fashion solutions for a busy morning, a festive afternoon and a really important evening.

In fact, any Mme. President could be a smart visiting fireman if provided with the trio, able to shine correctly for Pullman, rostrum and head banquet table, if her duties involved all this is a single day.

But aside from the undeniable chic and sense of the models chosen, the three have something else to be said in their favor. They are one and all designed to become any figure from the miss size to the commanding size 48 or larger. And it is a fact that voters in the jury included that whole vast range of sizes, which seems to prove something.

A quick analysis of the lines of each model reveals a faithfulness to the natural waistline, with nothing but good cutting and fitting to mark it. And each sleeve is detailed in a way that softens and makes graceful the arm, without shortening it by exaggerated puffs and furbelows. And the jabot revers—any flat chested or nobly developed woman knows she has no more flattering friend!

There isn't a false line to cut the illusion of length between waistline and hemline — no jacket or flares—and necklines are treated in such a way that no one could tell whether they are fat, scrawny, or perfect.

Velvet as a spring fabric is catching on. This black velvet afternoon suit with its three-quarter length coat, sleek skirt and unusual sleeves certainly looks vernal. The revers are white velvet; the lining white satin. It is a taffeta large-brimmed hat.

This is a notable season for "dressmaker" coats. This model is rough wool crepe, with a fine guardsman line and a jabot collar trimmed with soutache braid borders. The sleeve is unusually good, too.

The formal frock at the right looks frail enough to be wantonly extravagant. But it is made of fine black cotton net, and trimmed with slimming ruches of shirred self-material. The slip is black, cut to suggest a very worldly decolletage, and the glove-sleeves are detachable. The train is a honey.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If a woman of weight will not reduce, doesn't want to bother to watch her calories, she can do much to make her figure better by wearing a corset that is specially fitted to her.

To choose a foundation garment casually is a great mistake. Some manufacturers have as many as 400 models. Find the right one.

Keep in mind this fact; it isn't so much what you wear, as how you wear it that makes for smartness and distinction. If a woman has a good figure, carries herself splendidly, she looks adorable in a 59-cent kitchen apron.

The Paris model that costs a small fortune is nothing but dry goods on a woman whose shoulders are rounded, chest caved in, posture graceless and inert.

HEARST OUTBOARD REGATTA AT OAKMONT LAUDED

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Relief Hurling Aids Bucs.
Hoyt Doing Good Work.
Rovers Jinx to Carroll.
Brother Battery Looms.
Featherweights Slump.
Net Stars Well Matched.

The continued lack of assurance that some of the Pirate pitchers are going to be able to last the route when they are given starting assignments makes relief hurling an even more important item than usual in the current operations of the Pittsburgh club. In that connection, the home fans have the comforting knowledge that the caliber of a couple of the Bucs' rescue slabmen, in their present form, at least, is higher than the average. Bill Swift wasn't a shining success in the role yesterday, but Waite Hoyt, as he does on most occasions, gave an excellent account of himself.

Waite Hoyt

It was due largely to Hoyt's fine relief pitching that the late rally of the Dodgers was smothered and the Pirates were able to go through to their sixth victory in eight consecutive playing days. Already Hoyt has been called into six games against five different clubs, and on almost every occasion he has done a mighty good job of it. Leon Chagnon is another dependable, and there is ground for the confidence that Cy Blanton also will be found serviceable in that role if given a chance. The Bucs are fortunate to have such effective relief men until some of the wobbly starters swing into a steady stride.

CARROLL HAS BEATEN BUCS ONLY TWICE

Since Owen Carroll, now here with the Dodgers, came into the National League in 1930 as a member of the Reds, he has found the Pirates the hardest club in the circuit to beat. The former Holy Cross star has won only two games from Pittsburgh, while dropping eight decisions to the locals. Of the other Brooklyn flingers, Van Mungo has won four and lost four against the Bucs; Ray Benge has won six and lost nine, and Walter Beck has won one and lost two.

Bill Swift has been Pittsburgh's most successful pitcher against the Dodgers in point of percentage, having scored seven victories over them, while losing four times. Larry French has won 12 and lost 11 in competition with the Flatbush club, Heinie Meine has won eight and lost eight, Leon Chagnon has won three and lost two, Red Lucas has won eight and lost 14, and Waite Hoyt has won two and lost two.

CHANCE OF ANOTHER BROTHER BATTERY

If the Boston Red Sox were to make a successful bid for Wesley Ferrell, the holdout Cleveland pitcher now on the suspended list, the major leagues would have a brother battery among their special attractions, as Wesley's brother, Rick, rated by many as the best backstop in the American League, is catching for the Bosox. About the only brother batteries the majors have known were Will and Jim White, of the Cincinnati Reds, in 1878-79; Michael Joyce and John O'Neill, of the St. Louis Nationals, in 1902-03, and Milt and Alex Gaston, of the Red Sox, in 1929. Claude and Clarence Jonnard never got together on one club in the big show, and experimental pairs like the Lorbeer brothers, once tried by the Pirates on a spring trip, failed to make good.

Rick Ferrell

The Red Sox management, however, has appeared disinclined so far to pay any high price for Pitcher Ferrell. The Yankees and Senators would like to get him, but have offered only cash, and the Indians insist on player strength in exchange for Wes from any club that has a chance to be up in the race.

FEATHER TOURNEY SHOWS RING'S DECLINE

That featherweight elimination tournament started in New York with a view to finding a successor to Kid Chocolate as champion of the division is being offered by veteran boxing men as evidence of the decline of the ring game. They insist that even if the western feathers with title pretentions had entered, the class of the field would not have been improved greatly, and pronounce the entire situation a sorry one in recalling that this is the division which once gave to the ring such great little fighters as Cal McCarthy, George Dixon, Terry McGovern, Abe Attell, Jem Driscoll, Oscar Gardner, Dave Sullivan, Jack McClelland, Johnny Kilbane, Johnny Dundee and others. The field now presented as title contenders would not have been able to provide a good workout for McClelland, Pittsburgh's great featherweight of 1895 to 1905, who numbered a victory over Attell among his many triumphs.

And according to Jack Dempsey, the dearth of good talent is not confined to the featherweight class. The former heavyweight champion, on his tours as a referee, saw hundreds of fighters in scores of towns. But he reports that in the entire lot he saw only one battler that held any promise of ever amounting to anything, the lone exception being John Henry Johnson, Negro light-heavyweight, who had Maxie Rosenbloom on the floor a couple of times in a western ring.

TILDEN-VINES CLOSE NET COUNT NATURAL

There are some professional sports in which a continuously close score between touring performers would be viewed by a large part of the citizenry, and not without reason, with tongue in cheek. It would savor of hippodroming, or the well-known see-saw, with an eye to the gates, as the action moved from town to town. But tennis writers all over the country, who have watched Bill Tilden and Ellsworth Vines in the matches preceding the one to be played at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night, say that the close count in the series, now standing at 23 to 19 in favor of Vines, is only the outcome naturally to be expected when contestants are so evenly matched. It's just like the narrow margin that separates any two good major league baseball clubs at the conclusion of their series of 22 games with each other. In the long run it's usually close to an even break.

Ellsworth Vines

The record of Tilden and Vines on their shorter tour against Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa, of France, is pointed out as proving the honesty of the tennis they are playing. It had been planned to pair Cochet and Plaa with Richards and Barnes for a separate tour, and a string of big gates was in prospect, but Tilden and Vines killed the drawing power of the Frenchmen and wrecked the plan by losing only three matches to Cochet and Plaa out of the 40 played. Those who know Tilden say he would beat Vines every time out if he could do so. As soon as Big Bill began to lose after a brilliant start, he insisted on a floor cover of canvas, colored a dark green and lined in white. They played every night and for a time the canvas enabled Tilden to break even, but soon the younger Vines began to creep ahead again, whereupon Tilden made another change, declining to play every night and demanding a longer rest between matches.

DODGERS HOPE TO FIGURE IN FLAG RACE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Casey Stengel probably has caused more smiles than any American humorist since Mark Twain, but Casey indicated in an interview today that he did not wish to have the public laughing at his Dodgers.

Stengel made his Forbes Field bow as a pilot yesterday in the presence of 13,000 fans. The Pirates took the measure of the Brooklyn boys, so Casey was a sad comedian this morning as he dealt with the future.

When it was suggested that the Dodgers might be a first division entry in the course of three years, Charles perked up and retorted with much emphasis:

STENGEL CONFIDENT

"Three years! Why, goodness sakes alive, if I had not lost all my outfielders and infielders and Infielder Joe Stripp about the time the bell rang we would be right up in the first division now! Do you realize that we won four of our first five games with Stripp out of the lineup?"

The interviewer hadn't thought of that, but Stengel hastened to add that he still expected to make plenty of trouble for the various flag contenders. Casey disclosed that Bill Terry was sitting in the studio on the night before the opener when Stengel opined that the flag would be won by a Western club. Memphis Bill squirmed in his seat as Charles put this prediction on the air. The Sten-

STAR DRIVERS TO RACE FOR PRIZES

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Announcement yesterday that the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will stage a mammoth two-day William Randolph Hearst Gold Cup outboard motor boating regatta free to the public in conjunction with the Oakmont Boat Club in the Allegheny River at Oakmont on Saturday and Sunday, July 14-15, elicited an enthusiastic response among lovers of water sports, and congratulations and offers of co-operation to make the event the biggest thing of its sort ever attempted here were pouring in today.

The regatta, for both amateur and professional drivers, will bring the best drivers in the eastern half of the country here and some from more distant points as well. It is estimated that between 100,000 and 200,000 persons will line the two banks of the river from which a full view of the mile and a quarter course will be available.

COMMITTEES NAMED

Members of the Oakmont Boat Club are enthusiastically behind the project and already a series of working committees has been set up to make the venture a success. As they now stand these committees are as follows:

Chairman's Committee: J. Staunton Saling, chairman; P. W. Grubbs, J. C. Edgar, F. B. Cooper, John Hetrick, Kenneth May, E. C. Stiles, Fred H. Benjamin, E. J. Winkleman, Harry Keck.

Measuring and Technical: John J. Hetrick, chairman; W. Winslow Neely, James F. Altman, Charles A. Heymers, starter.

Scoring: Fred H. Benjamin, chairman; George Riddile, K. D. Kutchka, Kenneth May, F. J. Weinfurther.

Timers: F. B. Cooper, chairman; H. D. McKinnon, W. A. Morton, H. C. Douden, D. A. Fusia.

Surveying: E. J. Winkleman, chairman; Robert T. Roche, Edwin Page.

First Aid: Dr. J. Procopio, chairman.

Publicity: Harry Keck, chairman; James Miller, J. Staunton Saling.

Referee: J. C. Edgar, chairman; C. M. Luth.

PROJECT IS LAUDED

More active workers will be added before the regatta dates if it is deemed necessary to increase the staff. Many of the men named have had previous experience in the staging of meets, notably W. Winslow Neely and James F. Altman, of New Kensington, who are well-known district amateur racers.

Speaking of the regatta today, Dr. J. Staunton Saling, of the East End, chairman of the committee, said:

"This regatta is the most elaborate setup for motor boating ever attempted here, and I am confident it will prove a huge success. I look for two days of spirited racing and thrills. I believe the regatta as planned constitutes the biggest boom water sports ever have received in the Pittsburgh district. There is no more spectacular sport than motorboat racing, and I am sure it is here to stay with the incentive Mr. Hearst's fine promotion will supply."

ENTRY BLANKS READY

Entry blanks to all licensed drivers of the American Power Boat Association and the National Outboard Association are in the mail. The regatta is sanctioned and has the full support of both organizations. Cash prizes will be given the professional drivers and valuable merchandise prizes will go to the amateurs, the list being one of the most attractive ever put up for a series of races. A Hearst Gold Cup will be the grand prize.

Jimmy McLarnin Reaches New York

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—His face as cherubic as ever, Jimmy McLarnin was back in New York today after an absence of a year and five months. He will start training at Atlantic City on Thursday for his 15-round welterweight title defense against Barney Ross, Chicago's king of the lightweights, at Madison Square Garden Bowl on Long Island, May 28.

McLarnin sailed into town late Saturday night after making the trip from Seattle by air in 22 hours. He appeared in fine condition, although he declined to break down and confess his poundage. He will need plenty of work to get back his timing, for he hasn't fought since he knocked out Young Corbett in one round to win the welterweight championship last May 29.

Peden and Audy Win Toronto Race

TORONTO, May 7.—(AP.)—William (Torchy) Peden, of Victoria and Jules Audy, of Montreal won Toronto's six day bike race which was concluded Saturday night.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

All of the boys on the main line hope Rabbit Maranville is right when he expects to be playing before the summer is gone.

Honus Wagner

There's one game guy. And as you who read this probably have heard me say before, these little guys have to have a lot of stuff on the ball to break in. I don't know why it should be that a little guy isn't thought as much of as a big guy by scouts looking for star material, but that's the way it has been for a long time.

They say Rabbit wants to break my record for the number of games played, and I say I hope he gets well soon and more power to him.

Regards,

HONUS WAGNER

DISTRICT SANDLOT LEAGUES OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP RACES

BELTZHOOVER FIRST FOE FOR BOOKS

Beltzhoover, a newcomer into City League circles, invades Olympia Park this evening to aid Books, the defending champions, pry off the lid of another sandlot baseball season.

Homewood was scheduled to meet Mt. Oliver this evening, but the grounds at Arlington Avenue are not yet complete, so the game was postponed and the Book-Beltzhoover battle has the field to itself.

Books, under the leadership of Heinie Boll, are out to set a record by winning three straight pennants in the City circuit. Boll has piloted the Buch entry to a championship for the past two years.

In the Allegheny County League, Tarentum travels to Springdale where the Hillman club will be met in the league opener.

PITCAIRN MEETS LIBRARY

In the West Penn League, Pitcairn goes to Library to open the season. President Ralph Waner and the league officials will be on hand to assist with the opening ceremonies. In the Greater Pittsburgh League, the Knapils travel to Magee Field to meet the Kroger nine.

Tomorrow evening the fans following the fortunes of the City League will see Parmelee and Homewood in action at the East End playgrounds. Manager Dinty Moore has gathered together a great pitching staff, and many followers of the City League feel that it is capable of pitching Parmelee to a pennant.

PARMELEE WINS

A number of crack sandlot nines staged exhibition games yesterday, one of the most exciting bringing together Homewood and Parmelee. The latter finally won out, 17 to 14, in a wild and wooly encounter. The victors rang up 24 hits against 15 for the losers.

The Homestead Grays defeated the Johnstown Club of the Mid-Atlantic League in a game at Johnstown, 4 to 1, while the Pittsburgh Crawfords, playing in Nashville, Tenn., divided a double header, losing the first game, 2 to 1, and winning the second, 6 to 2.

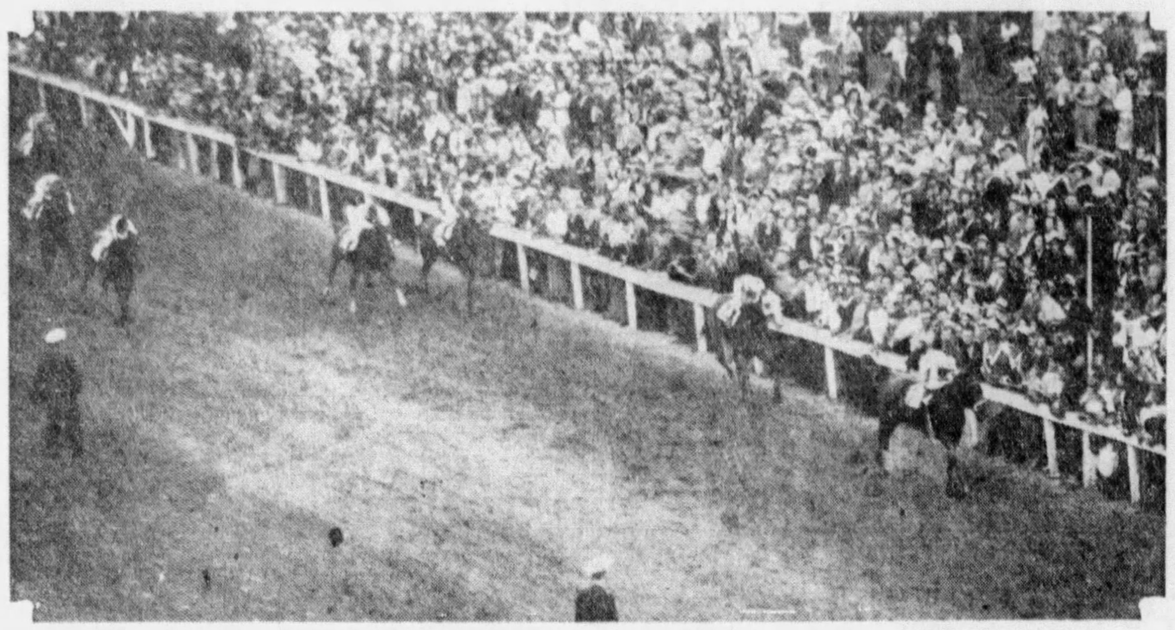
Finish of Derby---Cavalcade Wins Going Away



MATI HARI AGRARIAN DISCOVERY CAVALCADE

Here's how they came roaring down to the wire in the Kentucky Derby before 60,000 persons at Churchill Downs Saturday, with Cavalcade the winner by three lengths and increasing its margin with each step. Mata Hari, a filly, made the early pace, but couldn't continue it. Cavalcade was the betting favorite. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

CAVALCADE HAILED KING

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—The wise old fellow with the satchel full of horse shoes, meaning the blacksmith who nailed the plates to the Kentucky Derby winner, knew what he was talking about, after all. Cavalcade, as he insisted two days before the race, was just a "big bully" and demonstrated it Saturday to the complete satisfaction of an amazingly big crowd by overpowering all rivals in an exciting stretch drive at historic Churchill Downs.

He's the king of the three-year-old American turf today and until further notice—this English-bred offspring of a long line of thoroughbred champions. It has been a literal procession of triumphs so far this spring for Cavalcade, victor in three straight races. In rapid succession the star of the Brookmeade stable, owned by Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, of New York and Florida, has equaled one track record, broken another and romped off with the $37,000 classic of the bluegrass.

Cavalcade will not start in the Preakness at Pimlico this Saturday. His stablemate, High Quest, will carry Mrs. Sloane's hopes in that three-year-old classic while the Derby winner rests until the American Derby at Chicago.

Women's Title Field Enlarged

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—In an effort to further stimulate interest in women's golf, the United States Golf Association has announced that 64 players, instead of the customary 32, would qualify for match play in this year's championship, to be held at the White Marsh Valley Country Club, Chestnut Hill, Pa., starting October 1.

Under the new system, the field will play an 18-hole qualifying round on Monday October 1, the low 64 scorers beginning match play on October 2. Two rounds will be played that day so that the tournament can be concluded by Saturday, as usual. All match play rounds up to the final will be at 18 holes, the final at 36.

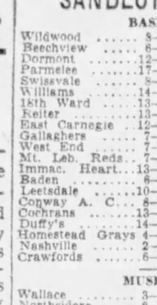
DEATH TAKES MIKE RAY

Coincident with the arrival of Teddy Yarosz, Monaca boxer, on the threshold of the world middleweight championship came the death of Mike Ray, one of his seconds in most of his bouts. Mike died yesterday in Montefiore Hospital from double pneumonia. He had been ill only a few days.



Mike Ray

Ray had been connected with boxing for many years. Twenty years ago he was the local amateur featherweight champion. Since then he has managed and seconded many boxers, including the late Homer Robertson, who was a national amateur champion and later boxed professionally, Eddie Brannon and many others. Several years ago he became associated with Ray Foutts, Yarosz' manager, and thereafter always was in Teddy's corner. He also served as a scout for Teddy, getting a line on future opponents.

Like his brother, Tommy, Mike also played baseball in his younger days. He was a pitcher. Tommy, an infielder, made the grade in the International League, but was forced by illness to give up the sport. Two other brothers besides Tommy and his wife and daughter survive Mike.

Lew Raymond, local matchmaker, returned yesterday from Newark, N. J., where he has been negotiating with Max Waxman, manager of Vince Dundee, the world middleweight champion, for a titular match with Yarosz at Forbes Field in mid-June. He also attended Dundee's bout with Al Diamond at Paterson, N. J., last Thursday night. He reported plans in good shape and said Waxman will be here some time this week to close the match.

Meanwhile Vince is being sought for a bout in San Francisco with Young Corbett, the former welterweight champion, who last week knocked out Young Terry, who holds a decision over Yarosz, who already has beaten Dundee twice in non-title bouts.

Parmelee Lost Until Mid-Summer

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—Leroy Parmelee, fast-ball right-hander of the New York Giants, will be discharged from St. Elizabeth's Hospital today or tomorrow.

Parmelee underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis on April 26. He probably will not be able to resume his place on the Giants' team until mid-summer at the earliest.

PAIR OF GOLF EVENTS TODAY

By TOM BIRKS

The tournament golf season was to be opened here today, with Edgewood and South Hills the centers of action. At Edgewood, the Caddie Masters and Assistant Professionals' Association stages its first event of the season and President Frank Bruno, of Nemacolin, expects a large crowd of members for the initial meet.

Jock Graham's layout at South Hills will see the first annual tournament of the Variety Club. At the conclusion of tourney, a dinner dance has been planned for members, their friends and guests. There has been some discussion in Variety Club circles regarding the golfing ability of the members, and there is a tip going the rounds that Johnny Maloney, who is rarely seen without Dr. L. G. Beinhauer, is out to win the much sought Warner prize.

Practically all the pros in the district are out at Fox Chapel this afternoon, taking the opportunity to play over Jock Kennedy's classy layout. Next Monday the National Open qualifying round will be played at Fox Chapel, the course is in splendid shape.

There was a movement on foot to try to get Paul Runyan to stay over until Monday and qualify here instead of travelling back to play in the Metropolitan district. Runyan does not want to stay away from his club that long, and intends to return to White Plains Saturday morning. He will be here for an exhibition match at Highland Country Club on Friday, pairing with Emil Loeffler to oppose Vince Eldred and Sam Parks, Jr.

W. J. Dible led the first division in the sweepstakes competition at Edgewood yesterday, scoring 81-15—72. In the second flight, C. I. Cottom led with 100-26—74. The scores follow:

Tom Kinney scored the first hole in one of the season at the Murraysville Golf Club yesterday, getting his ace on the short fourth hole.

HEIDELBERG WINS TITLE

Heidelberg has another soccer title tucked away. The Green and Gold defeated Gallatin, 2 to 0, at Greenlee Field yesterday to annex the Western Pennsylvania senior championship. After having won the first game of the three-game series, Heidelberg went into a lapse and Gallatin evened the count, but the former national champion came back strong to win yesterday's deciding tilt.

It was a matter of just how long the Gallatin defense could withstand the Heidelberg bombardment yesterday. Gallatin was forced to play minus the services of George Gransy, star fullback, but fought hard and held the Green and Gold scoreless throughout the first half and until late in the second.

Johnny McCosky, inside left in the Heidelberg lineup, finally beat Frank Benick with a fine shot and a little while later repeated. The lineup:

Heidelberg—2.		Gallatin—0.

GOLDEN GLOVES RING TOURNEY ON TONIGHT

One of the strongest fields of amateur boxing talent to be assembled hereabouts for some years is on edge for battle in the annual golden gloves championship tournament, which gets under way tonight in the Islam Grotto's fine auditorium on the North Side. The tournament is being sponsored by the Grotto. It will continue Wednesday evening.

There are stars of the first magnitude entered in all weights including several present and former A. M. A. champions. In the 112-pound class, Matt Ozaniak, Joey Solk, Sam Cravotta and George Morgan loom as the favorites. Frankie Wingo, Carmen De Tata, Chuch DeSantos and Gene Gibbons look to be the class of the bantamweights. In the featherweight division, Johnny Tirpak, Dick Kozell, Frank Karnash, Patsy Contillio, Dom Buffernino and Billy Miller top a star field.

Leo Sweeney, A. M. A. senior lightweight champion, heads a great list of 135-pounders, which includes William Eley, the star Negro puncher, over whom Sweeney won a disputed decision in the finals of the recent senior tourney; Eddie Katkish, who may whip either one of the two; Paul Bailey, Jackie Walls and Leroy Brockenbaugh. Other stars include Charley Cravotta, former A. M. A. senior champion and member of the last United States Olympic team, Jimmy Clark, Joe Robinson, Walter Marm and Jackie Peters, Welters; Louie Cerar, Steve Kobeda and Jimmy Auth, middleweights; Al Mancino, Henry Klena, George Luppinacci and Scotty Riffle, lightheavies and John Pietro and Beno Orben, heavyweights.

Preliminary bouts will be run off tonight and tomorrow, with semi-finals and finals in all classes listed for the final night, Wednesday.

THE GAME OF SOFTBALL

—What It's All About—

This is the fifteenth and last installment of a series on the rules of softball being published in connection with a district amateur tournament which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will conduct this summer, the winner of which will represent Pittsburgh in the national tournament in Chicago in September.

RULE 29: SCORING

To promote uniformity of championship games, the following instructions are outlined for scorers:

1—The first item in the tabulated box score, after the player's name and position, shall be the number of times he has been at bat. No time at bat shall be charged if the batsman has received a base on balls.

2—The second column shall show the runs, if any, made by each player.

3—The third column shall show the base hits, if any, made by each player. Hits shall be scored:

(a) When the batsman reached first base safely on a fair hit.

(b) When a fair hit is wholly or partially stopped by a fielder in motion, but who cannot recover himself in time to field the ball to first base before the batsman reaches it, or to some other base in time to force a runner.

(c) When the ball is hit with such force to the pitcher or an infielder that he cannot handle it in time to put out the batsman or force out a base-runner.

(d) Where a base-runner is retired by being hit by a batted ball.

(e) No hit shall be credited a batsman if a runner is retired at another base or forced out.

4—The fourth column shall record the putouts made by each player. In cases of interference the putout shall be credited to the player who would have made the play. On a bunt, the putout is given to the catcher. An out for leaving a base too soon is given to the fielder at that base.

5—The fifth column shall record the number of assists for each player. An assist shall be given to each player who handles the ball in assisting a putout, or on a play which would have resulted in a putout except for an error. On a rundown, each player who handles the ball is given only one assist.

6—The sixth column shall show the errors, one of which is charged on every misplay which allows a base-runner to reach base when he would have been retired, or prolongs the time at bat of the batsman. Wild pitches, passed balls and illegal pitches are not errors. A wild throw by a catcher to prevent a stolen base is not an error unless the runner advances an extra base. A wild throw by a fielder attempting to complete a double play is not an error unless the runner advances an extra base.

7—The summary shall show the score by innings, extra-base hits, strike-outs by each pitcher, bases on balls off each pitcher, double plays, the time of game and the name of the umpire or umpires.

THE END.

DODGERS EXPECT TO CAUSE FLAG CONTENDERS TROUBLE

gel shaft apparently was an answer to a Terry wisecrack on the Dodgers.

Stengel has one of the greatest catchers in baseball in Al Lopez, but he, too, is on the hospital list. The Spanish boy had to leave yesterday's battle with a sore arm.

Heinie Meine recorded his third triumph of the season yesterday as the Pirates won, 8 to 5, but Heinie had been through the shower routine and was dressed in his best Sunday clothes before the victory was gained. It seems Casey's boys got gay with the veteran after Heinie had blanked them on two hits through five rounds.

Boyle nicked Meine for a homer in the sixth and Heine lost control as the Dodgers followed through with two more runs in the inning. Pinchhitter Bucher started the seventh by hitting a double and Meine came out in favor of Bill Swift. Rookie Frey slammed Bill for a two-run homer and later in the round Waite Hoyt came to the slab. Waite did a fine relief trick as he stemmed the attack.

CHILLYSAUCE

The Pirates have been the best club in the league since they inaugurated Sunday baseball. Their second Sunday triumph rang up six victories in the eight games played during the period beginning with the first Sunday attraction.

Not a single member of the Pittsburgh club, least of all Manager Gibson, has lost one iota of confidence in Larry French, aggressive southpaw who has yet to finish a game. Gibby said this morning: "Larry is in there today and I intend to keep starting him in his regular turn until he gets back in his natural stride. I know from what I can see and from what other athletes say that he has more stuff than he ever had."

Mrs. French and Larry, Jr., arrived from California yesterday by auto. Perhaps it is the home cooking the lefthander has missed. Larry, the Second, is two and one-half years old and is the proud owner of a Pirate uniform. Little Larry, with his mother, was well into Arizona on the trip to Pittsburgh when the youngster asked his parent to turn back home. He had forgotten his little bats.

Cookie Lavagetto could not drive in any runs in the clash with the Dodgers, but he carried himself over the home dish on two occasions. Cookie is a topliner with Pirate fans, with the season less than three weeks old.

Courage of a rare degree is necessary in one who would reverse Bill Klem. "Bill is also the supreme court of the diamond, but Umpire Bill Stewart, rookie official, showed that quality yesterday after Klem had called a balk on Kid Leonard.

The lower court did not reverse Bill without an invitation. The Dodgers protested Klem's ruling so sincerely that Klem went into a conference with his colleague, who promptly upheld Defendant Stengel, et al.

West Newton was well represented in the Sunday throng. When Danny Taylor came to the plate in the first inning, the folks of his home town gave Danny a fine ovation. Hack Wilson received a nice crop of Bronx cheers, but Hack seems to like the sour stuff.

Bantamweight Grid Teams Planned Here

A Bantamweight Football Conference of six or eight teams is being formed to play games in the Pittsburgh district. It will be modeled along the lines of the Ohio association, centering around Akron, and that of Erie, to permit of intercity competition. It is planned to play the games under light at night and charge admission, the proceeds going to charity.

Players must be not more than 16 years old and weigh not more than 118 pounds to be eligible to compete. T. G. (Tommy) Hayden has been named president of the local organization, to be known as the Western Pennsylvania Bantamweight Football Association. The spring meeting will be held some time this month.

TILDEN, VINES DUE TO ARRIVE HERE TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The Tilden-Vines professional tennis entourage is slated to hit Pittsburgh some time this evening. Big Bill and Just-as-Big Ellsworth are scheduled to exchange wallops at Duquesne Garden here tomorrow night. With the stellar contenders will arrive two capable young associates, Alfred Chapin, a slashing New Englander, and Keith Gledhill, Vines' Southern California sidekick, who will clash in the singles curtain-raiser at 8:15 and will pair. Chapin with Tilden and Gledhill with Vines, in the doubles wind-up.

BUCS TO BE GUESTS

The troupers will spend tomorrow in varied activities. An inspection of the Garden layout of course will be in order. This, incidentally, should please the travel-jaded optics of the performers, who will find that the lofty and spacious Craig street arena offers about the finest court facilities they have encountered since leaving Gotham's Madison Square Garden on their protracted tour. The programs of Tilden and Vines will include special appearances under the auspices of local department and sporting goods stores. Tilden and the remainder of the cast have been invited by President Bob Schmertz, of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, to luncheon at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club at noon, though Vines may pass up this bid in order to eat with the Pittsburgh chapter of the Sigma Nu fraternity.

Tom McKee, manager of the local exhibition of the moneyed aces, has proclaimed that through the co-operation of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association the list of officials for the morrow's competition will be composed of names well known in the district racquet realm. Chief arbiters of the three contests are members of The Tennis Umpires' Association, J. Howard Moore, former P. T. A. executive, having been assigned to the Chapin-Gledhill tilt; the writer, secretary of the P. T. A., drawing the Tilden-Vines tussle; and Hallock C. Sherrard, dean of West Penn decision-callers, taking the doubles feature.

FACE BUSY DAY

The entire Pirate baseball squad will be guests of Promoter John Harris at the matches.

Meanwhile home varsity talent will attend to City titular tennis affairs today and tomorrow. This afternoon on the Bluff, Carnegie Tech will strive to accomplish on foreign rectangles what they failed by narrow margin to achieve on their own lot last week, victory over Grant Siverd's Dukes. Tomorrow the Tartans will brave Pitt's unbeaten band in the Panther den.

VINES BEATS TILDEN

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 7.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines defeated Bill Tilden, 8-6, 4-6, 7-5, here yesterday, bringing to 16 the lead he holds over the former amateur champion in their present professional tennis tour.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Bill Corum, sports columnist of the New York Journal, a Hearst newspaper, picked the Derby leaders to finish in this order: Cavalcade, Discovery, Mata Hari and Agrarian . . . They finished Cavalcade, Discovery, Agrarian and Mata Hari . . . He also called the turn on Mata Hari and Sergt. Byrne running each other into the ground in the early going . . . That's picking! . . . The victory was the first in 11 Derby starts for Jockey Mack Garner, who had won just about all other riding honors.

It is interesting to look back after a Derby and compare the 2-year-old form of the stars . . . Cavalcade last year won only two races in 11 tries, was second three times and third three times . . . Discovery was in the money 10 times in 14 trips to the post last year, winning twice, being second three times and third five times . . . Agrarian didn't do much as a 2-year-old, but came fast this year, and Mata Hari next to Singing Wood, the winter book favorite, which finished ninth, had the best record of any horse in the field, winning five races and finishing outside the money in its three other starts . . . One hundred and twenty-four were named as eligibles for the Derby, yet only 13 started . . . Cavalcade was 15-1, Discovery 30-1, Agrarian 100-1 and Mata Hari 8-1 in the winter book.

Joe Tipman, who startled the fistic fancy by knocking out Terrible Terry McGovern, the featherweight champion, in a stage exhibition bout, now runs a tavern in Baltimore, which is the meeting place of sports notables . . . Joe Tobin and Charley Wolf, who put on the six-day bicycle race in Duquesne Garden and are planning another one there in September, may go to London with Willie Spencer to promote a similar enterprise there . . . They are planning a road race for amateurs in Pittsburgh to develop local talent . . . Meanwhile they are working on preparations to reopen their dog track at Canfield, O., along about Memorial Day.—HARRY KECK.

INDIANS MAKE IMPRESSION IN EAST

Associated Press.

Despite the double handicap of Wes Ferrell's persistent holdout campaign and of a slight shortage in left handed elbowers, the Cleveland Indians are doing right well by themselves in the American League.

Since the intersectional play began last week, only the Indians among the league's Western clubs have won a game from the East's representatives and they made it two out of three yesterday by defying the thunder in Jimmy Foxx's bat to defeat the Athletics, 4 to 3. This triumph kept Walter Johnson's crew in second place, a game and a half behind the New York Yankees.

The Yankees maintained their lead by turning back the St. Louis Browns 6-5 with a couple of late rallies led by big Lou Gehrig.

Boston's Red Sox, pressing hard from third place, gave Detroit a painful shellacking, scoring 12 runs in one tremendous inning that produced 10 hits off three pitchers. The final count was 14-4 as Steve Larkin, rookie right hander, finally stopped the shelling. Al Thomas, of Washington recorded the only major league shutout in a day devoted largely to heavy hitting by stopping the White Sox with six hits to win, 5 to 0.

Coming on the Cards after they had won seven straight victories, the Braves won, 3 to 2, as Fred Frankhouse bested Bill Hallahan in a hurling argument.

The league-leading Giants hopped on Si Johnson for two runs in the first inning and continued batting against Allyn Stout to whip Cincinnati, 5 to 3. The Cubs jumped on Snipe Hansen for eight runs in three innings and hit a couple of other Philadelphia lefthanders freely enough to assure an 11-to-5 victory even though Lon Warneke weakened and let the Phillies score all their runs in the fourth. The Pirates likewise piled up an early lead and coasted through to an 8-to-5 decision over Brooklyn.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY OF GREATER PITTSBURGH

NATION MOVES TO ENFORCE CODE

NEW YORK, May 7.—The administration directors of the master retail code have made it known during the past week that the code will be enforced in its every provision, and that if local code authorities fail to function effectively, or fully prosecute violators, then Washington itself will act.

It was stressed that local code authorities should use their policing powers even to the extent of forcing recalcitrant violators out of business. Individual retailers who are affected by violations of a competitor or who have proof of such violations and cannot obtain redress or action from their local code authorities, may go over the heads of their local authorities and bring the matter directly to the attention of Washington authorities who promise definite action within 24 hours.

This lends added force to the declaration made a week ago that with the start of the distribution of the new code eagles, the trial and error, the educational period had ended, the drive for strict enforcement had begun.

CAUTION SIGNERS

One of the chief weapons which the code authority has in its hands is in the compliance agreement which the retailer signs when he obtains his new type of numbered and registered code eagle. The extent to which the retailer binds himself and the obligations which he incurs when he signs such a certificate, was brought out in a measure of caution just sent out by the National Retail Dry Goods Association to its members.

The message states that the receipt of certificate which the retailer signs will indicate that his business is complying with the code of fair competition of its industry or trade; is paying a fair share of the expenses of the administration of its code; and recognizes that the code insignia is the property of the United States, subject to recall by the administration in case of code violation or nonpayment of a code assessment.

But the association warned that business concerns may be asked by some code authorities to sign a compliance certificate which is in effect a contract to comply with the terms of a particular code. This type of compliance certificate, the association cautions, is a possible waiver of constitutional rights. In respect to its own members it advises them to consult their association before signing in view of the legal significance, implication, and obligation involved.

But at the same time it warned its members that the provisions of the master retail code are binding upon any member of the industry irrespective of whether or not they agree to comply through the signing of a compliance certificate.

ENFORCE ASSESSMENT

On the question of assessments, on which many of the local code authorities themselves are in disagreement, and to which many of the retail stores have expressed some objection, the administration forces have announced that the full assessment of $1 for each employe in the store must and will be collected.

This will be done despite the fact there is no means of determining at the present time whether or not such an assessment will be adequate or inadequate to enforce the code. It has made it known that the full assessment will be collected for this year. The experience for this year will decide whether or not to raise or lower the assessment for next year.

Full enforcement even to the extent of punishing through jail sentences or fines or forcing out of business, the administration authorities have made known they are determined to obtain. Within the week or so, some factual evidence of its drive is expected to be announced.

CANADA TRADE EXPANDING

MONTREAL, May 7.—(AP.)—The monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada today described the expansion of business activity in the Dominion as "rapid, consistent and impressive" since March, 1933, low point in the depression.

Within the past three months, the letter said, carloadings were almost 25 per cent larger than in the same period of 1933, steel production trebled, automobile production rose from 13,288 units to 29,655 and newsprint gained 42 per cent.

The power, industry, the bank reported, has expanded operations to meet revived industrial demand and the volume of electrical energy generated has established new records appreciably above the peaks attained in 1929.

Gold mining is more prosperous than ever before, said the letter, and there is a more active demand for lumber than in many years. The advance in security prices was termed remarkable.

DENY SOUTHERN FARE RAISE

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today turned down the plea of the NRA for an increase in railroad passenger fare rates in the southeast.

In a brief memorandum, the commission granted the Southern Railway Company permission to continue charging 1½ cents a mile for travel in day coaches and 3 cents a mile in sleeping and parlor cars for six months after May 31.

Similar permission was granted to other carriers in the southern territory if they wished to stick to the 1½ and 3-cent rate or to establish a 2-cent rate for coaches if they so desired.

The permission was granted over a demand by Sol Fosenblatt, deputy administrator in charge of the motor bus code, who told the commission that the low rates charged by the railroads are causing motor buses to lose money.

Drop in Canned Goods Exports Checked

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The steady decline of United States exports of canned fruit and vegetables, half billion-dollar Far Western industry, has been definitely checked, according to an analysis of the latest available figures made by the Bank of America.

First evidence that the tide had been stemmed occurred in the last half of 1933, when the volume of exports for all canned fruit and vegetables, after having fallen off steadily since 1929, rose to 194,871,985 pounds from the 167,208,380 pounds exported for the last six months of 1932. Convincing proof pointing to the definite recovery of exports is revealed in figures showing that foreign shipments of asparagus, apricots, pears, peaches and pineapples increased more than 100 per cent for the first two months of 1934 over the corresponding period of 1932, the bank points out. The Pacific Coast, Hawaii and Utah account for almost the entire production of these commodities.

Continued improvement in 1934 throughout the entire fruit and vegetable preserving industry of the Far West is looked for by producers and packers alike, it is reported. Opinions are based upon such factors as carryover cleanups from the past seasons, advancing prices, greater demands resulting from improved economic conditions, and foreign exchange rates advantageous to exports.

BEWILDERMENT PARALYZING BUSINESS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, May 7.—Speculatively, the hard-boiled traders at the market place have been seeking to discount the effects on profit making of political business baiting and restrictive legislation.

Mr. Rukeyser

At length, the somewhat hidden conflict between recovery and reform measures under the "New Deal" has been dragged out into the open. Even the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which habitually measures its words so carefully that it is frequently difficult to extract a meaning, spoke out against some of the trade restricting aspects of the recovery program.

But the new skepticism is looking to the future, rather than to the immediate picture of business, which continues at the peak of the upturn which started last November.

Doubt and bewilderment are themselves paralyzing to business initiative, and in the interest of further recovery and re-employment the President should further clarify his economic program.

In essence, if the government spending could be made a net increment to current economic activity, it would be a boon. On the other hand, if the government's business building efforts are offset in whole or in part by curtailment of private activity, because of fears and uncertainties caused by political utterances and proposed new legislation, then the strength of the major recovery weapon has been vitiated.

More than a year ago, President Roosevelt rescued the country from its paralyzing fears and its do-nothing attitude.

PENDULUM SWINGS

Now the pendulum has swung the other way and business is fearful of too much medicine and too many operations.

The motto of the ancient Hellenes was "nothing too much."

The big remaining problem is for government and business to learn how to live together.

Until about a fortnight ago, these broad questions were kept in the background as speculative prices were maintained by hope of further inflation. When the administration turned thumbs down on new mandatory silver legislation, a corrective movement began.

Apart from these longer term questions of political economy, the nervous speculative public, worried by the imminent passage of the stock exchange bill, appears to be over-dramatizing the likelihood that business is at or near a seasonal peak.

Public works spending will not reach a summit of employment until October or November, and the near-term outpouring of cash benefits to farmers will cushion normal reactionary tendencies in business.

James P. Warburg, former monetary advisor to the President, who has in recent months been critical of administration policies, has written a book, published today, entitled "The Money Muddle." It is dedicated to the proposition that our basic trouble is not a money trouble.

ADVOCATES REMEDIES

In giving a conservative's alternative approach to preventing overconcentration of wealth in the hands of too small a number, Mr. Warburg advocated abolition of tax exempt securities. "Beyond that," he added, "it seems to me that there should be a heavier tax on inherited investment income than on earned income, so that the man who is rich because he had an industrious grandfather, pays more taxes than a man who derives the same income from being industrious himself."

Second, as an alternative to currency depreciation, Mr. Warburg praised the Australian method of reducing the interest on all debt by a little less than 25 per cent by government edict.

Third, as an alternative to the NRA, Mr. Warburg recommended a system of unemployment and old age insurance.

As another major step in clarifying the economic situation, Mr. Warburg said it was necessary for the country to decide whether to go international, or national, or to follow a middle course. He recommended the middle course.

As for the outlook, the son of the late Paul M. Warburg concluded:

"Nature, in the shape of the business cycle, will help—in fact, is helping already. But nature cannot do effective work so long as we are taking medicine.

". . . If we, as free people, will recognize the necessity for common sacrifice, stop talking about our headache—stop asking for medicine—get to work, and support self-government—instead of asking the government to support us, then it will not even seem very painful.

"We might even recapture our vanished faith."

Progress Is Still Evident

By B. C. FORBES

PROGRESS.

DESPITE uncertainties, despite hesitancy in various directions, despite continued sagging of stock quotations, it can be claimed legitimately that recovery, irregular recovery, continues.

Mr. Forbes

"THE LESS Washington does from now on, the greater will be the business done."

That sentiment is becoming widespread. And it seems to be recognized by at least some at Washington. President Roosevelt has been somewhat less active in launching novel experiments. He admitted last week that if recovery is to proceed satisfactorily, business must held "to take up the slack."

This elementary truth should be pondered by many administration advisers and bureaucrats, for they have been possessed by the hallucination that they—Washington—alone could conjure up enough tricks and tactics to insure abounding prosperity regardless of the attitude and inactivity of employers.

The essentiality of co-operation by business having now been recognzed and proclaimed, perhaps those clothed with (temporary) authority may become less contemptuous of business than they have appeared to be heretofore.

THE RIGHT KIND of co-operation between Washington and business could unquestionably send America vigorously ahead.

UNTIL CONGRESS modifies the securities act, which has so paralyzed capital raising that governmental agencies plan to shoulder the responsibility, and until the final fate of the stock exchange—corporation regulation bill is decided, apprehension and inaction will be logical.

If Congress acts reasonably acceptably to business during the remaining weeks of its deliberations, and if the present letup in administration advisers' eruptions continues, the second half of 1934 may easily bring far greater progress than even the most optimistic now contemplate.

GEN. JOHNSON's announcement that he plans to arouse the whole country into a new frenzy of excitement and exultation over the NRA suggests that he is a poor psychologist. That the public will spontaneously and joyously revel in NRA whoopee at the General's bidding is most unlikely.

Thoughtful citizens have become tired of bureaucratic hip-hip hurrah antics, and now want to concentrate upon pushing their own affairs ahead.

If this development be duly heeded by Washington, the results should prove gratifying to all who are eager to see the country regain its economic health without needless doses of experimental medicine and without further severing the nation from the constitutional moorings.

RECENT NEWS and trends have embodied an admixture of the favorable and the unfavorable.

Motor car production, 92 per cent above a year ago, is actually the highest since the boom month of August, 1929. Electric power consumption, railway traffic, bank clearings, steel output all reflect betterment.

The advance in the general price level sustained a check, but before the end of the week leading commodities enjoyed something of a rebound. The lumber industry reports a lull. Statistics of commercial factors are less cheerful. The seasonal peak of auto production will soon be past.

THE VASTLY IMPORTANT, widely owned public utility industry is being subjected in many parts of the country to political and official attacks, and this is having very adverse effect upon billions and billions of utility securities upon utility dividends, and upon utility capital raising expenditures.

AGREEMENT to restrict rubber production has added greatly to the inventory value of the huge stocks of crude owned by American manufacturers. And the plan to fix minimum prices for tires has been well received.

Adoption of a copper code has heartened that long distracted industry.

The industrial world as a whole, welcomes official intimation that self-government will be the rule under NRA codes.

A TIP: Watch Washington.

Pennsy Puts More On Full Time Work

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad today announced that 28,000 clerical workers in the system June 1 will go back to full time work. At present they are off two days a month compared to six days off each month a year ago.

STATE'S COAL OUTPUT UP

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP.)—Production of both bituminous and anthracite coal in Pennsylvania for the week of April 28 increased over the preceding seven-day period and over the corresponding period of 1933.

In its report the Bureau of Mines also noted a marked decline in commercial stocks of bituminous during the first quarter of 1934, and a decrease during March in stocks of anthracite in retail yards, producers' storge yards and on the upper lake docks.

Production of anthracite for the week of April 28 totaled 1,485,000 tons, compared with 1,273,000 tons for the week before and 675,000 tons for the corresponding week of 1933.

Bituminous production for the week of April 28, 1934, was 6,317,000 tons. The preceding week 5,878 tons were produced, and in the corresponding week of 1933 the output was only 4,824,000 tons.

In noting the decline in bituminous commercial stocks the bureau pointed out that the net reduction for the year's first quarter was 4,416,000 tons, and that total reserves of industrial consumers and retail dealers on April 1 were 28,424,000 tons.

RAILS' NET UP FOR QUARTER

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP.)—The Bureau of Railway Economics, an organization maintained by the carriers, reported today the net railway operating income of 148 class one railroads for the first three months of this year was more than three times that of the same period last year.

The figures for the first quarter of 1934 were $112,276,896, representing a return on property investment at the annual rate of 2.23 per cent, as compared to $34,551,646 for the first three months of 1933, or a return of .68 per cent.

Gross operating revenues for the first three months of 1934 were $799,619,338 compared with $656,811,458 for the same period last year, or an increase of 21.7 per cent. Operating expenses increased 12.3 per cent, mounting from $528,738,222 for the first quarter of 1933 to $593,691,794 for the first three months of this year.

A reduction of 3.4 per cent in taxes contributed to the increased net operating income. The bureau said class one railroads paid $62,992,044 in taxes the first three months this year compared with $65,197,830 for the same period last year.

Newspapers Report Circulation Gain

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—The Audit Bureau of Circulation made public figures showing that newspaper circulation is on the increase. The report showed that morning papers gained 3.52 per cent from September 30, 1933 to March 31, afternoon papers, 4.96 per cent and Sunday editions, 8.66.

Tire Shipments Up.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The National Rubber Manufacturers' Association reports shipments of pneumatic casings for February at 3,285,013, an increase of 43.3 per cent from a year ago. Production in the same month was 4,335,092 units, a rise of 85.3 per cent from 1933. Stocks on hand February 28 totaled 10,725,032 casings, or 45.4 per cent above last year.

MARKET NEEDS AID TO HALT DECLINE

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Last week the stock market had three bad days—Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. On each day the average declined about one point, and as there were no rallies worth mentioning, the net loss during the week was about three points. Bonds also declined, though more gradually than stocks.

Each day but one there were more declines than advances, but a notable fact is that among the most active stocks and the points lost were the following: Chrysler (—3⅜), General Motors (—2½), U. S. Steel (—3⅜), National Distillers (—3), General Electric (—1⅜) and American Telephone (—9¾).

Many sound stocks which have not been overbulled as "speculative favorites" or "blue chips" held their ground well. Stocks which are high on an earnings basis suffered, and especially those whose earnings have been "stimulated" by artificial New Deal policies.

Weakness centered in alcohol, farm machinery, motor, utility and railway issues. But U. S. Steel and Du Pont broke through important resistance levels and fell to their levels of last December.

NEED 'GOOD NEWS'

It seems conservative to say that some important "good news" from Washington will be required to check the decline short of the low level of last December. (This is two and one-half to four points down, depending on which "average" you use.) Such news may come, but one of the unfortunate aspects of conditions nowadays is that business and financial affairs hang on political action, the vagaries of a brain trust, the pulling and hauling of the silver crowd, etc. This makes planning and forecasting a matter of guesswork.

Plainly liquidation has been going on, for short selling has not been important. In part, this may be due to imminence of stock exchange control legislation. But mainly it is due to fears of more-than-seasonal reaction in business at a time when the President is still bent upon "stimulating employment" and having business men "take up the slack."

The idea at Washington seems to be two-fold:

1—Make business a means of employing labor, regardless of earnings.

2—Make business of paying bonuses to farmers, regardless of earnings.

This can be done as long as inflationary price advances are occurring. Just now, however, the President seems to be tired of money-tinkering, and inflation has been checked. Commodity prices have had a setback, and stocks have come along.

PUT CART BEFORE HORSE

The immediate outcome of all this, no man can foresee. But it seems to me that the attitude of certain silver speculators is significant. They have recently complained that the President said he would put the price up! Others will have the same idea about their commodities.

The New Deal has put the cart before the horse. It has sought to put prices up first, and let demand and supply come after. That means inflation. Now, as prices react, business follows. The President will hear from the millions of unemployed and the farmers. Will he turn business into a sort of non-profit unemployment insurance for laborers and farmers? Or will he not finally resort to the inflation needle again? My guess is the latter.

Barring some "white rabbit," it seems that nothing more than small technical rallies are likely in stocks. The December low now seems rather probable. I doubt, however, that the October low will be reached. That would make the market sell ex-New Deal! But the New Deal is 50 per cent inflation (to "lighten debt burdens" by government debt), and sooner or later this side should turn up again in the experimental whirligig.

So hold the sort of stocks I have favored (which have not included rails, utilities, alcohols, farm machinery, motors, steels, etc.) and be prepared to buy more when we get some "climax selling." No one can make business good, either temporarily or permanently, and at the same time hold fairly priced good stocks down.

Stabilization Fund May Affect Purchasing

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP.)—With the dollar now stabilized in the foreign exchange markets, Wall street wonders if the Treasury's two billion-dollar stabilization fund may not be used in an effort to guide the purchasing power of the dollar at home.

The creation of this mighty fund last January, a move unprecedented in American monetary history, was widely hailed as a spectacular move to guide the course of the dollar in its relation to other currencies.

But at the same time, the dollar was placed on an international gold bullion basis, so that it became automatically stabilized in terms of gold through private gold movements. If the dollar rises slightly above its gold parity, bankers import gold, which tends to bring it back to parity. If it drops to a discount, bankers would find it profitable to export gold, and Secretary Morgenthau has announced that they will be permitted to do so, and that would tend to bring the dollar up to parity.

So the mighty fund has had nothing to do to stabilize the dollar abroad. Banking quarters had begun to wonder if, in fact, the fund would be used at all. But this week, the Treasury has finally taken steps to set up the fund. Some $200,000,000 in gold certificates was deposited with the Federal Reserve Bank, with which to work as the agent of the fund, and a special account was created for the remaining $1,800,000,000, which may be turned over to the reserve bank in the form of gold certificates, as needed.

There are a number of things which the fund is authorized to do, in addition to dealing in foreign exchange. It may buy and sell United States government securities, or it might buy silver. It is, in any case, a powerful factor in fixing the monetary base of the nation. The basis of the fund was the gold "profit" from demonitization of the dollar. While the fund merely holds that gold in the Treasury, it is in effect sterilized, and has no effect upon the country's monetary suuply. But as the fund pays its gold, in the form of gold certificates, into the Federal Reserve Bank, it expands the base of currency in the form of Federal Reserve notes, and creates a larger base for bank credit.

It is apparent, therefore, according to bankers, that the fund might make itself felt decisively in promoting an expansion of money and bank credit.

STOCK LEADERS DROP 1 TO 3 UNDER SALES

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—Stocks stumbled again today notwithstanding rallying staples and fairly favorable business conditions.

There were some scattered recoveries in the first hour, but offerings expanded on the mild upturn and along about noon selling developed in all categories. The activity also was more pronounced on the sliding movement and losses of 1 to 3 or more points were soon appearing among the livelier leaders.

Theer was no news of an especially depressing character. The failure of the early improvement to carry through was said to have discouraged various operators. The short interest was also believed to have grown a bit larger in the past few days.

Wheat jumped around 3 cents a bushel at one time on the strength of crop weather reports. Cotton got up $1 or more a bale in sympathy with wheat. Rubber again approached its 1930 highs and silver improved moderately. Bonds were irregular. Dollar rates were only slightly changed.

Despite the substantial upturn in commodities, market commentators were not in agreement regarding the near-term outlook for equities as a whole. In some quarters bearishness persisted, while in others a friendlier feeling was exhibited toward specific issues and scale-down buying was being advised.

Speculative circles still had to consider repercussions which might follow final congressional action on the exchange control bill. In addition, the financial district was concerned over New York City's revised tax measure, which would assess brokers, traders, private bankers and commission merchants one-tenth of 1 per cent on gross income above $15,000 a year instead of one-twentieth, which is the rate on other lines of business.

Wall Street's silver advocates were interested in the statement of Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, that a definite decision on silver legislation was expected at a conference which the Senate silver bloc will hold with President Roosevelt either late today or tomorrow. The opinion was general, however, that the Chief Executive will approve only a "permissive" bill at this time.

There was much speculation as to the action which General Motors directors will take on the matter of an extra dividend at their meeting this afternoon after the close of the market. The majority opinion was that a 25-cent additional disbursement would be voted. That the company can afford to pay an extra at this time is conceded by most analysts. At the same time it was admitted that, in view of potential labor difficulties, higher costs and other problems, the board might well decided to postpone the extra until the outlook is clearer.

FOREIGN BUYING AIDS COTTON

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened firm, 13 to 19 higher on steadier Liverpool cables, foreign buying, and small offers. May, 11.06; July, 11.24; October, 11.40; December 11.53; January, 11.59; March, 11.71.

There was sufficient selling on the initial advance through houses with New Orleans and southern connections or from local sources to check the upturn. The cotton was absorbed on slight setbacks, however, and the market quickly rallied again on a continuation of the demand abroad and covering. The scarcity of contracts became more pronounced after the early selling had been absorbed, with July advancing to 11.29, while December sold up to 11.57, making net gains of 21 to 24 points by the end of the first half hour.

The advance extended to 11.33 for July and 11.58 for December or about 23 to 27 points net higher during the middle of the morning. This bulge met considerable realizing. At midday July was ruling around 11.25 and December 11.53, or 18 to 20 points net higher on the general list.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LXIII

Saturday morning Pippin received a letter. It affected her piercingly.

"Dear Pippin: It's strange, isn't it, that I'm so inarticulate and never able to say the things I feel—except the angry things. So now I have to write the goodby I couldn't manage to tell as we sat on the dark cliff tonight.

"You never seemed more dear. I'd like to be sitting with you yet, but I was afraid I might make a nuisance of myself. I don't want to do this. That's partly the reason I decided to leave so hastily. I intended, as you know, to wait till after commencement, but I realized the last time we went dancing that the delay would be useless as far as my hopes are concerned. You weren't with me that night at all, Pippin. You had a dreamy faraway shine in your eyes. Not for me!

"Yet I'm worried lest you be lonely this last quarter. I kept you from running around gaily with other fellows as you, being so young, had a right to do. Now you may not want to step out carelessly for you aren't much of a butterfly nor much of a rebel for all your bold patter.

"If you had asked me tonight to wait until you were graduated just so we could chum along a few months more, I'd have so gladly assented. I was hoping you'd suggest this. But you didn't really want me. Even though you'll be sad and miss the happy gadding, I think you'll also be a little relieved. And I couldn't have been casual, as you wanted me to be, much longer.

Going to Wait

"I think I know where your heart is, Pippin. I hope it's happily centered. But you won't marry for a year or two anyway. So I'm going to write and as long as you're free, I'm going to wait. Who knows but some wild chance may alter your feeling and you will send for me!

"Even though you do this in sadness and despair, it will come eventually to shining happiness, I know. Do you think I'm wishing you pain, Pippin? No, I'm not. I'm just seeing you as you sat there tonight with the mist in your eyes. Seeing you and loving you and wanting you. This is the goodby, Golden Bells, I couldn't bring myself to say. Have you read the book and that 14 years he waited for her voice to ring through the dark?

"Yours, Gregg."

She saw him as he stood in the cabin, flushed and his trembling hands on hers; saw him standing at the rail and waving. The loneliness she felt was nothing to the blank emptiness his absence would leave as the pallid days wore on. She knew this.

Already a wine-like flavor was gone. Gregg had a tang about him, a color. Even the reading of a poem was a thing to make your pulse jump. And always with him, you had the feeling that just around the corner was mystery; was dark, perplexing drama.

She had stood at the pier watching as the old tramp-schooner swung to sea. Something of her youth passing away; something high and gay and, oh, so young. She would not sit on a hill-top with a gruff, dreaming boy again making the old world new.

Pippin stood there creasing the letter and blinking. Life semed forlorn; seemed all ironed out. Few ever seize the bright adventures of which they dream so blithely.

Talks With Chickie

Chickie sat at the lunch table and looked into the girl's now pale but ardent face. It appeared sad but the eyes were burning blue and the lips parted so wistfully.

"When you were a girl, mother, did you dream of travelling to far, strange places and having all sorts of rich, colored experiences?"

"I wanted all you now crave."

"And you gave it up. You swept every golden chance away. Nearly every one does, isn't that so?"

Chickie, reading so much more than the girl guessed, answered softly: "Yes—we toss it away. It's not as important. Instinctively we know this."

"Not as important as what?"

"As love for which all women wait."

Pippin flushed and glanced at her mother with challenge. Chickie went on, but secretly smiling: "Do you think I've had such a flat, uninteresting life?"

"Oh, no! But then few women love and are loved in return as you are. You might have waited for this kind of love and never have found it. Think of all the men who love girls who do not want them and the girls dreaming of men who will never care! At least a person would have the adventures!"

"But all the really satisfying adventures, Pippin, all the deep stirring experiences have the one setting always. You don't have to journey to the remote byways of distant worlds. The big things all happen right within the human heart.

Adventure at Home

"Travel is a great educator; it enlarges the mind. But the biggest adventure you will ever have, Pippin, will happen within the walls of your own home. No matter if you have seen a thousand countries and listened to the tales of a hundred Sheharazades, this adventure will eclipse them all."

"What do you mean, mother?"

"The adventure of having your child."

Pippin looked at her with white, pitying indignation.

"But it's true, Pippin. Remember that I told you. Women don't half appreciate the supreme, incredible privilege. No research you might ever do in a laboratory could equal it; no poem you might write would be as fine and the most wildly splashed experience pales and is flat before the wonder of this."

She sat very quiet and didn't look at her mother. This was something of which she didn't wish to talk—a stirring of it she had felt but would not admit it to anyone.

That Saturday she worked all afternoon in the laboratory. Once in a while she found herself thinking: "Why did he need to go—I wish he hadn't gone!"

Finally when it was late, Kevin came in and closed the door. He said without prelude: "Pippin — what's the matter? What's happened to you?"

"What do you mean?"

"Did you flunk some of your courses? What kind of a jam are you in?"

He thought she looked like a little lost ghost.

She said, faintly: "I'm not in any jam. I've just lost a good friend. Gregg sailed for China yesterday."

He said softly in a hushed, startled way: "Oh! But why did you let him go if you were going to miss him like this? He would have stayed, wouldn't he?"

Lost Good Friend

"He had this job, you know."

"You look absolutely bereft! So it was Gregg that you loved?"

She clasped her hands and looked at them for a moment. "Yes I love Gregg. Not as you mean—but greatly. It is not easy to lose a dear, loved friend. I may not see him ever again. It seems niggardly in life to rob us like this. Why couldn't I keep Gregg without having to marry him?"

He was leaning against the table. Now he reached down, took her two hands and smoothed them in his.

"Would that be very easy for Gregg, Pippin? Suppose you loved someone and longed for them. Would you want to be tormented seeing them, dancing with them if you knew you could never have them? Can you imagine how that would be, Pippin?"

"Yes—I can know how that would be."

She didn't look up. He kept hold of her hands.

"So they've left you all alone, Pippin! If you care this much just for a friend, what would you do if a real, complete grief ever comes?"

"I'm not sunk, Kevin—not at all".

"But you rather want to be left alone? You wouldn't care to go dancing or to a theater or just somewhere for dinner, quietly, would you?"

"With you, Kevin?"

"Yes—with me." He drawled gently and smiled into her eyes which had suddenly filled. "Can I make it up to you, sweetheart?"

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate. Vivian's love affair with Sherry wanes. Vivian disappears and sends a suicide note. Kevin returns. Edward's family and Pippin disapprove of his choice of a bride. Kevin kisses Pippin while on skiing party. Kevin disappoints Pippin, but saves a man's life. Bill arrives home and takes Pippin on airplane trip. They're forced to land in desolate country, but finally find a house and arrive back in town. Bill leaves.

MASSACRE IN THE WYOMING VALLEY (June, 1778)

The American Revolutionary War abounds in heroic acts of great Americans, but accounts also for black deeds of debased individuals.

An American, John Butler, organized the expelled Tories and Indians (Seneca warriors) into a force in British service and attacked the settlements in Wyoming Valley, Pa.

Defeating the small force of Continentals, they massacred also women and children, the Tories competing in cruelty with the scalping Indians. (U. S. Hist.)

MOLLUSCA, SOFT BODIED ANIMALS—11TH ANIMAL PHYLUM

Mollusca (about 60,000 species) include clams, oysters, snails, octopi, etc. Some live on land, most in the ocean as scavengers. Clams, oysters are important food, some mussels furnish the valuable pearl. Mollusca are bilaterally symmetrical, unsegmented animals, mostly living within hard shells. Except those in bivalved shells (clams, oysters, etc.), they have heads with mouth, tentacles and eyes. The nervous system consists of three pairs of ganglia, connected by cords. The liver is large and attached to the stomach and the blood-circulation system includes heart (with ventricle and auricle), arteries, veins, kidneys gills or lungs. Above: Diagram of clam and snail. THE PLUNGE OF THE "AERODROME"

Samuel P. Langley (1834-1906), former professor of mathematics at the U. S. Naval Academy, who made successful steam-driven models of flying machines since 1896, subsidized by U. S. government, built a 52 h. p. gasoline engine-driven tandem plane, called "Aerodrome." It plunged into the Potomac River on its first and second trials (1903) and was badly damaged. The inventor, ridiculed and deprived of financial backing, could not continue the experiments; died 3 years later.

In 1914, Glenn H. Curtis installed a modern airplane motor in the repaired "Aerodrome" and flew it. Langley was vindicated as a great American pioneer of aviation. (Transportation)

ROBERT KOCH IN HIS LABORATORY

Robert was one of the 13 children of a hard-working miner in the Harz Mountains, Germany. They were poor, their fare meager; sugar was known to Robert only by name. But Robert had his great time. His clothes were patched, but in his pocket he carried a magnifying glass, to examine insects, plants, minerals, treasuring them in his attic-museum. Later, when he became a doctor, he enjoyed most to hunt with the miscroscope for bacteria, which kill animals, men. He discovered the germs of "the white death" (tuberculosis) and of the Asiatic cholera. To fight infectious diseases, he laid down important rules, a blessing to humanity. What you enjoy foretells what you will achieve.

CAESARS FROM TIBERIUS TO NERO—THE LIVING TORCHES

Caligula (37-41), heir of Tiberius, first mild, became a tyrant, declaring himself a god and his horse, a consul. He was murdered.

Claudius (44-54) encouraged art, literature. He conquered Mauretania (Morocco), parts of today's Germany and Great Britain (not disturbed since a century). He was poisoned by his wife Agrippina, mother of Nero.

Nero (54-68), adopted son and successor of Claudius, plunged into debauchery and tyranny. He had murdered Britanicus, son of Claudius, and among others his own mother, Agrippina (49), upon which the Roman Senate servily "congratulated" him." Nero is blamed for the great fire that destroyed Rome (64). He accused and furiously persecuted the Christians, "the mysterious sect," blamed for every unexplainable calamity.

Courtesy MacGraw-Hill Book Co. (Eckless, Combs, Macy: Milk)

MODERN CHURN AND BUTTERWORKER

Continuous agitation, churning of milk or cream (at 48-56° C. temp.) coalesce the fat globules (in colloidal suspension, emulsion), forming granules of butter. The rest is buttermilk, which is drained. Butter granules are rinsed with cold water and worked (squeezed, kneaded into a mass—the butter). Butter should contain at least 80% butterfat and not more than 16% water. It may contain salt and permissible coloring matter. (General Science) (71—B)

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A beauty asset of much value is a set of beautiful eyelashes, long and curling.

To get them, dip pads of gauze in ice-cold witch hazel. Apply to the eyes, hold close until the flesh is steaming warm. Repeat.

Never clip the ends of the winkers. The upturned needle-point tips will be removed; the effect is pretty terrible. And clipping does not produce a better growth.

Thin girls who would be Mae Westian and have curves fancy that if they eat lots they will fatten. All wrong. One pat of butter will do more good than five pounds of spinach.

More butter, bread, olive oil, sugar and cream. That is what the doctor orders. Mustn't delete green velegtables and salads or meats. At bed time drink a glass of milk and cream, half and half.

Coiffures continue to put up an elegant front; the scrambled hairdress of yesteryear is lost to memory. Finger waving achieves a natural fluidy pattern. All is well with the old head mop.

Call me anything you want, dearie, but print it big. That's star romance in Hollywood.

It all seems to be in fun and it makes good reading.

The best man at the wedding is the press agent.

He takes charge from then on and issues the bulletins.

May: We love each other.

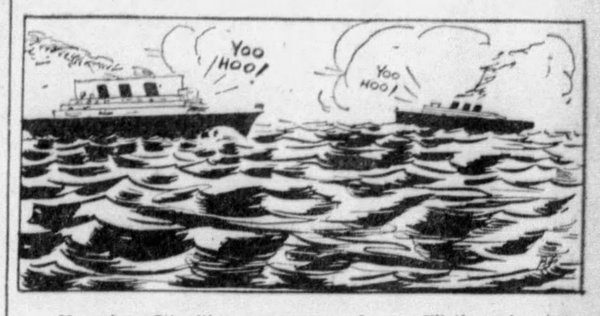
June: Neither myself nor my 17 attorneys have any thought of divorce.

July: We are going places together again. Daddy came home to change his sox.

August: There's plenty of roach in that mugg's family. Our admiration is mutual.

September: We shall cross the Atlantic at the same time. We have promised to wave at each other's boats.

October: He is a man among men. The other 12 guys in the picture are the jury.



November: It's either a career or a home. I'll throw in a two-car garage.

December: If it's on the third page I consider it strictly private.

January: There is no other man in my life. I shall love him always, forever and a day. But I can't name the day.

February: We shall never be separated. She just wired me that on the Japanese-Turkestan cable.

March: To think that next month is the first anniversary of my sixth wedding.

April: The only thing we cannot agree on is who is the firecrackers and who is the punk.

Two days later: I don't know to whom you are talking about.

Finale: I shall pick up the threads of my career. He was a nice lad but I didn't take up the option.

ODD FACTS

During the craze for jig-saws, it is estimated that at one time in 1932 more than 3,000,000 puzzles were being made every week, while during the 12 months $10,000,000 was spent on them.

Of the Americans who obtain passports for foreign travel, the greatest number describe themselves as "housewives;" next comes "of no occupation," with students and teachers third.

The sky does not retain its blue look at all altitudes. Recent tests show that at a height of 13 miles it has a dark violet-gray appearance, turning a black-gray a little higher.

Daffodil bulbs nearly 4,000 years old have come to light in Egyptian mummy cases excavated in the Valley of Kings at Luxor. They are of the common Polyanthus Narcissus variety.

Squires and Oxcarts

They Are No Longer Adequate for the Needs Of the People.

Letters are being circulated among the justices of the peace of Allegheny County, with reference to the coming election, which indicate a very determined under-cover movement to preserve the existing system of squires and constables, both against the Metropolitain Plan, and against any other legislation which might interfere with the present arrangement.

Squire George H. House, of Braddock, is soliciting votes for his son, a candidate for the Legislature in the Tenth District, and promises that "if he is sent to Harrisburg he will work for the full interest of the squires and constables."

On the letterhead of Beatrice K. Popp, justice of the peace at Castle Shannon, an appeal is being circulated for the election of Squire O'Rourke, "in order that the squires and constables may have a representative in the House to balk the passage of the Metropolitan Bill."

The interests of the people are diametrically opposed in this particular to the interests of the squires and constables, and it is to be hoped the people will refuse to send to Harrisburg men or women who are committed to the retention of the present system.

This system was set up in pioneer days, when transportation was oxcart, lawyers were scarce, and every little community had to be more or less self-contained. To promote justice arrangements were made whereby every township had a couple of squires. They were not required to have legal training, and their remuneration came in fees.

These old-fashioned squires are no more suited to modern conditions than oxcarts are. We should get rid of them, and substitute in their place minor courts—say one for every 50,000 of population—presided over by men learned in the law, who should be paid regular salaries.

Alice in Blunderland

She Would Find the Grotesque in the Workings Of the Federal Income Tax.

Lewis Carroll, in his delightful masterpiece, took his little friend Alice through Wonderland and showed her the most amazing incongruities that the human imagination has ever conceived.

What a pity it is that Alice is not continuing her researches into the grotesque today! The workings of our income tax law would make her chortle with glee.

The moment, however, that she gazed upon the blank form that every citizen must fill and sign every year and began to read those phrases, "profit or loss from sale of capital assets," "domestic corporations not subject to taxation under title I of 1932 act," "depreciation, obsolescence and depletion," and "plus inventory at beginning of year," Alice would probably turn to the mad hatter and ask, "When do we eat?"

Then Alice would learn that many rich men put their money into certain bonds that relieve them of paying any tax at all. And that poorer men, who have no money left at the end of the year, must, nevertheless, pay a tax.

After that, if Alice read the newspapers, she would learn about a bright U. S. Revenue Collector in Philadelphia who announces that he is going to collect all income taxes due to the government even if they amount to only $1.50.

The Queen of Hearts would explain to Alice that it will cost the government about $5 to collect each $1.50, and that when the government has in its pocket all the taxes that were paid, it must hand a lot of it to the many thousands of office-holders who collected that money.

The Nutmeg-Grater might ask, "How about the graft?" But the Onion Peel, with tears in his eyes, would reply, "One does not speak of those things."

They would explain to Alice that if you make money out of a pile of bricks your tax is reduced each year because the bricks are getting older.

But if you make your money out of your brain the tax is always the same, and it's just too bad.

She would learn that the less you have left at the end of the year the harder you are soaked.

And then the Mad Hatter would grin and ask, "Who's looney now?"

Not a Gift

Payment of Depositors by the McLeod Plan Would Be an Investment.

Almost the only HONEST objection yet made to the McLeod bill to pay off depositors in closed Federal banks is that the Government would lose the money it thus "invested."

Assuming that this were so, one might point out that the Government already has lost many millions of money which it has put into various so-called recovery projects—millions which all admit are gone, never to return.

But there is no reason for assuming that. On the contrary, there is every reason for assuming that the Government would recoup itself if it adopted the McLeod measure. As an investment plan, it is a thousand per cent sounder than many of the schemes on which the Government already has embarked.

These closed banks of the Federal Reserve System still have assets.

In most cases they have valuable assets.

The chief trouble with these assets NOW is that they cannot be liquidated under current business conditions.

But the potential worth of a great many of them is high.

As general conditions improve they can be disposed of at their true value instead of at their present shrunken values.

A main feature of the McLeod bill is that the Government shall be allowed ten years in which to liquidate such assets—thus permitting it to sell them on a rising market.

There is little question that market conditions will be better a few years hence than they are today.

Thus the Government undoubtedly will be able to recover all the sums which it would be called on to advance now.

These considerations are entirely separate from the manifest injustice which depositors in the closed banks are now suffering, and will continue to suffer until the Government comes to their aid.

They are also entirely separate from the assistance which the McLeod plan would give to industry and employment throughout the country by raising purchasing power.

They should be sufficient, however, to convince the average American taxpayer that the use of Federal funds for liquidating these frozen deposits would not be a "gift" from the Government but would be a sound investment.

Certainly that cannot be said of many of the projects which the New Deal has sponsored thus far—and in the opinion of most Americans it is time to put the resources of the Government henceforth into enterprises which will have some chance of paying them back.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 7.—In the manner of Arnold Bennett's journal: A lady told me she was lunching today with her husband, not seen since divorcing him bitterly 10 years ago. It suggested lunching with a cadaver.

More than any youth of his years I am impressed with Roy Howard's son Jack. He is following in his father's ink-stained steps in Indianapolis, after Yale and press bureau experience in Europe and the Orient, reading copy and living with his society bride in a $35-a-month apartment. Today I made a vow to work three hours a week on my autobioagraphy.

Writers should not read their mail until after dinner, a custom I have followed five years. A heavy mail can disarrange thoughts the whole day. My barber, who knows so many things, tells me Kipling was famous at 21 and Lae Place became greatest of French astronomers under 20. Skelly died at 30.

Brisbane could probably tick off, sans reference, a hundred such examples of youth triumphant. Someone at breakfast said men who rub hands together while talking should be avoided. No explanation. Probably as flimsy as condemning inability to look one squarely in the eye. Many shyly honest men cannot do that.

* * *

Ernest Hemingway, back from a lion hunt, ought to turn out a best seller on such an experience. But his bull fight title "Death in the Afternoon," wants beating for aptness. A title often makes a brisk sale for a mediocre book. "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," for example. Unabashed ribaldry of youngsters is startling. An egg-faced jerkin, waiting in the Waldorf foyer the other day, greeted a pert huckleberry with "Hi! Strumpet!" And swung off merrily, arm in arm. Those were fighting words back yonder.

* * *

I catalogue women instantly as silly or serious, liking both kinds. Indeed, there is no type of femininity I find distracting, save the elbow nudgers at tense moments of a play. Fannie Hurst has added a Siamese cat to the zoo in her study. Complete: Two monkeys, two cats, a parrot, a Pekinese and Scottie. All living in amazing tranquility. A white Russian wolf hound is the most decorative of all domestic pets. They are remindful of Dolores in the Follies. All animals suggest personalities: Clarence Mackey, a chipmunk; Vincent Lopez, a seal; Wilton Lackeye, a tired bloodhound, and so on.

* * *

Bob Davis, who has knocked about the Malay jungles, doubts authenticity of a vigorous python biting Frank Buck's arm in that film. He thinks the cinema python was a worn out, playing specimen. The python constricts like a whip lash. Davis tells of a Malay boy coasting rapidly down a steep hill at night on a bicycle. A python stretched across the moonlit road. In the flash every spoke of the wheels and every bone in the boy's body were crumbled. Still Buck remains a hero to me. Wakeful, I like in the dark to close my eyes and form a sort of surrealiste movie—gray squiggles, blurred shoots, flashy rockets and spinning phantasmagoria. In the whirl there is usually a face suggesting a stretched film of Polly Moran riding a broomstick.

* * *

A lady in New Orleans tweaks my curiosity inquiring about my harvest of words. I figure the total crop annually more than 500,000, likely a slim estimate. Damon Runyon probably surpasses any modern writer in output. His total probably excels that of all the round table boys. M. called my attention on a walk from the theater this evening that the moon was only beautiful on a large expanse of water. I recalled the time we saw it aslant palm trees in Florida upon which orchids were growing. We agreed that was breathless.

* * *

What Guy de Maupassant could do with this one! A woman under the marquee of a declasse hotel in the 40s hallooed to me some evenings ago rather late. Supposing she wanted to ask a direction, I halted. At the instant I noted the mood was one of coquetry we both gave a quick start and turned away embarrassed. Her husband was once rather a warm friend. I had dined at their home frequently.

* * *

I like a jaded bachelor's Sutton Place apartment at cocktail time when the fly and roguishly rouged ladies on the make drift in. A merry ringle to the wise guy talk. Fireflaught banter covering steel-trap trickery. Such ladies ignore me completely. M. suggests it might be they think I'm a house detective—Caeca invidia est!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

When Horror Closes In

Dire things are happening in Germany today. They are happening particularly to Jews.

Amazed, the world reads of these things. Everywhere — in newspapers, in magazine articles, over radio broadcasts—the unbelievable story is told. Now there is this book "The Oppermanns," by Lion Feuchtwanger. It is the story of one German-Jewish family. The man who tells it is himself a Jew. But his people have been German for so long that he can hardly think or himself as a Jew. He thinks of himself as part of Germany.

It is not a shouting book. It is a very deliberate, very quiet book. Shockingly quiet. The quietness does not shock you at first. It seems quite natural. Here is the story of a respectable, middle-class merchant family, called Oppermanns. Plain people, who might be called Jones in America. Their blood is Jewish. But like the man who writes about them, they have been German so long that they hardly think themselves Jews. They only think of themselves as part of Germany.

And Germany, for generations, has thought of them as part of Germany. Then the war comes. And, after the war, the bad days. Days of growing hunger, growing humiliation for poor people. Feuchtwanger does not say much about those days. But they lie back of all he writes. They are the reason for all he writes.

Bad days for the poor people. Hunger, humiliation. Then, inevitably, hate for rich people. Hate for safe people. And—the beginning of the horror.

Quietly this terrible book begins. As quietly as hate begins. A little suspicion. A little resentment. A faint darkening of race feeling, along the bright horizon of placid lives.

Then—faster, faster; fiercer, fiercer—the coming of the horror. Far off in the distance at first, but closing in, closing in. Closing in on plain people whose crimes are thrift, shrewdness and industry.

Slowly, slowly; quietly, quietly—the beginning of hate. Faster, faster; fiercer, fiercer—the coming of horror. A riot at first. Or was there really a riot? A professor driven from his class rooms. But maybe that too was exaggerated.

Some business trouble. Better change the trade name from Oppermann Furniture to "German Furniture Company." Rowdies—"Nationalist Socialists"—trying to throw a Jew out of the subway.

Fiercer, fiercer; faster, faster—hate and horror closing in. But sleek friendly, happy Gustav Oppermann could not believe it. Why should any German want to hate or hurt other Germans? Even if their name was Jewish? It could not, would not be. It was just a litle passing hysteria. Smiling, he reassured himself:

"One's foundations were firm, one was equipped with comprehensive knowledge, enjoyed the fine things bygone centuries had developed, had a substantial bank balance. It seemed ridiculous to imagine that the tame, domesticated beast—the common man—threatened to revert to his wolfish nature."

Fine words. Sensible reasoning. But they did not stop the hate. They could not stop the horror. Presently, but when it was too late, Gustav Oppermann saw that it was all too possible for common men to become wolves. Wolves from which every trace of humanity had departed. Wolves that snapped and tore and ripped and mangled in a brutish ecstacy of hate—in a howling horror of revenge.

Hate . . . horror . . . slowly but surely they closed in. Then, HELL!

And presently other sleek, friendly, happy men—men who had been Germans so long that they no longer thought of themselves as Jews—plain, hard-working men who might have been called Jones in America—were no longer men at all. THEY WERE THINGS, IN CASKETS!

"'Suicide,' 'shot while trying to escape,' 'heart failure'—such were the usual official causes of death in a concentration camp. Then, what was left of the prisoner—broken bones, mutilated masses of flesh—was placed into a sealed casket and delivered to the next of kin upon payment of the cost entailed, and upon the guarantee that the casket would not be opened."

A frightful book. The more frightful because of its deliberate quietness.

You close that book—sick. Try to forget it. Try to deny it. Try to think of something else. But you can't. Slowly, horribly, your mind turns back to that book. Your mind admits that book. And then, though you struggle fiercely against it, an even more awful thought begins to form.

If this can happen in Germany—

If this can happen in modern, 1934 Germany—

If decent, civilized people who build cities like ours, use machines like ours, have homes, schools and churches like ours, can do these things to other decent, civilized people whose only crimes are thrift, shrewdness and industry—to other plain people who might be called Jones in America—

If hunger and humiliation can lead to hate and horror like this in Germany, and hate and horror can lead to such a hell—

These things can happen in any country, to any people, where there has been too much hunger, too much humiliation.

Milder Deportation Law Urged in Congress

By James T. Williams, Jr.

WHETHER the United States ought to be more or less lenient in getting rid of undesirable aliens is a question which has been raised in the House.

Congressman Crowe, of Indiana, has introduced a bill to amend existing deportation laws in several important particulars. This measure would increase the discretionary power of the Secretary of Labor in dealing with certain classes of deportable aliens. It would ease up rather than stiffen federal procedure in dealing with many of these cases.

This proposal is based upon a study, which a non-partisan group of citizens has been making since last June, of existing immigration and naturalization laws. This committee finds that "our immigration laws have met the challenge of the depression," and recommends against any "substantial amendment" of these statutes.

Some of the changes suggested, however, will appear to be quite substantial to many Senators and Representatives in Congress who believe that now is not the time to encourage a new influx of aliens, or to slow down the machinery of deportation.

Foreign-Born Population at Peak

IN reporting to the Secretary of Labor recently this committee gave some surprising facts and figures about alien population.

Practically one-third of our entire population today—forty million men, women and children—are immigrants or the children of immigrants.

There were more foreign-born in the United States in 1930 than ever before in the history of the country. They totaled in that year fourteen million, of whom nearly half were still aliens. In view of the challenge presented by the problem of educating and assimilating so large a part of our population, it is not surprising that the committee urges that the federal government give increased attention to this task.

In reporting its findings to Secretary Perkins this non-partisan committee says:

"It is surprising that there has never been in the federal government some bureau concerned with the adjustment of the alien in the years between his admission and naturalization.

"This committee believes that such a bureau should be established as a part of our immigration and naturalization service. It should disseminate information which will encourage citizenship, assist in the enforcement of our immigration laws and aid the alien in his adjustment to American life. It should co-operate with educational authorities to promote more adequate educational opportunities."

Two questions are presented by this recommendation: First, whether the task of educating these aliens and helping them to catch step with their fellow citizens is not primarily the work of state rather than of the federal government. And, second, whether such educational assistance as the states require in this field cannot be better furnished by the Federal Office of Education, until that agency is expanded into a department of education headed by a secretary of education with its seat in the cabinet of the President.

Good Work Done By Massachusetts

FOR many years the commonwealth of Massachusetts maintained a most efficient department to help its alien residents prepare themselves for citizenship. This agency was headed by Mrs. Pauline Revere Thayer, a descentant of the patriot, Paul Revere. She gave her services as the director of this splendid work.

As administered by Mrs. Thayer, this Massachusetts agency was a model for other states. Should the Federal government undertake to educate the aliens in every state in preperation for citizenship, the probability is that the states would abandon all efforts in the same direction and leave the whole job to the Federal government.

Under the American system of government the Federal government is charged with the duty of fostering public education by distributing the results of research in this field, as the Federal Office of Education now does with the limited facilities at its disposal.

But the support and control of education are the responsibility of the several states. To make an exception of aliens and leave their education to the Federal government would seem to run counter to American theory and practice. And for these reasons Congress will doubtless be slow to create a new Federal bureau to relieve the states of work which under the Federal Constitution is reserved for the states.

If the Federal government would concentrate its efforts upon protecting the alien from racketeers and unscrupulous lawyers, it would make easier his education by the state where he resides and applies for admission to citizenship.

Navajo Indians Are to Have Their Own Capital and Government Buildings at Window Rock, Ariz.

By Edwin C. Hill

THE New Deal has come to Window Rock, and it means that out there on the Arizona table lands, where the painted stones rise 400 feet into the air like so many fairy castles, the Navajo Indians will have their own capital, their own government buldings and a full measure of self-rule. About 35,000 Navajos are left, most of them in the 25,000 square mile reservation centered around Fort Defiance.

They live a nomadic life, tending their horses, cattle and goats, dwelling in hogans, which are cabins made of mud, laid on a framework of poles. Theirs is a family rather than a community existence, with grandmother always the big boss of the hogan. For the present it is their task to set up their own government buildings on the mesa of Window Rock, picked by their tribal chiefs as their new capital and christened Nee Alneeng, the English for which has been lost between New York and Arizona.

Pow-Wow Held In Black Hills

THE New Deal for the Navajos all grew out of and is the first fruit of a big pow-wow which was held in the heart of the Black Hills. A pale face was explaining a New Deal the Great White Father was preparing in Washington. The Great White Father and his chief aide in the new plan, John Collier, Commissioner for Indian affairs, who is white of skin but Indian at heart, had decided that, after all, it was better to make an Indian a good Indian, rather than a poor white man, and that the way to help him was to put him back on the land and restore to him his tribal rights and customs.

Here were Flatheads, Crows, Cheyennes, Blackfeet from Montana, Chippewas from Turtle Mountain, near the Canadian line; Arapahoes, Mandans and Shoshones from Wyoming, Winnebagoes from Iowa, Sioux from the Dakotas. Young Red Tomahawk, son of the Indian who killed Sitting Bull, acted as Sioux interpreter.

Young bucks, old men with sculptured faces, a few squaws and a few papooses too young to be left behind, listened to Mr. Collier, Commissioner of Indian Affairss. He said that "there is no reason why it should go on disgracing itself in Indian matters," and that "the President, Secretary Ickes and the Indian Bureau have determined that the time has come to stop wronging the Indians and to rewrite the cruel and stupid laws that rob them and crush family lives."

Indians Oppressed By White People

THE Indians have much to forgive. They were a kindly people when the white man set a foot on Jamestown Island and Plymouth Rock. They had developed agriculture. They were a moral people with a firm belief in God, and their family life was a lesson to the invader. But the white man almost destroyed them, luring them with pretty beads, slaughtering them with leaden bullets, degrading them with whisky.

Yielding to the advance of "civilization," they were shunted onto reservations where no white man wanted to settle. Mr. Collier, who has made the Indians' cause his own, determined to change all that. The Wheeler-Howard bill, drafted by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, strikes a double blow at the two fatal weaknesses of Indian administration across a whole century: First, the robbery and pauperization of the Indian, and second, the suppression of the Indian tribal and social and religious institutions.

So the white man approaches a belated act of justice to the original possessors of the soil, the real Americans of the United States.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Life Is So Full

Ah, life is so full and life is so good!
If I dwelt deep in the thickest wood
Where seldom another soul went by,
But only myself and the trees and the sky,
I should never tire through the long years there
For the richness of life is everywhere.
In winter I'd watch all the shy, furred things
While I'd hear how fiercely the north wind sings;
I'd learn strange secrets of squirrel and fox
And I'd find warm lairs hidden back of the rocks.
My sun-dried corn with a starving deer
I'd share when it grew too weak for fear.
I would let it eat of my scanty store
Till it strengthened and left me alone once more.
And in springtime I'd feel the surging flood
Of sap as it rose in each leaf and bud.
I would read the story that summer brings
With its fruits and blossoms, its myriad wings.
Joys would throng about me, a multitude,
For life is so full; life is so good!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Reading the Heart-Line

This is the treacherous time of year, when the "line of least resistance" is the heart line.

* * *

Before marrige, a man seems to think that a girl's clothes simply grow on her. After marriage, he is surprised and aggrieved when she doesn't go right on producing them in the same inexpensive way.

It thrills a girl to watch the screen heroine bullied by the ruthless he-man lover; but she doesn't realize how tiresome it becomes after a few years, to have to supply all the courtesy and tenderness around the house or to leap to duty like a fireman every time he gives an order.

* * *

To keep a man interested in your kisses, always let the supply be a little less than the demand. wheat and cotton aren't the only things in this Country which have suffered from over-production.

* * *

The average normal woman is capable of only one real love in a life-time; but nowadays she seems to have to do such a lot of experimenting in order to decide WHICH one.

Nothing spoils a man's memory so quickly as the habit of making large and glittering promises to a woman.

* * *

Divorce is no longer a mark of social distinction. One merely accepts these changes of matrimonial partners, as one accepts a woman's change of cooks or a man's change of address.

* * *

Every man claims that he likes a girl with plenty of good, hard, common sense; but when he meets that sort, he has a chilly feeling that she may be using it to size him up with—and promptly looks around for a dumb bell.

When a modern bachelor steps up to the altar and actually signs away his freedom it shows remarkable strength of character—on the part of the girl.

* * *

Nothing gives you such a warm glow around the heart as to meet a young couple and discover that even being MARRIED to each other hasn't managed to rub all the glamour off their love.

ISN'T IT SO?

Some people believe in luck just because they never have any.

Business is a mantle that covers a multitude of queer transactions.

Love is the birth of an illusion and marriage is often the death of it.

It isn't what a man owes but what he pays that keeps him broke.

When a woman drives a man to drink he always makes a good time record.

An egotist is a man who is always talking about himself when you want to talk about yourself.

A mother who will deliberately admit that some other baby is just as smart as hers is not to be trusted.

Improved machinery enables a man to accomplish almost as many things as a woman can with a hairpin.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Parents of daughters of society age should not permit them to accept favors from young men who cannot afford the outlay.

It is easy for a father to learn something about the income of the young men who are their daughters' escorts.

He should explain to his daughter the reasons why she should not permit expenditures which are out of proportiton to the income of the young man.

Many young men make their first dishonest step in their efforts to procure money with which to give their girl friends a good time.

And it is true, unfortunately, that some girls favor the young fellows who spend the most money for their pleasure.

One who regulates his expenditures according to his income is given little consideration by such girls.

Girls at college who accept many invitatitons from young men students should realize that the money spent was probably provided by someone at home.

Many fathers are having a hard time earning their sons' way through college.
